It is anticipated that officers of local financial institutions, member of public and private development groups, local elected and appointed officials and businesses considering expansions would find the economic development conference quite useful, according to Wayne Faust of the NWRDC staff.

The conference fee of $8 per person includes refreshments at the morning and afternoon break, a noon lunch, and a booklet containing a concise explanation of each of the economic development tools presently available to businesses, developers and cities in Region I.

Economic development administration state of Minnesota representative, Jack Arnold, will address the noon luncheon, discussing economic development opportunities and useful local strategies.

The program is as follows: 10:30-11:00 a.m., registration (coffee and rolls available); 11:00-12:00 Noon, economic development program; 12:15-1:00 p.m., lunch; 1:15-3:00 p.m, economic development program; 3:00-4:00 p.m. individual questions and answer session.

Presentors will include: Wayne H. Faust, director of physical and economic development planning, NWRDC; Del Redetzke, economic development representative, state of Minnesota department of energy and economic development; Andrea Rootham, assistant to U.S. Congressman Arlan Stangeland; Betty Walton, business owner, manager and member of Northwest Private Industry council; Helen Jurchen, planning assistant, NWRDC.

Hazardous Waste Handling . . .

12 Twin Cities Sites Selected For Processing

Thirteen different areas in 12 Twin Cities metropolitan-area communities — including two in St. Paul and large tracts of industrially zoned land in Minneapolis — have been selected by the Minnesota waste management board as "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, where the board will encourage private developers to obtain sites for such facilities as chemical waste treatment plants, storage facilities and incinerators.

In a meeting Thursday at the state office building in St. Paul, the board voted to select — with some reductions in the size of several areas — areas proposed earlier in St. Paul, Cottage Grove, Rosemount, Inver Grove Heights, Roseville, Shakopee, Fridley, Plymouth, Lakeville, Forest Lake and Ramsey.

In addition, the board accepted a proposal by the city of Minneapolis under which all industrially-zoned areas in which the city's "performance standards" would permit hazardous waste processing facilities will be considered "preferred areas."

Of the 16 areas originally proposed by the board as preferred areas in the Twin Cities Metro area in December, 1982, only an area in Hastings was eliminated. The board cited the area's soil and aquifer conditions and relatively poor transportation access for its decision.

The board's actions complete the development of an "Inventory of Preferred Areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, one of the board's three major hazardous waste management responsibilities. The board is also required to develop a comprehensive state hazardous waste management plan and to select, by early-1986, at least one secure hazardous waste disposal site.

The preferred areas are not being considered for the final disposal of hazardous wastes, nor will the state specifically site and operate hazardous waste processing facilities. The board will encourage private developers to obtain permits for and site hazardous waste processing facilities within preferred areas.

The board is required to identify at least three preferred areas for each of three different categories of hazardous waste processing facilities: chemical waste treatment plants, hazardous waste incinerators and transfer-storage facilities. At transfer-storage facilities, hazardous waste would be stored temporarily and later transferred to treatment or disposal facilities.

The areas in Rosemount, Inver Grove Heights, Cottage Grove, Shakopee and Ramsey were designated as suitable for all three types of facilities; the remaining areas were selected as suitable only for treatment plants or transfer-storage facilities.

In evaluating the areas, the board looked at such factors as existing and planned industrial development, proximity to residential development, transportation access, soil and aquifer conditions, city wells, sewer services, and parks and historic sites.

Public hearings were conducted on all the Twin City proposed preferred areas earlier this year.

In April, 1982 the board selected eight preferred areas for hazardous waste processing facilities in eight communities outside the Twin Cities Metro area: Willmar, Crookston, Fergus Falls, Rochester, St. Cloud, Duluth, Owatonna and Mankato.

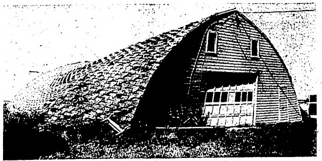
In addition to the board's acceptance of the Minneapolis proposal, it also reduced the size of many of the areas from that originally proposed, based on information and a variety of local concerns identified during the board's public hearing process. Only the areas in Forest Lake, Rosemount and Roseville were not reduced by the board.

If hazardous waste processing facilities are established within preferred areas, they would likely handle such chemicals and materials as solvents, acids, inks, cyanides, oils and greases and heavy metal wastes.

In its draft hazardous waste management report, released August 3, the board estimates approximately 174,000 tons of hazardous wastes are generated in Minnesota each year, and that approximately 80 per cent of the total originates in the seven-county Twin Cities metro area.

Minnesota's hazardous wastes are generated by chemical industries, rubber and plastics firms, metal fabricators, printing firms, platers and circuit board manufacturers, and a wide range of other industries.

The board has identified hazardous waste reduction and treatment as preferred to land-disposal, and sees the establishment of new treatment facilities as necessary in reducing the state's dependence on the land-disposal of hazardous wastes.



GROSTESQUELY TWISTED by what is believed to be a tornado which struck the Clarence Lian farm east of Middle River early Monday morning, this machine shed contained a truck and a number of other items which escaped serious damage. The shed was moved about 10 feet off its foundation and twisted so that the rafters separated at the peak of the structure. Lian said the wind struck the farm about 6:30 a.m. with a loud roar and the storm was over before anyone thought to take shelter in the basement.

Invite Indians To Apply For Energy Grants

Minnesota's American Indian communities are being asked to apply for grants totaling $500,000 from the department of economic security for energy conservation programs, commissioner Barbara Beerhalter announced today.

The funds, earmarked for Indian communities on reservations and in urban centers, will provide low-income people with training and employment in areas of energy conservation.

The grants will be used to cover costs of training and materials and wages for up to 30 jobs that would be created once the training has been completed.

In some projects the trained workers will be hired to complete weatherization and conservation improvements for low-income households within the Indian communities.

Alan Chapman, state weatherization director, said guidelines for submitting proposals to receive the grants have been mailed to the state's Indian communities. "We expect the program will begin operating on Oct. 1, and continue through Sept. 30, 1984," he said.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Chapman at the Weatherization office, 690 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55101, 612-296-5752.

NEW GRAIN AUGER which had been leaning against the wall of a machine shed on the Clarence Lian farm east of Middle River was bent neatly in a bow when a probable tornado moved the building early Monday morning. A number of other items in the shed, including the pickup topper shown in the background, were also damaged when the building was moved.

Heart Fund In State Passes $2 Million

American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate raised $2,000,699 during its 1983 campaign, according to Dave Torgerson, Clinton, 1983 state heart fund chairman.

The $2,000,699 collected will enable the Minnesota affiliate to expand its resources for heart research, professional and public education and community service programs.

An additional $642,406 from bequests brings the total contributions from the public to $2,643,105 during 1982-83.

"The Minnesota affiliate is proud of the success of this year's campaign income," said Torgerson. "We can take a great sense of satisfaction in the fact that we achieved the greatest volunteer participation this affiliate has known," Torgerson said.

More than 60,000 Minnesota volunteers collected contributions and distributed lifesaving information on heart disease in the house-to-house campaign.

Special events, such as the state-wide jump rope for heart, home with heart and dance for heart, continue to make an important contribution to the state heart fund campaign, Torgerson said. "The jump rope for heart program raised over $171,000 this year," he said.

American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate is the only statewide health agency dedicated to its mission of reducing premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel diseases.

Aided by the effort of the American Heart association, the percentage of all deaths due to cardiovascular disease in 1982 fell below 50 per cent for the first time since 1948. Despite these gains, cardiovascular disease continues as America's number one health problem.

School Opening Requires Care With Traffic

Motorists, school children and parents are urged to cooperate with one another to make 1983 a safe, accident-free school year in Minnesota, according to public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Tschida said that the months of September, February and December have the highest number of injuries to students due to motor vehicle accidents.

Motorists must watch for children during early morning and mid-afternoon hours, especially near school grounds. The early morning drive to school from 6 to 9 a.m. experiences 33 per cent of all accidents followed by the after school drive home from 3 to 6 p.m. with 30 per cent of the accidents.

"Drivers must recognize and obey school patrols and school speed zone signs," said Tschida. "Motorists are required by law to stop for any school bus making a passenger stop when the red lights are flashing and stop arm is extended.

School children can also do their part to prevent accidents by learning and obeying traffic signals, using sidewalks whenever possible, looking both ways before crossing, not playing in the streets and obeying the school patrol. "Parents can play an important role in teaching their children good traffic safety habits," said Tschida. "They can start by teaching small children the basics: walking on sidewalks or, when there are none, walking on the left side of the road, facing traffic.

Before allowing children to go to school unaccompanied, parents should be confident that young children know the meaning of traffic signals and the importance of crossing at corners.

"It's very important for parents to help children map out a safe route to school, then practice the walk several times before the first day of school. The safest route will make use of low-volume traffic streets with the fewest crossings," Tschida said.

Cooperation between motorists, school children and their parents can prevent traffic accidents from occurring and get the school year off to a good — and safe — beginning.

Navigation On Great Lakes In Ice Opposed

Minnesota Conservation Federation (MCF) is asking Congress to hold public hearings before any vote is taken to authorize winter navigation on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway.

A late amendment offered by Representative Arlan Stangeland to a water projects authorization bill (H.R. 3678); would allow winter navigation in the Great Lakes system. It was widely believed that the plan has been discarded by the army corps of engineers several years ago, according to Ken Hiemenz, president of the Minnesota Conservation Federation.

"Without adequate knowledge of the impact of year-round navigation, we could be developing an environmental situation that could surpass the asbestos problem of a few years ago," Hiemenz said.

"Moreover, the project is not economically feasible. It will never be until the user-fee principle is adopted." The current structuring of the project would have taxpayers subsidizing the lion's share of the cost, he added.

The conservation organization believes winter navigation would bring "severe disruptions to the lives of citizens along the connecting waters of the Great Lakes, serious damage to shorelines and private property, destruction of natural resources, impairment of the tourism economy, threat of oil and chemical spills under the ice, unfavorable impact on the state's railroad lines, and an unacceptable economic subsidy to a narrow industrial base."

Heimenz urged all members of the conservation community to work for the defeat of winter navigation legislation.

"Opposition to winter navigation is strong in all of the states bordering the Great Lakes, from Minnesota to New York," he said. At a recent meeting of the Great Lakes affiliates of the National Wildlife federation in Milwaukee, WI, the conservation organizations joined with the Minnesota Conservation federation in unanimously opposing winter navigation.

COTTONWOOD LIMBS more than six inches in diameter were snapped from the top of a tree (note arrow) and deposited about 50 yards away in front of the Clarence Lian farm home in Middle River early Monday morning. Herb Evans of Buena Park, CA, who was a visitor at the Lian farm, had normally parked his car where the heavy branches fell, but the previous evening had parked it in the driveway to the garage. It was unscratched despite the many branches which littered the yard and broke a kitchen window, sending glass flying across the room. Lian said the storm hit about 6:30 a.m. with the main wind lasting only a minute or so. Evans and his wife Agnes, the Lians' niece, and Clara (Carriere) Jacobs of Greenbelt, MD, another niece, were upstairs in the house when the storm struck. They said leaves and branches were whirling about the house and yard and that the storm was accompanied by a loud roar. Heavy rain also fell during the storm. Extensive damage was done to a machine shed and a number of trees were downed or damaged.

Woodland Says NFO Is Ready To Challenge U.S.D.A.

"NFO is ready to challenge U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block and his underlings on their policies and programs on agriculture," states DeVon Woodland, president of the National Farmers organization.

"We believe he is disinterested in and ignoring the welfare of rual America, not only because of his actions and recommendations, but especially because of his blatant statement of the need to remove human resources from agriculture, bureaucratic jargonese meaning force more farmers out of farming.

"Secretary Block is a millionaire farmer who has lost any feel for farmers he terms inefficient and marginal. In my opinion those people were removed from agriculture long ago. These 'marginal' farmers are victims of circumstances beyond their control such as high interest rates and market prices below their cost of production," Woodland said.

"We have tried to work with the secretary but each time he has ignored the true needs of farmers. Agriculture is the real source of strength in America. It is the commodity which gives us real international buying power.

"I realize Mr. Block has to function as a member of the president's cabinet but his primary objective should be to support the full-time independent farmer, not condemn him for being the most efficient and productive worker the world has ever seen," Woodland added.

He said that at the recent agricultural summit conference called by Secretary Block he had the opportunity to visit briefly with Herbert Stein who was director of the research section of the committee for economic development (CED), the group which issued the highly controversial report in 1962 which recommended the "elimination of human resources from agriculture," i.e. farmers.

To Mr. Stein Woodland notes he said, "at that time there were six million farmers, now there are less than three million. Do more have to go or have you accomplished your goal?"

He said, "No, more have to go."

"How many more?"

"I'm not sure," he said. "We have so many farmers with off-farm income it's hard to tell."

Then he looked down and saw Woodland's NFO lapel pin and simply walked away, the NFO president said.

"I've seen countries where there have been "agricultural adjustments." What they now have are many peasants working for a few large landowners. If the same happens here we are looking at maybe a half a dozen landowners per county and the rest working as hired laborers," Woodland said.

"When you eliminate farmers you also eliminate rural communities. Large farm operations traditionally bypass their local town with their business. If the independent farmer disappears he will take the rural communities with him.

"The USDA has abandoned the farmer. By their own admission they want to eliminate the independent producer from the farm. I think they plan to accomplish this by eliminating all farm programs with the producer having no method or organization to protect himself in the marketplace," the NFO head added.

"The current dairy situation is an example. If the USDA really wanted to help the dairy farmer they would support an incentive program. I think they will go with the additional 50-cent tax with a definite purpose in mind. . . to deliberately increase production.

"The tax will force the dairyman to milk more cows to maintain his income and cash flow. That will increase the "surplus" stock and, when that stock reaches an intolerable level, they can say, 'We tried, but the producer didn't cooperate' and then eliminate the program. They have no intention of protecting the producer.

"At the agricultural summit my suggestion was to decide what type of agricultural system is good for America and then make plans to promote that type of agriculture. I think they have made that choice and are planning for huge, peasant-worked farms.

"And the farmers who is not today considered 'marginal' should not consider himself safe from the system. It works like a ladder. If the bottom rung represents the small, marginal farmer and you kick it out, the next rung up now represents the small, marginal farmer. Kick that one out and you can work your way to the top rungs with the same premise.

"I believe a solution to help straighten our farm situation would be to write farm programs to exclude those who do not need the help and merely collect a windfall from the programs. The programs would specifically eliminate farms operated by trust, institutions such as insurance companies, corporations whose major assets are not in farming, etc., and would also exclude the hobby farmer, the speculator, the investor, i.e. the individual who does not depend on agriculture for a major portion of his income.

"Programs written for the mid-sized, independent, full-time commercial farmer would serve the best interests of both agriculture and the entire nation. But any plan or program to help and maintain the independent farmer is for naught if Secretary Block and the USDA don't want to help them and continue on their present course of planned elimination.

"The highly publicized long term agreement for grain sales to Russia offers no relief for the farmer. It is a political maneuver which does noting to stabilize farm income. There was no price negotiated; that is left entirely up to the major grain companies. It is another example of total disregard for the needs of the independent farmer," Woodland said.

We've reached the point where farmers either need to revolt against the plan which will systematically eliminate them or they are going to wither away in numbers and economic strength. With no action now they will wake up one day without enough strength to help themselves."

LIKE IT WAS GROWING in the Clarence Lian farm yard, this five-inch limb from a cottonwood tree was driven into the ground east of the Lian farm home early Monday by what is believed to be a tornado. This branch was driven so solidly into the ground it felt as stable as if it was rooted there. Lian (pictured) said the wind storm hit about 6:30 a.m. with the most severe winds lasting only about a minute.

Agri-Growth Holds Briefing On Legislation

Minnesota agri-growth council, in an effort to provide an overview of all agri-related legislation of the recently-completed legislative session, hosted a special meeting earlier this month, to give an in-death briefing for members of the news media and agribusiness leaders from around the state.

Briefings ranged from extensive material on the new workers compensation bill and the new Superfund legislation, to the newly created international trade office and the new milk quality standards act.

Speakers for the briefing session included some of the top individuals in each field of expertise. Charles Nyberg, Austin, gave the presentation on the new workers compensation legislation. Nyberg, an acknowledged expert in the field of workers comp, was intimately involved with the commissioner of labor and industry in drafting the new state law.

Other specialists included: G. Robert Johnson, Minneapolis attorney who was a key lobbyist for industry on the superfund legislation; Daryl J. Piltz, administrator for the house agriculture committee; William Dietrich, assistant commissioner for international trade; Thomas Cashman, executive vice president of the northwest agri-dealers association; Davis Halberg, director of the seaway port authority of Duluth; and Leonard Binstock, president of the Minnesota corn growers association.

In his presentation on the newly-enacted workers compensation legislation, Nyberg told the group that "putting together a new bill wasn't too difficult. We knew what the problems were: we knew what had to be done. We think that organized labor also knew what had to be done."

According to Nyberg, a major part of the preliminary discussion on the reform of workers comp focused on the role of legal aid to Minnesota's injured workers. Minnesota, unlike any other state in the country, has a battery of state-paid lawyers "who essentially advise Minnesota workers to sue their employers." Although not included in the new law, the dismantling of the workers comp lawyers, in the state's department of labor and industry, is going on now, Nyberg said, and is expected to be completed by the first of the year.

Speaking on the superfund legislation, Johnson noted that the new law covers two major issues: clean up and personal liability or economic loss.

"Looking at the clean up provisions," Johnson contended, "they probably, together, form the toughest, most one-sided clean up measure in the country, bar none, including the federal position."

New law provides for strict joint and several liability. "That means you are liable, per se; it doesn't make any difference if you did anything wrong," Johnson said.

On the personal injury provisions, Johnson termed them "absolutely unique to Minnesota; they are not found anywhere else."

Johnson charged that the Minnesota superfund law "adopts and expands concepts that were considered too radical for the federal superfund law."

"It decides that businesses and individuals, who handled hazardous waste should have known what they were doing as of 1960. And, yet the state did not even form the pollution control agency until 1967; and, that agency did not even deal with hazardous waste, in any kind of way, until the mid-1970s," Johnson insisted.

Piltz discussed changes in ag legislation affecting the family farm security act; the artificial dairy products act; pseudorabies; and milk quality standards. Piltz gave details on the investment reimbursement provisions of the milk measure. It provides that those producers who, as of May 24, did not have a separate milk facility or equipment for cooling, could be eligible for grants. Those who qualify could receive $100 of the first $500 invested in a new facility and 10 per cent of each additional dollar up to a $2,500 maximum, with the maximum reimbursement being up to $300 per producer.

Dietrich, the Governor's special trade representative, detailed the functions of the new international trade office and spoke of upcoming trade missions. One is scheduled for the Far East in November. That mission will spend about one week in Japan and two weeks in the People's Republic of China. Other international trade trips with Minnesota business interests include a November or December trip to western Europe and one to Taiwan, also later this year.

Special briefing meeting was the first of its kind ever sponsored by the agri-growth council.

A small turn-out greeted head coach John Helley this week for the start of 1983 Northland community college preseason football drills, but he's enthused about the group nonetheless.

There are only about 30 players currently in camp, with 35-to-36 expected to be the final roster count.

"It's the smallest, but the nicest group I've had," mentioned Helley. "I think we've got the nicest group I've worked with in four years. I'm very impressed. If you had 26 kids who did nothing but moan and groan it would be depressing, but these fellows were in condition when they reported and they're enthusiastic."

Among those reporting were sophomores Eric Bondy of Thief River Falls, the Northland defensive team captain, and Bob Rockwood of Fargo, the team's offensive captain. Rockwood, a quarterback, and Todd Graalum, a wide receiver, joined the team immediately after their North Dakota state champion Fargo team was eliminated in the Central Plains Region 6 American Legion baseball tournament at Ely.

"We could use a few more players," acknowledged Helley, "but these kids have shown great team spirit, and they all want to play football."

Northland opens its 1983 season with a non-conference game Sun., Sept. 11, at Bemidji State University, playing the Beavers' junior varsity in a 7:30 p.m. game. First Minnesota Community College Conference start for the Northmen will be Sat., Sept. 17, at Itasca. They'll also be on the road Sat., Sept. 24, at Vermilion before finally getting in their home opener Sat., Oct. 1, vs. Hibbing.

Mesabi, a Sat., Oct. 8, visitor to Thief River Falls, is another school with number problems. Only 26 players showed up for the start of practice sessions for the Norsemen. Smaller numbers may be commonplace throughout the Northwest and Northeast Divisions, except at the University of Minnesota-Crookston where former Lincoln high school coach Jim Sims is expected to have about 60 players on hand.

Under this year's new state-wide football division format, UMC will be the favorite in the Northwest Division where the Trojans are grouped with Northland, Brainerd and Fergus Falls, a school that changed coaches just two weeks before the start of practice. Northland ends the 1983 season with those three Northwest Division rivals, playing Sat., Oct. 15, at Brainerd; Sat., Oct 22, vs. Fergus Falls; and Sat., Oct. 29, at UMC.

Meanwhile, Vermilion may be the favorite in the Northeast Division where the Ironmen are grouped with Itasca, Hibbing and Mesabi. Vermilion coach Rudy Semeja, who is beginning his 16th year at the school, says, "We have a fine group of returning sophomores and a good crop of incoming freshmen." He told the Ely Echo he expects to be a division championship contender.

Northwest and Northeast Division champions will be matched in first round post-season playoff activity.

Crookston Reds Eliminated

Region 5 champion Carver scored four times in the top of the first inning en route to a 5-0 win over the Region 12 runner-up Crookston Reds Sunday in the first round of the 1983 Minnesota state amateur baseball tournament at Hamberg.

Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo was the losing pitcher. He was victimized in the first inning after two singles and a walk loaded the bases for Carver. An infield ground-out kept the Black Sox momentarilly off the scoreboard and the Reds looked like they might get out of the inning unscathed when Sabo induced the next batter to hit into what looked like a made-to-order double play ground ball to second baseman Mike Ogaard. But the ball took a bad hop off the lip of the infield and was ruled an error, oppning the doors for the winners. Six of the eight Carver hits came in the first inning off Sabo, who then shut them down until the seventh when the Black Sox picked up a fifth run.

Meanwhile, Carver pitcher Phil Doig hurled a four-hit shutout as the Reds ended their season with a 27-12 record.

Detroit Lakes Angels, winner over the Crookston Reds in the Region 12 finals, was also a first round state tournament loser Sunday, falling to Region 5 runner-up Jordan 17-1, ending the Angels' season at 27-14.

Miscellaneous

+Dr. Robert Baab of Crookston was one of the latest inductees into the Minnesota Baseball Hall of Fame when the announcement was made over the weekend during the first round of the 1983 state amateur baseball tournament. Baab coached baseball at Mount St. Benedict for 14 years and is still active in the sport, including umpire duties during high school, American Legion and amateur games. There have been 118 people named to the Hall of Fame since its inception in 1963.

+ Bemidji Lumberjacks have been ranked No. 2 in the pre-season Class AA state cross country coaches' poll behind No. 1-ranked Kellogg-Ramsey. Bemidji was the only northern Minnesota team in the rankings. Defending state champion Staples was tanked No. 1 in Class A.

FIRST ANNUAL North Tri-County Conference preseason football jamboree was held Saturday at Oklee and a crowd of about 700 spectators made it a huge success, according to program sponsors. Action here shows Oklee quarterback Richard Hendrickson getting off a pass in the face of a hard rush by Tim Wayne (84) and Ron Kiesow (72) of Grygla-Goodridge. Action starts for real Friday for most area teams. Grygla-Goodridge will face Marshall County Central in a nonconference 7:30 p.m. Nine-Man game at Newfolden. The Blue Devils are expected to be a title contender in the North Tri-County Conference this fall. The Nordics face a rebuilding season in the Top of the State Conference where they shared the 1982 title with Argyle. (Photo for The Times by Donna Nelson).

Nordics, Blue Devils Meet In 1983 Football Opener Friday

Two area teams who looked impressive under scrimmage situations Saturday will square off Friday in an interesting Nine-Man high school football game when the new cooperative program at Grygla-Goodridge faces Marshall County Central in a 7:30 p.m. game at Newfolden to kick off the 1983 season.

"I thought we looked real good for this time of the year in our scrimmage," reported Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart, whose Nordics were at Warren where they mixed it up with Argyle and Oslo. Gebhart had a chance to watch Grygla-Goodridge that night in the North Tri-County Conference jamboree at Oklee, and he was impressed with the Blue Devils.

"It'll be a good opener," he predicted.

Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson agreed. "I was excited with our performance Saturday," he said. On the Blue Devils' first-ever play they scored on a 50-yard touchdown pass. Quarterback Tony Wiseth, a 145-pound senior, wound up 6-for-10 in the passing department and runningback Doug Schulz, a 180-pound senior, was charted with 119 yards on 10 carries.

And yet it was the defense, not the offense that excited Nelson. "I wasn't overly impressed with our offense — we've still got work to do on our timing, but the thing that impressed me most was our defense. We had great pursuit and gang tackling." Middle linebacker Rick Mosher, a 165-pound junior, had a great scrimmage, according to Nelson.

Gebhart says the key to stopping Grygla-Goodridge will be to contain Schulz, a hard runner who is expected to have a banner season for the Blue Devils. "We'll have to concentrate on stopping Schulz, although all their backs looked good," acknowledged Gebhart, starting his ninth year as Nordics' coach.

"No doubt, Schulz will be our bread and butter back," admitted Nelson, "but I don't think our offense is geared to one back."

Meanwhile, Nelson, the former head coach at Goodridge, is concerned with the apparent edge in quickness that he feels Marshall County Central might have. "Their overall quickness is the thing that scares me the most," he said. "If they run the option on us we're really going to have to work hard to stop it."

Defensively, the Nordics will likely go with Krohn at right end and either Rude or Dahl on the left side while Olson and Grant Nelson play at guards. Linebacker candidates include Magner, Stokke, Jay Nelson or freshman Dan Halvorson. Seeking berths in the defensive backfield are Hanson, Boe, junior Chad Swan and senior Ryan Shern.

For Grygla-Goodridge offensively, junior Scott Groven will be the split end and juniors Rick Carlson and Tim Wayne will alternate at tight end. Dale Verbout, a 190-pound junior, will be the right guard and Tim Schulz, a 165-pound sophomore will be the left guard. Rodney Haugen, a 185-pound senior, will be the center. Wiseth, although hobbled by an ankle injury, will be at quarterback while Doug Schultz lines up at halfback and Mosher will be the fullback. Either senior Wayne Byklum or junior Jared Sjulestad will be the slotback.

On defense, juniors Tim Wayne and Bill Neuschwander will be the ends; Verbout and junior Ron Kiesow will be the guards; Groven, Mosher and Byklum will be the linebackers; with senior Jeff Klein and junior Tim Iribeck in the secondary.

Grygla-Goodridge is expected to be a contender this fall in the North Tri-County Conference where Friday season openers find McIntosh-Winger at Middle River, 4 p.m.; Plummer at Gonvick-Trail, 3:30 p.m.; Oklee at Fisher, 4:15 p.m.; and Clearbrook at Erskine-

1983 Football Season . . .

Prowlers Open At Red River

Grand Forks Red River and Thief River Falls, two teams who have been opening the season against each other for the past 11 years, will do it again Friday when the Roughriders and Prowlers meet in an 8 p.m. game at Cushman Field in Grand Forks to kick off the 198e high school football season.

A year ago Red River overwhelmed Thief River Falls 48-7 en route to a strong season that produced a North Dakota Class A state playoff runner-up trophy for the Roughriders. The Prowlers went 0-9. The Roughriders have a 7-4 edge in the season-opening series that dates back to 1972, and to complicate matters, the Prowlers haven't won a game in Grand Forks during that span. Only Thief River Falls win over Red River in the past six years was a 12-7 victory by the Prowlers here in 1980.

Thief River Falls got a taste of action Saturday in the tenth annual Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview, a 100-play scrimmage against East Grand Forks. Each side scored once during their 50-play offensive series.

"We saw a lot of promising things in the Pigskin Preview," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz, "and we saw some areas that we have to work on."

One of the bright spots of the scrimmage was the Prowlers' passing game. Quarterback Mitch Semanko threw the ball well and wide receiver Steve Wiskow made a couple of nice catches.

"One of the most positive things about the scrimmage was the time we had to throw," pointed out Schmitz. "The kids did a good job holding them out."

Running game was adequate and the coaches were fairly well satisfied with the defense, too, mentioned Schmitz.

Thief River Falls' opening game line-up offensively is expected to include seniors Tim Kruse and Lynn Johnson alternating at tight end; Wiskow, a senior, at wide receiver; senior Jeff Hamerlinck and junior Shannon Kezar at tackles; seniors Gary Cornell and Ryan Bakke at guards; and senior Todd Ortloff at center. Semanko, a senior, will be the quarterback; junior Scott Fowler and senior Scott Jorstad are both expected to see playing time at fullback; senior Tim Bottem will line up at one halfback spot, with junior Ryan Drees or senior Jeff Langan at the other runningback in the I-formation in place of senior Rick Spong, a starter a year ago who has been held out of practice drills because of back problems. He is expected to play next week when the Prowlers open their home schedule with Detroit Lakes. Langan, a transfer student from Goodridge, scored the lone touchdown on a short run Saturday against East Grand Forks.

Defensively, Langan will be at one end, with either Cornell or Bottem on the other side; Hamerlinck and junior Dan Upham will be the tackles; Kruse and Ortloff the outside linebackers in the 4-4 set; Wiskow at one inside linebacker and either Fowler or Bakke on the other side; Semanko and junior Mark Bondy at the cornerback spots; with Jorstad at safety.

Jorstad will handle the punting duties, with either Cornell or Upham doing the place-kicking.

Schmitz expects a tough opener for the Prowlers. "We know that all (Nick) Chichy teams are well-coached, and they have enough players so they'll be tough," he warned.

But he also expects the Prowlers to be able to win the game — providing they play well, of course.

Red River-Thief River Falls game will be the second half of a Friday doubleheader at Cushman Field that will find Grand Forks Central and East Grand Forks playing in a 5 o'clock start.

Thief River Falls junior varsity-sophomore squad will open its season Tuesday with a sophomore game at 7 p.m. at Red River, while the Thief River Falls freshmen begin play Thurs., Sept. 8, with a 4:15 p.m. game at East Grand Forks.

Area High School Volleyball Preview . . .

MCC Expected To Field Another Strong Line-Up

Defending District 32 champion Marshall County Central has a new head coach, but the Nordics aren't expected to change their winning ways this fall in area high school volleyball action.

Julie Tunheim takes over the head coaching duties in 1983 while Tom Mjelde moves into the assistant's position. Those rules were reversed last year, but Mjelde also serves as head coach of the Marshall County Central girls basketball team and the back-to-back seasons were a little taxing.

When Mjelde stepped down as volleyball coach he didn't leave the cupboard bare. Four starters are back, along with three other letter winners.

Returning regulars include spikers Shelly Anderson and Becky Knutson, along with setters Stacey Gonsorowski and Nancy Nelson. Knutson is a sophomore while the others are seniors.

Also lettering a year ago were senior Paula Gustafson, plus juniors Jodi Nelson and Gay Moose.

Those players, plus junior Barb Garthus who played well on the junior varsity, are expected to be the backbone of the 1983 squad. And Tunheim expects it to be a good team.

"We look pretty good so far," she said. "We look to be a winning team. We haven't sat down and set any goals, but we think we'll do well. There's a lot of enthusiasm on the team."

After competing in Thursday's jamboree at Roseau the Nordics will open their 1983 schedule Tuesday at Stephen.

"We're quick," acknowledged Tunheim, "but we're kind of short — one of our weaknesses."

MCC Volleyball

Tues., Sept. 6 — at Stephen; Thurs., Sept. 8 — Middle River; Tues., Sept. 13 — Grygla; Thurs., Sept. 15 — at Roseau; Tues., Sept. 20 — Badger; Thurs., Sept. 22 — Warroad; Tues., Sept. 27 — at Middle River; Thurs., Sept. 29 — at Grygla; Mon., Oct. 3 — Greenbush; Thurs., Oct. 6 — Roseau; Sat., Oct. 8 — at Thief River Falls Invitational; Tues., Oct. 11 — at Badger; Thurs., Oct. 13 — at Lake of the Woods; Mon., Oct. 17 — at Tri-County; Mon., Oct. 24 — at Warren; Thurs., Oct. 27 — Hallock.

Middle River

Middle River coach Julie Helgeson expects the Skippers to be an improved volleyball team in 1983.

"We're optimistic. We're looking for a pretty good season," reported Helgeson.

Reason for the optimism is six senior letter winners on hand: Diane Black, Paul Rantanen, Connie Dahl, Vonda Peterson and Jody Christofferson. Two juniors — Kathy Nelson and Lisa Maertens — have also looked good in early practice drills, mentioned Helgeson, whose team finished at 6-8 a year ago.

Some fairly decent height and potentially strong hitters in Black, Rantanen and Dahl could enable Skippers to challenge Marshall County Central for District 32 honors this fall.

Middle River will be in Roseau for jamboree action Thursday then open the 1983 season Tuesday at home against Goodridge.

Grygla

Like North Border Conference rivals Marshall County Central and Middle River, Grygla has some experience returning this fall and coach Kurt Vandermeer is looking forward to a productive 1983 season.

Seniors Kathy Foss, Kim Sistad and Judy Verbout were full-time starters a year ago and they're expected to be the team leaders this time around. Verbout, one of the best setters in the area last year, according to Vandermeer, was an all-conference pick. Sistad is also a setter and Foss is a strong spiker.

Sophomores Carol Verbout and Janie Verbout were spot starters in 1982.

Another would-be Grygla starter — senior Annie Hoffert — has been lost to the team for the season following knee surgery.

Grygla was 6-6 in North Border play a year ago. "I'm looking to better that this year," predicted Vandermeer, who would like to see the Eagles get off to a fast start this fall. They were young and inexperienced last year when he allowed the team to progress slowly during the year to peak at District 32 tournament time. Now he wants to start strong and carry it through the entire season.

Jamboree at Roseau Thursday kicks off the year, with the Eagles' first match scheduled Tuesday at Badger.

Grygla Volleyball

Tues., Sept. 6 — at Badger; Thurs., Sept. 8 — Roseau; Mon., Sept. 12 — Middle River; Tues., Sept. 13 — at Marshall County Central; Thurs., Sept. 22 — at Lake of the Woods; Mon., Sept. 26 — Clearbrook; Tues., Sept. 27 — at Warroad; Thurs., Sept. 29 — Marshall County Central; Mon., Oct. 3 — Warroad; Tues., Oct. 4 — at Roseau; Thurs., Oct. 6 — Goodridge; Mon., Oct. 10 — Lake of the Woods; Thurs., Oct. 13 — at Tri-County; Mon., Oct. 17 — Badger; Wed., Oct. 19 — at Middle River; Mon., Oct. 24 — Kennedy.

Goodridge

There are four returning starters and six letter winners back at Goodridge for coach Patti Johnson, but none of them are seniors.

"We were young last year and we're young again this year," noted Johnson, whose youthful Huskies struggled through a 4-14 season in 1982.

Starters back include juniors Cheri Nelson and Melissa Iverson, plus sophomores Jennie Boutain and Jennifer Race. In addition, junior Jody Berg and sophomore Tami Miller were letter winners last fall.

"I think we have a pretty good nucleus coming back," pointed out Johnson, who realizes the Huskies will have their work cut out in a very competitive District 31 field, made even tougher this year with the addition of East Grand Forks and Crookston from the Class AA ranks.

Goodridge opens the year Tuesday at Middle River after participating in a jamboree Thursday at Red Lake Falls.

Goodridge Volleyball

Tues., Sept. 6 — at Middle River; Thurs., Sept. 8 — Plummer; Tues., Sept. 13 — at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart; Thurs., Sept. 15 — Warren; Tues., Sept. 20 — at Argyle; Thurs., Sept. 22 — Fisher; Tues., Sept. 27 — at Red Lake Falls; Thurs., Sept. 29 — at Gonvick-Trail; Tues., Oct. 4 — at Alvarado; Thurs., Oct. 6 — at Grygla; Sat., Oct. 8 — at Plummer Invitational; Tues., Oct. 11 — Climax; Thurs., Oct. 13 — Stephen; Mon., Oct. 17 — at Oslo; Tues., Oct. 25 — East Grand Forks Sacred Heart; Thurs., Oct. 27 — Gonvick-Trail.

Oklee

Just one starter returns at Oklee in 1983, making it a rebuilding year for coach Ardis Hofstad and the Bobcats.

All-conference player Kirstin Lambert, a senior, is the only starter back off last year's 15-8 team that finished runner-up to eventual Region 8A champion Fosston in the District 30 tournament for the third straight year.

Seniors Jeanine Hammer, DeeAnn Clauson and Karen White join Lambert as returning letter winners to form the nucleus for this year's squad. Sophomore Shannon Olson, along with juniors Jean Lindquist and Debbie Lambert are also looking for playing time.

"This is a rebuilding year," admitted Hofstad, but she isn't conceding anything yet. "We'll still be in there," she predicted. In the area, Fosston, Clearbrook and Fertile figure to be strong, according to Hofstad.

Oklee will start play Tuesday at home against Ada.

Plummer

Plummer finished 14-5 a year ago and coach Dean Miller looks for more of the same in 1983 with four starters returning.

Back after seeing regular duty in 1982 are seniors Jodi Malwitz, Sandy Duden and Helen Jaeger, along with junior Jody Pahlen. Senior Renae Tervo and junior Lori Braaten were also letter winners last fall, with freshman Robin Brantl expected to challenge that group for playing time.

"Things are looking good," admitted Miller, whose main concern is finding setters to complement strong hitters in Pahlen, Duden and Brantl. "We've got the spiking power," he acknowledged.

Plummer opens the season Thurs., Sept. 8, at Goodridge. Miller looks for the Cardinals to be among the challengers in the Polar Conference, along with traditional powers Alvarado and Warren.

TRF Slow Pitch Squads Play In State Meet

Three Thief River Falls teams competed in men's state slow pitch softball tournaments during the weekend at three different sites.

American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods competed in the Class B state tournament at Owatonna, winning two and losing two in the 32-team, double-elimination format. The Thief River Falls entry opened with a 15-3 win over a Princeton team, lost an 8-3 game to a Hastings squad that was considered one of the tournament favorites, stayed alive with a 6-5 conquest of a Detroit Lakes opponent but was eliminated with a 6-5 loss to a Winona squad.

E.T.'s Bees played in the 32-team, double-elimination Class C state tournament at Marshall, losing two games.

Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn entered the Class D state tournament at St. Cloud, losing its opener 8-1 to a Swanville squad, posting a 5-2 victory over a St. Cloud foe before being sidelined with a 7-1 loss to a Blackduck team in the 32-team, double-elimination tournament.

Volleyball Season Starts Here Friday

Thief River Falls will host Detroit Lakes Friday in a 7:30 p.m. season-opening volleyball match at the Lincoln high school gym. Junior varsity play will start at 6:15.

Head coach Helen Anderson hopes the Prowlers can open the season with a victory that would help propel them to a winning record this fall after a 4-16 campaign in 1982.

"So far things are going really well," reported Anderson. "I'm looking forward to a win Friday."

Thief River Falls first-game starters will probably be seniors Missy Bondy and Kim Poole, plus juniors Leslie Weigand, Kristi Finney, Kelli Olson and Deb Opdahl. Juniors Patty Grabowska, a top-notch server, and Paula Bergan are expected to be the top reserves for the Prowlers, whose bench strength has been put into the questionable category because of a number of nuisance injuries and illness.

"Right now things are looking good," repeated Anderson, who said they're still working on receiving the serve and setting up the shots — the two things you have to do well to be successful in volleyball.

MINNESOTANS WILL become more familiar with these signs as TIP, Inc. increases its campaign to stop poaching in the state.

Turn In Poachers Program Expands

Turn In Poachers, Inc., (TIP) is increasing its war against Minnesota's fish and wildlife thieves, according to TIP president Robert P. Larson.

"We are currently mounting an educational campaign to make people more aware of TIP and our toll-free number for reporting poaching violations," Larson said. "That number is 800-652-9093.

TIP offers cash rewards for information leading to the arrest of fish and wildlife poachers. Usual reward for fish, small game and nongame species is $100. For big game and endangered species the reward is $250. Up to $1,000 is offered for information leading to the arrest of flagrant violators.

"Approximately two-thirds of the callers do not desire rewards," Larson noted. "Their reward is in seeing the thieves apprehended.

"Recently one sportsman called in from another state at his own expense to report a violation which he had witnessed on his vacation. The information led to the arrest of several people and thousands of dollars in fines. The caller would not accept a reward," he reported.

"We even had a case in which a known poacher supplied information on a person who had killed a big game animal. The informant was incensed because the person had not used the hide or meat from the animal," Larson said.

Wallet-sized stickers with the TIP phone numbers are available by writing TIP, Inc., Box 47, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

TIP, Inc. is a non-profit organization of concerned citizens who are interested in curbing the illegal taking of Minnesota fish and wildlife resources.

National Hunting, Fishing Day Supported By President Reagan

For the third year in a row, President Ronald Reagan has given his strong support to National Hunting and Fishing (NHF) Day and recognized America's hunters and fishermen for their historic contributions to conservation.

"Conserving our national and wildlife resources is one of the most important responsibilities we have to this and future generations of Americans," said the President in his statement for National Hunting and Fishing Day, September 24, 1983. "For nearly a century, our nation's hunters and fishermen have been in the forefront of efforts to preserve these natural assets and end the loss of essential animal habitats."

President called attention to significant financial contributions hunters and fishermen have made to conservation through license fees and special taxes on their equipment: "The $5 billion raised by sportsmen's self-imposed fees are largely responsible for the wildlife heritage we treasure today," he said. Continuing a theme from his 1982 statement where he described hunting and fishing as still relevant even in modern society, President Reagan pointed out that these activities "provide outstanding recreational opportunities" for 58 million Americans each year.

In addition to its recreational value, he pointed out that hunting plays an important part in scientific wildlife management programs as a means of keeping animal populations in balance with available habitats.

In closing his statement, the President urged all Americans to join with hunters and fishermen in their efforts "to ensure a bright future" for their country's natural and wildlife resources.

Saturday, September 24, marks the 12th annual celebration of National Hunting and Fishing Day. Since it was established in 1972, the event has earned the support of each president.

National Hunting and Fishing Day continues to grow in size and impact each year. Millions of sportsmen and non-sportsmen are expected to participate this year in more than 2,500 separate National Hunting and Fishing Day activities at sportsmen's clubs, schools, shopping centers and wildlife management areas across the country.

For information on how to participate in National Hunting and Fishing Day, write to NHF Day Headquarters, P.O. Box 1075, Riverside, CT 06878.

Hunting, Fishing License Sales Reach Record High

American hunters and anglers spent a record $486 million in 1982 on licenses, tags, permits, and stamps, Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt has announced.

Revenues from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses are used by the states to finance their fish and wildlife management programs. The numbers of license holders in each state are used to determine the amount of funds apportioned to the states under the "federal aid in fish and wildlife restoration" programs. Under these programs, the states are reimbursed for up to 75 per cent of the costs approved projects undertaken to benefit their fish and wildlife resources. For the current fiscal year, which ends September 30, 1983, $140 million was apportioned in federal aid funds for fish and wildlife conservation.

Total income collected from license sales in 1982 of all kinds was $31 million over fiscal year 1981 totals, including $259 million for hunting licenses (up $17 million from 1981) and $227 million for fishing licenses (up $14 million from 1981).

Total number of hunting license holders in the United States reported during fiscal year 1982 was 16,748,541 — up from 1981's total of 16,638,584.

Fishing license holders totaled 29,581,326, increasing from 29,277,241 as reported in 1981.

These figures only approximate the actual number of hunters and anglers in the United States. They do not include, for example, people who are exempt from paying a fee for hunting or fishing licenses. In many states, special provisions are made for senior citizens, people under 16 years of age, the handicapped and certain military personnel. Also, many coastal states do not require licenses for saltwater fishing. In addition, some people purchase licenses in more than one state and are counted more than once.

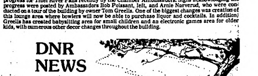
EXTENSIVE REMODELING at the Family Bowl on Highway 32 South, was recognized as more progress for Thief River Falls recently by the Chamber Ambassadors. Signs acknowledging the progress were posted by Ambassadors Bob Poissant, left, and Arnie Narverud, who were conducted on a tour of the building by owner Tom Greelis. One of the biggest changes was creation of this lounge area where bowlers will now be able to purchase liquor and cocktails. In addition, Greelis has created babysitting area for small children and an electronic games area for older kids, with numerous other decor changes throughout the building.



Flood Project

Construction has been started on a three million dollar project in Beltrami county that the Department of Natural Resources says will improve wildlife habitat and ease flood problems.

Project is located on the Moose River Wildlife Management Area and is a cooperative venture of the DNR, the Red Lake Watershed District and the Lower Red River Watershed Management Board.

It will involve the building of an earth fill dam 12 miles long and with a maximum height of 12 feet. A dike four miles long will be constructed to separate the project into two pools to be operated independently of each other.

North Pool will create 1400 acres of wetland habitat and provide for 9,750 acre feet of gate-controlled floodwater storage.

South Pool will provide, 2,700 acres of wetland habitat and 19,750 acre feet of floodwater storage. I addition, the project will increase low flows during the summer months, benefiting 90 miles of river within the Moose, Mud and Thief River systems.

Project will be operated in conjunction with both the Thief Lake State Wildlife Management Area and the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge located downstream.

Flood control benefits will extend to agricultural areas, the city of Crookston and, to a lesser degree, the city of East Grand Forks.

Completion of the project is scheduled in three years and it will be open to public hunting and recreation.

License Sales

Minnesota ranked first among 50 states in the sale of nonresident fishing licenses during fiscal year 1982.

Minnesota recorded 399,572 nonresident anglers. Wisconsin was second with 394,962 and Montana was third with 337,244.

Minnesota ranked third overall in sales of fishing license behind California and Texas. Minnesota recorded 1,677,611 paid fishing license holders compared to 2,480,158 in California and 1,909,503 in Texas.

Both states have populations that far exceed Minnesota's.

Tree Orders

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced that orders for tree planting stock to be shipped next spring (1984) will be accepted by the DNR Forestry Division beginning Sept. 1, 1983.

Orders will be accepted until March 15, 1984, or until supplies are exhausted. Orders for trees to be planted in the designated 14 southeast Minnesota counties will be accepted until January 13, 1984.

Tree seedlings are sold for the purposes of reforestation, windbreaks, shelterbelts, erosion control, soil and water conservation and for permanent food and cover for wildlife.

Trees may not be planted for ornamental purposes nor resold or given away with roots attached.

Cancellation or substitutions of any order will not be permitted after 30 days of the original order or March 1, whichever comes first.

Orders will be accepted on a first come first served basis.

Prices for seedlings are: conifer seedlings — $65 per $1000, $35 per 500 or $9 per 100; deciduous seedlings — $65 per 1000, $35 per 500 or $9 per 100; conifer transplants — $145 per 1000, $75 per 500 or $18 per 100; wildlife packet — $45 per packet.

Aid DNR Efforts

Four Redwood Falls sportsmen have demonstrated their dedication to the wildlife resource by donating several thousand dollars worth of trees to the Department of Natural Resources for use on wildlife management areas (WMA).

John Buckley and sons Jim, Paul and John, owners of Redwood Nursery, recently gave the Department of Natural Resources 1,200 Black Hills spruce to improve winter cover for wildlife.

About 1,000 of the trees were planted June 29 on the 742 acre Long Prairie WMA, located about four miles northeast of Browerville in Todd county. They will be the four row "heart" of the 1,100 foot long 10 row tree planting.

Remainder of the trees are being used as replacement stock in a number of existing tree plantings on the other WMA's.

Southwest regional wildlife supervisor Larry Nelson, who accepted the trees on behalf of the Department of Natural Resources, said the gift of trees "is just one of several received from the Buckley's during the last 13 years. Trees from their earliest donations are already providing the kind of cover necessary to bring wildlife through tough winters.

Separated Eggs Offer Varied Use

As an ingredient in recipes, eggs can be used whole or separated into yolk and white. Many recipes call for only egg yolk or white. Since the chemical properties of the yolk and white are vastly different, each serves a different function in recipes.

Most often the whites are used to leaven a mixture. Air is incorporated into whites when they are beaten, and they are folded into a mixture to lighten it. Since it can be beaten to a much more stable foam than either egg yolk or whole egg, egg white is often beaten separately.

Egg yolks, on the other hand, are often used as a thickener. When heated, the yolk coagulates or thickens. Usually, egg yolks are added to ingredients of a liquid-like consistency to turn them into sauces or are added to a sauce to bring it to a semi-solid consistency (like that of a baked custard). This coagulating ability also makes egg yolks useful in binding mixtures together, as in meat loaf.

Egg yolks are also used as an emulsifier to bind fats and liquids together. Without egg yolk to keep the oil suspended in the vinegar, mayonnaise would separate. Eggs are easiest to separate when taken directly from the refrigerator. The white will simply fall from the yolk when placed in an inexpensive egg separator. Most cooks, however, separate eggs by passing the yolk from shell half to shell half while the white falls into a bowl.

What do you do, though, with the other half once you've used either yolks or whites in your recipe? The most popular use for either extra yolks or whites seems to be adding them to whole eggs to be used for scrambling or in French toast batter. With a little imagination, you needn't be limited to these uses.

With egg whites, you can make several varieties of cakes, both cooked and uncooked frosting, hard or soft meringues, fruit whips or ices, divinity or meringue-type cookies, fruit salad dressings or souffles.

Egg yolks can be used in sponge cakes, cream pies, puddings, many sauces, mayonnaise and other salad dressings, baked or stirred custards, or used to thicken soups or gravies. You can also hard-cook an egg yolk just as you would a whole egg in the shell. Crumble or sieve the hard-cooked yolk over salads, vegetables or soups. It's a pretty and nutritious garnish.

To store extra egg whites for a week to 10 days, keep them in the refrigerator in a tightly-covered container. Be sure to mark the container as to the number of egg whites it contains. If you don't use all the stored whites in a single recipe, keep in mind that each egg white from a large egg measures 1½ tablespoons. For longer storage, egg whites may be frozen in tightly-sealed freezer-proof bags or plastic containers. If you like, first freeze each white in an ice cube tray and then transfer to a freezer-proof container.

Thaw frozen egg whites overnight in the refrigerator or under running cold water. Once thawed they will beat to a more substantial volume if allowed to sit at room temperature for about 30 minutes. Use the frozen, thawed whites just as you would use fresh egg whites.

To store egg yolks for two to three days or so, place them, unbroken, covered with cold water, in a tightly-sealed container in the refrigerator. Egg yolks may be frozen, but require special treatment and, when thawed, do not perform exactly the same as fresh yolks. The gelation property of the yolk causes it to thicken or gel when frozen.

If frozen "as is," an egg yolk will eventually become so gelatinous it will be almost impossible to use in a recipe. To help retard this gelation, you can add either ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons sugar or 1½ teaspoons corn syrup per ¼ cup (or 4) egg yolks. (Be sure to mark the container with the number of egg yolks and whether you've added salt, sugar or corn syrup. Each yolk measures about one tablespoon.) This does help to alleviate the gelation problem, somewhat.

When using egg yolks frozen in this manner, however, you may find that the finished product is quite a bit thicker than it would be if made with fresh egg yolks. The American egg board recommends you hard-cook extra egg yolks if you can't use them within a few days. It's easy to do. Carefully place the yolks in a saucepan and cover with tap water. Cover and bring just to boiling. Remove from the heat and let stand covered in the hot water for 18 minutes. Remove with a slotted spoon. These hard-cooked egg yolks can be stored in a tightly-sealed container in the refrigerator for about four to five days. Sieve the yolks for a garnish, devil them for a sandwich or just use as you would a hard-cooked egg.

Harvest Moon Lights Up The September Sky

The harvest moon, swollen and gold against the horizon, and earth tilting in its orbit to bring fall are features for September starwatching.

Looming large enough to light the fields for harvest in the days before tractors with headlights, the full golden moon nearest the autumnal equinox is traditionally called the harvest moon. This year it will be in full bloom September 22. Any object seen through all the layers of atmosphere between a viewer and the horizon will look redder, larger and somewhat distorted. Air scatters light rays, especially the shorter or bluer wavelengths, exaggerating the redder colors of the spectrum found in all natural light and spreading the color over a bit wider area of sky than the moon truly occupies. The same phenomenon is responsible for the palette of reds, oranges and pinks in sunrises and sunsets, and even for the blue sky.

The moon is about a fourth the size of earth and even when it moves a bit closer to the planet in its orbit, the moon hardly appears any bigger. Very large in relation to Earth — compared to other satellites and their planets in our solar system — the moon seems to have formed almost independently of earth and just far enough away to keep gravity from pulling it into contact with the planet. Both bodies condensed out of a nebula or solar cloud of dust and gaseous material that swirled around the forming sun some 4.6 billion years ago.

Since it is such a close companion, the moon has led to many legends, from the man-in-the-moon and his green cheese to the more bizarre. One wild story told in an 1835 newspaper series in The New York Sun said the moon was inhabited by bison-like creatures, round amphibious animals that rolled across its beaches and flocks of hairy, winged birds with faces like people. These "scientific discoveries" had supposedly just been made by a famous British astronomer with his newly invented seven-ton telescope. Readers apparently believed the accounts. Edgar Allan Poe, who was living in New York at the time, said: "So really eager were all to be deceived, so magical were the charms of style that . . . not one person in 10 discredited it."

The coming of fall, signalled by the autumnal equinox, is much easier to believe. As earth tilts through its yearly orbit around the sun, the slant at fall brings less direct sunlight and cooler temperatures to the northern hemisphere. The season begins this year on September 23 at 9:42 a.m. central daylight time.

On the first days of both autumn and spring, day and night are supposed to be of equal length. And they almost are. Slight differences in day length are created, though, by the atmosphere bending sunlight at the horizon, causing the sun to appear just above the horizon at both sunset and sunrise when it is actually just below (already set or not yet risen). This phenomenon adds a few minutes of sunlight to the balance.

Also affecting the equality of day and night is "uneven noon," said University of Minnesota astronomer Doug McElroy. Because earth's orbit of the sun is not a perfect circle, the planet moves a bit closer and a bit farther away from the sun throughout the year. This alters the position the sun seems to take at the peak of its path across the sky, throwing off true noon in sun time and so changing the length of daylight.

RIVER VALLEY . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad and Ethel Wiseth attended funeral rites for a relative, Mrs. Ida Nesteby, Wednesday at United church in Greenbush and afterwards were supper guests at the home of their daughter, the Jacobson's of rural Greenbush.

On an average weekend night, one out of every 10 drivers on the road is drunk.

DOT Explains MN Highway Right Of Way

Minnesota department of transportation would like to remind the public that all activities on highway rights of way are regulated by the department.

According to Ron Studer, Mn-DOT land management engineer, highway right of way widths can vary from a minimum of 40 feet on each side of centerline to 200 feet or more in some areas. It is necessary that the department maintains ownership of this property so they can properly maintain existing highways and preserve room for future construction.

Within this right of way, many activities are prohibited by law; including the operation of any motor vehicle off the highway shoulder, cultivation of land for agricultural purposes, cutting of timber, and placement of "for sale" signs and advertising signs. The erection of any fences or structures is also prohibited.

According to Studer, people who illegally use highway right of way or destroy or remove the triangular right of way markers are guilty of a misdemeanor. These activities also cause a considerable expense for the department of transportation as they try to monitor and maintain nearly two thousand miles of property lines in northwest Minnesota alone.

Persons planning improvements to their properties bordering a highway should make sure that they know where the highway boundary is. If the location of the boundary is in doubt, or if a person has any questions about possible uses of right of way property, he should contact the Mn-DOT permit offices in Crookston (218-281-3503, or Bemidji (218) 755-2942.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The Crisis in American Education

"For the first time in the history of our country, the educational skills of one generation will not surpass, will not equal, will not even approach, those of their parents."

—The National Commission on Excellence in Education

What's going on here? America has been built with an underlying faith in the constancy of progress. Tomorrow's plane will be faster. The next skyscraper will be taller. Most importantly, our children will be healthier, better off financially and better educated than we were. Now we are being told that the education of our children is inferior.

The recent commission report on the sorry state of American education goes on to warn us that we are falling behind our industrial competitors in Japan and Western Europe. This revelation is both frightening in its implication for our place in the world and unsettling. We are used to being and having the best. The biggest, the fastest, the first.

Yet by any standard of measure our elementary and secondary schools are in decline. The average Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, combining verbal and mathematical ability, declined from 980 in 1963 to 890 in 1980. This while the SAT's were actually made easier.

What can account for this decline in academic excellence? Not to mention the increased violence in our nation's classrooms, the epidemic of drug use and teenage pregnancies.

The politicians in Washington and the educational establishment offer a simple solution. Spend more money. Former Vice President Mondale has demanded we add an additional $11 billion in federal spending for education. Senator Ernest Hollins (D-S.C.) has gone Mondale one better and endorsed a $14 billion hike.

But will more money buy a better education for our children?

Since 1950, spending by all levels of government on elementary and secondary education has increased more than 2,000 per cent or 20 times — $6 billion to more than $110 billion. Per pupil spending on kindergarten through high school has almost doubled in a decade to $2,917 per student.

We have tried the route of spending ever-increasing sums of the taxpayers' dollars and it simply hasn't worked.

The same self-styled experts advise us to give more control over budgets, curricula and educational policy to Washington. Yet, since 1963, federal spending for education has increased more than 600 per cent in real terms and the Department of Education now spends more than $15 billion each year. That same department employs more than 5,000 bureaucrats who pull down salaries averaging over $31,000. It has issued edicts, regulations and court injunctions to the point where federal regulations on education now fill 1,000 pages of the Code of Federal Regulations. But bureaucrats busily building little empires in our nation's capital have not taught our children to read and enjoy Shakespeare. Reams of regulations have not enabled our sons and daughters to compete in our new technological age.

President Reagan has urged the nation to transfer more responsibility for education back to parents and the 16,000 local school districts across America. And yes, to the students themselves. This suggestion has been met with a cold shoulder from those who have built their careers — and justified their salaries — by concentrating power and control in Washington.

The decline of our nation's schools occurred just as we were drastically increasing expenditures on education and concentrating more and more authority in Washington. But there was another development that played a role in the declining performance of our schools.

In 1962, only 71,000 teachers, a samll fraction of the total, were unionized. By 1976, more than 2.2 million teachers had joined public sector unions with bargaining clout and the ability and willingness to strike. Indeed, since 1963 we have seen more than 2,500 teachers' strikes disrupting school years and putting more power in the hands of the unions and less in the hands of parents and elected school boards.

While productivity in the private sector increased 84 per cent, the productivity of public education fell by 46 per cent as the number of teachers continued to increase as the baby boom ended and class size dropped.

These unions — the largest and most powerful being the National Education Association with 1.7 million members — have opposed merit pay and competency testing for teachers and standardized tests for students.

It is time for parents to realize that giving up control over their children's education to the NEA and the education establishment was a mistake. It has been awfully expensive.

And it didn't work.

NORDEN . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Russ Lane were Thursday noon dinner guests of the Curtis Geatz family in Thief River and enjoyed an afternoon boat ride. Wednesday morning Marvin Moen was a coffee guest at the Lane home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Jensen and Joshua were Thursday evening visitors at the Herb Torstveit home in St. Hilaire.

From the 136 billion pounds of milk produced in 1982, U.S. dairy plants manufactured 4,431,982,000 pounds of cheese, 1,258,853,000 pounds of butter, and 1,186,037,000 gallons ice cream.

A lot of Americans think hypertension has easily identifiable symptoms. The fact is, however, hypertension (also called high blood pressure), usually has no symptoms and can go unrecognized for years before congestive heart disease, kidney failure, or stroke is the result. Because of this many people are unaware they have the disease. According to the American Heart Association, only 18 million of the 35 million Americans who have definite high blood pressure know it. This is a major reason regular check-ups are so important.

Doctors now have several new drugs to control high blood pressure. One in particular makes it easier for many people to remember to take their high blood pressure medication. Called Tenormin, it's from Stuart Pharmaceuticals and it can provide 24-hour blood pressure control with a single tablet daily, simplifying prescribing and enhancing compliance. One tablet per day reduces blood pressure smoothly and predictably with no tolerance reported even after long-term use.

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

As a kid, I walked two miles to elementary school. In the last two blocks, I always passed an appliance store with 20-year-old refrigerators featured in the window, models that never changed. When I became a full-fledged adult, I finally discovered that this appliance store was really a "bookie" operation run by the mafia.

There was a school patrol policeman at this corner where the appliance store was located for all of those 20 years. He helped us across a very busy street intersection. He must have noticed that no one ever went in and out of the front door of that appliance store, and no one could have been interested in those very old refrigerators which carried two decades of dust. But that didn't seem to have much of an impact on the store's continuing operation.

Many years later I was looking for a special kind of factory. I found that factory owned by a small public company that was not operating, but had sold public stock and was listed in a crime commission report as crime syndicate controlled. No one seemed to be following up on this company and whether it had properly even tried to make a profit for shareholders who had invested millions. In discussing purchase of this plant, I met a very competent individual, representing the owners. This year, I was shocked when he was shot and mentioned as a key member of the mafia.

Later in life, as president of a mini-conglomerate, I was asked to visit an empty factory building. One of my companies could have used the building. I became interested until I got a phone call indicating that if I continued showing interest in that building, I would end up with two broken legs and some difficulty in walking. The caller identified himself. The town attorney confirmed the caller's position.

The point — for many years we have had a criminal syndicate with many names, Mafia, La Costra Nostra, The Family, and more, operating throughout the United States. This criminal element, identified by crime investigating groups, who publish and distribute reports, keeps operating. The leaders keep living in the best suburban areas and homes. They make good neighbors. Their kids go to regular schools and appear to be nice children while their fathers terrorize business and neighborhoods, controlling drugs and much more.

I am not a policeman, nor have I had any training to become a detective. But when there are so many allegations about the crime syndicate and its leaders, it would appear that the Department of Justice, federally, with appropriate state assistance, ought to be able to "clean up" the mess, plus its centrally controlled prostitution, gambling and other rackets.

In one construction project, I noticed both winter and summer, gardeners out in the area landscaping or just standing around near one home. I later discovered from neighbors that this home was owned by the crime syndicate leader for that area. Everyone knew who this man was and what he did for a living. He finally was arrested and released for a very minor violation, having more doves in a trunk freezer of his car than the law allowed, a hunting violation.

Recently a man was shot in Chicago. He had been found guilty of certain crimes, and it was alleged that he had been involved with crime syndicate officials. They shot him in the head enough times to be sure that the pieces could not be put back together again. The same men, apparently, tried to eliminate the "regional bookkeeper" for the syndicate, but someone's aim was bad and while he was "hit", he survived and is talking to the "feds."

I can understand from all of my exposure to 007 movies and many books that the criminal can be devious. But I do have a hard time understanding why the criminal justice system has so much difficulty catching these crooks when an appliance store sits for 20 years without a change in its window display (no one even took the time to dust these ancient appliances) . . . or when companies are formed and sell stock and bonds to the public, and then are mysteriously liquidated with little or nothing for the investors. All that plus the more blatant indications that the syndicate does exist and is prospering.

A free country should have enough freedom to allow its citizens to be able to walk in peace at night. I think that equally disturbing as the syndicate operations are some other crime facts: (1) In New York City, two per cent of the people can expect to be murdered, raped, robbed or assaulted each year; and (2) in the states of California, Arizona, Nevada and the cities of Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco, at least seven per cent of the people can expect to be burglarized or have their autos stolen each year.

Why isn't more being done to solve this crime problem?

That's Straight Talk!

Volunteers Are Important To Cub Day Camp

Director Mary Stengrim of the Cub scout day camp conducted recently at the Pennington county fairgrounds for about 160 boys in 13 packs in northwestern Minnesota has credited a number of area individuals and businesses for a successful event.

Volunteer staff conducted the many activities intended to provide the scouts with an entertaining camp program. Among the leaders of the various committees were the following:

Registration, RoseAnn Feragen; field sports, Mary Nordhagen and Doug Henke; crafts, Sue Dowers; skills and chariots, Pat Murphy; nature, Diane Larson; miscellaneous, Louise McLean and Sandy Sanden; rockets, Shawn Heinze and Jon Giles; riflery, John Dewerd and Dustin Brooks; archery, Mike McLean; songs, skits and yells, Shawn Fremstad, Mark Anderson and Mauri Torgerson; and nurses, Margaret Race, Ruth Coltom, Claire Thompson and Lorraine Seaverson.

Diane Puetz and Junelle Williamson provided adult guidance for the baby-sitting service conducted by Leslie Engen, Jenny Lane, Edna Johnson, Kerry Helle, Dawn Lambert, Crystal Sorgeberg, Annetta Woods, Stephanie and Theresa Altepeter, Kari Swenson, Nada Sanden and Christy Puetz.

Boy scouts from Crookston and Thief River Falls volunteered their time to assist in conducting the camp program. Among them were Bill Nygaard, John Giles, Shawn Heinze, Mike Puetz, Aaron Marshall, Tony Hoffard, David Stengrim, Jeff Shafland, Jeff Feragen, John and Greg Hall, David Novak, Jack Sculthorp, John Dewerd, Mark Anderson and Dustin Brooks.

In addition to the business places which contributed money and merchandise, acknowledgement was given by Mrs. Stenberg to chairman Skip Swanson and the county fair association for use of the fairgrounds, Paul Bedard for assisting with the egg drop, city utilities department for use of the boom truck, Jaycees for use of their food stand, Art Heinze for help at the Webelos overnighter and pot luck supper, Marlys Olson and Alice Lavine for handling the trading post, Peggy Bruzek and Louise McLean for making egg drop awards, Mike McLean and Orris Stengrim for putting up the monkey bridge and the Times for photo coverage of the week's events.

Barley Trade Group Hosted At Crookston

Dr. Larry Smith, superintendent, University of Minnesota, Northwest experiment station, Crookston, and Dr. George Marx, dairy scientist at the station, hosted the Japanese government barley mission recently.

Japan is expected to import approximately 1,500,000 metric tons (MT) of barley during fiscal year 1983. This represents 94 per cent of the total demand for feed use. Canada and Australia have been the major suppliers for the past 10 years under an annual supply agreement with these two countries, however, the origination of grain is largely dependent upon supply availability, export interest and prices quoted by suppliers.

The goal of this mission from Japan was to become better informed on current U.S. barley production and transportation capability.

A number of farmers representing barley interests in northwestern Minnesota accompanied the Japanese guests. They were given a short background on the Minnesota experiment station and a tour through the livestock area by Dr. Marx, who related specifically to the feeding and nutritional experiences at the station.

No-Till Drill Can Be Rented At Grygla

No-till drill for small grain crops is now available, according to Steve Wangeman, district conservationist at Bemidji. This latest model in no-till or reduced tillage technology can be rented for $5 per acre. The TYE no-till drill, available through the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district, plants equally well in no-till, reduced tillage or conventionally tilled seed beds.

Purpose of the SWCD involvement is to promote conservation tillage, Wangeman said. Conservation tillage consists of any method of tillage that reduces soil erosion. In all cases, a percentage of the surface is left covered with crop residue. In some cases, as in no-till situations, no primary tillage occurs and the total past crop residue remains on the surface.

Conservation tillage systems will reduce the fuel and the time needed to cover any given amount of acres. Weed control is not a major problem but does need consideration before entering the no-till or reduced till systems. A standard recommendation for farmers just starting out in conservation tillage is to work with as weed-free a field as possible unless they have a very sound knowledge of chemical weed controls.

Knowledge of soil texture and drainage class is very important for determining the proper level of surface residue cover. Not all situations produce the desired effect. Very wet soils, for example, are not recommended for 100 per cent surface cover because of the residue's effect on lowering soil temperature. All soils, however, have an optimum level of residue cover for any particular crop.

Check with your local soil conservation service and soil and water conservation district for detailed information and management considerations for your soil, Wangeman suggests. Those interested in trying conservation tillage in the Marshall-Beltrami area can make arrangements to rent the Beltrami county no-till drill. The drill will be delivered to the farm and a staff member will help adjust it for seedbed conditions.

More Funding Allocated For Weatherizing

Minnesota department of economic security has received a federal grant of $5,392,626 from the department of energy to weatherize an additional 3,700 homes of low-income families in 1983, according to commissioner Barbara Beerhalter.

Weatherized homes are more energy efficient, thus reducing the fuel bills of the state's poor, she said.

The additional funding will allow the program to maintain a statewide workforce of 600 people performing the weatherization services. Community action agencies, counties and American Indian reservations will operate the program statewide.

In this area, Inter-County Community action program will receive $97,246 of the statewide allocation. Information is available by calling 796-5144. Northwest community action agency at Karlstad will receive $62,516. Call 528-3258.

Inter-County community action program serves Clearwater, East Polk, Red Lake and Pennington counties. Northwest community action agency serves Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods and East Marshall counties.

To qualify for weatherization help, families must have total income that falls below established federal levels. The qualifying amount for a single person is $6,075. For a family of four it is $12,375.

Alan Chapman, director of the state weatherization program, said this additional money will bring to 16,000 the total number of homes receiving weatherization assistance this year.

"Since the program started in 1978, more than 74,000 homes in Minnesota have been weatherized with help from federal and state funds," Chapman said. Before the work is started, Chapman said that houses to be weatherized will be given an energy audit to determine what improvements are needed.

Meet Set For Small Cities Grant Program

Minnesota department of energy and economic development and the Headwaters regional development commission will sponsor an informational workshop on the state small cities grants program in Bemidji on September 27 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"The purpose of the workshop is to acquaint local government officials — and interested citizens — with the small cities grants program for fiscal year 1984," said Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls. "There will be grant application manuals and grant application forms at the workshop."

Sparby says that $22 million is available for 1984 small cities grants. "Of that amount," he said, "$9.9 million is for single purpose projects, $6.2 million is for comprehensive grants, and $5.9 million is set aside for continuing comprehensive projects approved in 1983."

The application deadline for the program is Feb. 1, 1984.

Suggests Whole Milk Be Used In School Lunch

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has asked Agriculture Secretary John Block to consider a change in national school lunch (NSL) program rules which do not require schools to offer whole milk to students.

"If schools were required to offer students that choice, we could save tax dollars for surplus dairy purchase and provide an opportunity for greater nutrition for our students," Stangeland said in a letter to Block.

Until a few years ago, whole milk was the standard for the NSL program. Then new regulations allowed schools to serve skim milk.

"Many of my constituents are concerned that regulations allow schools to serve only skim milk, while schools that offer only whole milk are not in compliance with the program," he said. "The rules should be changed to require schools to at least make whole milk available as a choice for students.

The Congressman noted that significant federal savings could be made by reducing U.S. purchases of surplus dairy goods.

"Over three billion 'half-pints' were served during the 1981-82 school year under the NSL program," he said. "Because nearly four pounds of butter go into surplus government storage for every 100 pounds of skim milk, we could make marked savings by replacing some of that skim milk with whole milk in the schools."

Congressman Stangeland also noted that there seems to be a noticeable nutritional difference between whole milk and skim milk.

"When you convert whole milk to skim milk, you remove all of the vitamin A, all of the vitamin D, most of the lipase, one-third of the calcium, and proportionate amounts of the magnesium, phosphorus, sodium, potassium, chlorine, sulfur and citric acid," he said.

"All of the seven major enzymes found in milk are also reduced and large amounts of vitamins E, K, C, biotin, niacin, riboflavin, thiamin, B-6 and B-12 are also removed," Congressman Stangeland said.

Maplelag is located nine miles east of Callaway — three miles on County Road 14 and six miles on County Road 34.

THE FAMILY: GOD'S PATTERN FOR LIVING FILM SERIES

Even though you're a Christian, you may not have a Christian home . . . as the Scripture defines it. This film series will show you, through God's Word, how you can build the kind of families God can really bless. John MacArthur, Jr. is a respected pastor, author, and radio speaker. This stirring verse-by-verse presentation is a result of his studying the Bible for over 25 hours a week for years.

THE POWER ABOVE

In the days when we took energy for granted those high-tension lines were an eyesore. Now as they sweep across our hills and valleys they somehow seem less intrusive.

Let the energy crunch remind you that there is another Source of power upon which life depends. God's concern for humanity did not cool after our creation. Virtually all the world's religions stress the belief that He continues to provide for our needs—spiritual and physical.

There is then no shortage of The Power Above. Our churches and synagogues strive to bring us and our families into close and continuing contact with it. Religious worship and the study of spiritual truth are as essential to the character of humanity as power lines are to our industries.

No Excuse On Deficits

Followings editorial is from the Washington Post:

Politicians have learned to trust economists about as much as lab mice trust biologists. For some reason, they think the experiments may not do them much good.

They distrust the economists' jargon, their methods, their models, their forecasts, their switches and their equivocations. So they tend to take refuge in the fact that economists often disagree with each other.

But this is one of those rare times when the economists are leaving the politicians very little wiggle room. If the economists are wrong, they are almost unanimous in their error. If they are right, the politicians have no excuse not to act.

In the last few weeks, three eminent economists — all of whom have headed the president's Council of Economic Advisors (CEA) — have given their views to three sets of politicians. No differences in theory, methodology or partisianship clouded their crystal balls.

Martin Feldstein, Republican and current chairman of President Reagan's CEA, gave his description in late July to the Senate Banking Committee. A few days later, Alan Greenspan, Republican and chairman of President Gerald Ford's CEA, laid it out for the National Governors Association. And, 10 days after that, Charles L. Schultze, Democrat and chairman of President Jimmy Carter's CEA, drew the picture for the National Conference of State Legislators. This is what they said:

The powerful recovery now underway can and should continue for the balance of 1983, without reigniting the danger of inflation. It will slow "at a fairly dramatic rate" (Greenspan), "substantially" (Feldstein) or "significantly" (Schultze) as we move into 1984 and rebuilding inventories catch up to sales.

Further economic gains may not be aborted, but will almost certainly be distorted, by the impact of abnormally high real interest rates. Those rates will damage the housing and construction industries, cripple export sales, limit the attractiveness of capital spending and investment, and leave defense and consumer products to carry the whole burden of sustaining forward momentum.

The main reason for the abnormally high, destructive interest rates, they all said, is the inability of the federal government to discipline its own spending. The seeming inevitability of continuing annual deficits in the range of $200 billion casts a dark shadow on the economic horizon.

If the government could produce a realistic plan for reducing those deficits, all three economists see the genuine prospect of a golden age — a time of low inflation, real productivity growth, improved international competitiveness and job-and-profit producing economic expansion.

But Greenspan and Schultze say (with incumbent Feldstein maintaining a discreet silence) there is no prospect of a serious political negotiation between the Republican president and Senate and the Democratic House of Representatives until after the 1984 election.

Without such an agreement, they say, chances are we will bump along through 1984, risking a miscalculation by the Federal Reserve Board or a tremor in the world economic situation that could cut the recovery off at the knees. Absent an agreement, the risk will grow steadily until it becomes almost an inevitability.

The outlines of the needed grand compromise are clear to the economists of both parties: an agreement to slow the growth of both the defense budget and entitlement (Social Security and Medicare) spending, combined with measures to recover some of the tax revenues grandly squandered in the last 30 months of federal tax cuts.

Greenspan called for an "economic summit" to hammer out such a deal — as soon as the victors on the 1984 election are reassembled in Washington in January 1985. But given the stakes for this country and the world, a delay is unconscionable.

If we faced a military threat, or a natural disaster, no one would dare hang a sign on Pennsylvania Avenue saying, "Congress and White House Out to Lunch. Back in 17 Months."

The voters of this country don't have to accept such cavalier treatment from the politicians. Anyone who is out campaigning — and they all will be this fall, from the president on down — should be told, "Before you ask my support, tell me what you are doing now to get a handle on the deficits that can destroy our future." If they don't have a good answer, tell them they've lost your support.

The economists have given the politicans no excuse. Neither should voters.

Oppose Tax Dollars For Campaigning

Following comments were written by U.S. Rep. Bill Frenzel:

Newspaper and television commentators around the country are berating political action committees (PACs), telling how good it would be for the country if they were outlawed or restricted. Why do you suppose they don't like PACs?

How could they object to a group of ordinary citizens pooling their modest resources to participate in the political process? Despite the furor over "the growing influence of PAC's," political action committees have held at a steady 23 per cent of total campaign funding for the past three elections.

So what do the PAC critics really want?

They want taxpayer financing of federal elections.

They want the price tag on our congressional elections to be paid out of the federal treasury. This, they said, is the only "fair" system.

But how fair is it?

It isn't fair to challengers. Taxpayer financing would give incumbents an enormous advantage. We, incumbent congressmen, already carry a big advantage with us into every reelection campaign. We have high name recognition, free mailing privileges, easy access to the news media, and we've usually built up a lot of goodwill around the district by helping our constituents with their problems over the prior two years. If you would put a dollar value on this advantage of incumbency, some experts say it would be as high as $300,000 in campaign spending. In other words, a challenger would have to spend $300,000 just to achieve the recognition which the incumbent has from the start.

Under the public financing system proposed by PAC critics, both the incumbent and the challenger would be limited to $200,000. The challengers would spent their $200,000 as shrewdly as they know how. But how could it stand up against the equivalent of $500,000 enjoyed by the incumbents? It wouldn't.

Taxpayer financing isn't fair to candidates of average means either. There is no way, says the Supreme Court, to prevent wealthy candidates from spending any amount of their own money on their campaign.

And there's no way to prevent inedpendent committees from spending as much as they want trying to "help" a candidate they do not officially represent.

Under a system of public financing, the private money would not just shrivel up and disappear. Much of it would be funneled into independent (and therefore largely unaccountable) groups. If you want to encourage the kind of negative campaigning which has often been the tactic employed by groups, then by all means support taxpayer financing. The spending limits will keep the people out, but let the wealthy and "the interest groups" in.

Finally, taxpayer financing isn't fair to the people either. Poll after poll has shown that the American people do not favor the public financing of congressional elections. They don't want to be forced to support candidates and parties they don't like. A recent Civic Service, Inc., poll showed 65 per cent of Americans disapproved of federal funds being used to pay the cost of congressional campaigns.

But the most important poll is the one the federal government itself takes every year on April 15th. The very first line on IRS Form 1040 says, "Do you want $1 to go to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund?" More than 70 per cent of American taxpayers say "NO."

Who can blame them?

Interesting Opinions:

"Look at PIK as a life support system that is attached to a very sick patient. As a life support system, it's temporary, expensive and if agriculture doesn't respond and show it can run on its own, the taxpayers are going to pull the plug. Farmers are no longer Uncle Sam's favorite nephews."

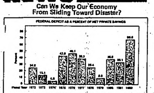
NEWS OF THE ECONOMY

Can We Keep Our Economy From Sliding Toward Disaster?



SOURCE: DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

The U.S. Government will spend about $200 billion more this year than it will take in taxes—if the economy shows recovery. If recovery is weak or abortive, that $200 billion could surge alarmingly.

Next year and the year after, the deficit will be just as large!—unless we do something.

Deficits are financed by borrowing. Washington is, in fact, the most gargantuan borrower in the country. To finance the current deficit, the government will have to borrow 60 percent of all private savings—money available for lending and investment in the United States.

At the bottom of a recession, Federal borrowing may not seriously affect the cost of funds available to people and businesses.

But as the economy recovers Uncle Sam should get out of credit markets. Money for lending and investment should go to business and industry for new plants, equipment and jobs, to consumers for houses or automobiles.

If that doesn't happen, if government continues to require more than half of all the credit available—even during economic recovery—interest rates will rise. Rising interest rates will ultimately choke off the recovery. And we will be back on the downward path to economic stagnation.

We will have to decide what we want from our government, and recognize we may have to pay for these decisions through higher taxes. But these decisions won't be easy—and they will only be reached if the debate focuses on balance and fairness.

If we are to succeed, defense, entitlements and taxes will have to be reviewed. The course we set must be fair and equitable to all Americans; it must assure an adequate defense and a humane society; it must be economically sound; and it must be politically realistic and workable.

It means sharing a vision of a future in which we pass on to the next generation an America as rich in opportunity as the one we ourselves were given.

It means sharing a determination to win out in this crisis, as we have in so many others throughout our past.

Watch Out For Ulcers

Surprising to many is just how many people suffer from duodenal ulcers. The current estimate is about four million.

While many people believe that the typical ulcer candidate is the driven business executive, that's not necessarily true. Although a specific cause of duodenal ulcers isn't known it has been established that the incidence of duodenal ulcers is 70 percent higher among smokers than among nonsmokers.

Interestingly, a bland diet of small, frequent meals and lots of milk and cream is no longer considered the best treatment for ulcers. Patients on normal diets have been found to heal as well or faster.

A duodenal ulcer is a serious problem. If you have frequent or constant stomach pain, see your doctor.

Moreover, a healed duodenal ulcer doesn't mean the trouble is over. Studies have shown that 80 percent of patients will have a recurrence within the first year of healing.

How To Shape Up Your Space

Ceiling Details Modernize Room

A rich wood grid can hide a high ceiling and open your home to interesting decorating possibilities.

High ceilings can spell a tall order when it comes to decorating your home. One way to solve this problem beautifully is by lowering the ceiling with an attractive overhead grid system that gives you the richness of wood.

This do-it-yourself project can be accomplished at a fraction of the cost of installing a new ceiling and opens your decorating horizons to unlimited possibilities.

A little do-ahead planning will make this an easy-does-it job. Because of the ceiling grid size, plan to do the assembly and finishing in the same room where it will be installed.

To save on sawdust, most of the pieces can be cut in a workshop and brought to the room for assembly. Cover carpeting with plastic drop cloths or tarp before you start.

Measure the room carefully and decide how close to the side walls you want the grid to fit. Make it a couple of feet narrower than the side walls to allow space to attach the grid to the ceiling joists. Add ceiling lights around the edge if you like.

The completed grid will be heavy, so be sure your screwhooks and chains are strong enough to suspend the frame from your ceiling joists.

Pointers for PARENTS

CHILDREN AND MONEY MANAGEMENT

Make money management a family matter. Getting children involved in family financial affairs provides excellent training in the how-to's of money management and strengthens family relationships. To help parents who wish to instruct youngsters in this important area, the Money Management Institute of Household International has published an informative booklet titled CHILDREN AND MONEY MANAGEMENT.

This booklet discusses allowances, handouts, cash gifts and jobs inside and outside the home, in addition to such common money problems as losing or hoarding money, overspending and stealing. CHILDREN AND MONEY MANAGEMENT also covers such topics as setting up a simple spending plan, shopping and saving, opening a checking account, using credit and stock ownership.

Since ours is often a "now" society, one of instant gratification, young people need careful training to resist the pressures of radio, television and peers plus the temptation of having more money to spend than some previous generations.

To obtain a copy of CHILDREN AND MONEY MANAGEMENT, send 75¢ and your name and address to Money Management Institute, Dept. S, Household International, 2700 Sanders Road, Prospect Heights, Illinois 60070.

Pennington 4-H Youth Excelled At State Fair

With 40 Pennington county 4-H members participating in the Minnesota state fair during the first encampment, August 25-27, local clubs were well represented. Competing with 6,500 4-H members from every county in the state, "local club members excelled in their area," according to Deborah Matero, county extension agent.

Among those bringing home ribbons for their exhibits were the following: Lorie Reierson, City View 4-H club, blue ribbon, child care; Tom Mickelson, Kratka 4-H club, blue ribbon, My Flower Garden; Peter Nygard, Sanders 4-H club, red ribbon, veterinary science; Penny Mills, Satellite 4-H club, red ribbon, home environment; and Fay Erickson, Smiley 4-H club, red ribbon, photography.

Happy Acres 4-H club was well represented with Collette Thune taking a purple ribbon in advanced clothing construction; Susie Thune a purple ribbon in intermediate clothing construction; Lisa Rahn a red ribbon in food revue; and Julie Finstad a participation ribbon in fashion revue.

Mavie 4-H club also did well, with Twyla Svendsgaard taking a blue ribbon in lawn and landscape; Mary Rogalla a blue ribbon in indoor gardening; and Kay Kainz a participation ribbon in fashion revue.

Silverton 4-H club exhibitors took nine ribbons, with Jerry Bjerke getting a blue in agronomy, Lana Wagner a blue in needlework, Karla Rupprecht a blue in food education; Cindi Russell a white in food preservation, Loren Haagenson a blue in conservation; Lynn Skibicki a blue in shop, Dale Nelson a blue in electricity, Brenda Russell a red in vegetable gardening, and Kristi Rupprecht recognized as a children's center teen coordinator.

Matero noted that among the many 4-H activities at the fair this year, demonstrations seemed especially creative. Among those winning awards were Stephanie Dagen and Coreen Larson of City View 4-H club, who got a purple ribbon for their demonstration on nutrition; Julie Finstad and Jackie Thune of Happy Acres 4-H club, who got a blue ribbon for their demonstration on "Pirogis"; and Kristine Sorteberg and Faye Erickson of Smiley 4-H club who got a blue ribbon for their demonstration titled, "Early Start with Flip and Flop."

In addition, Jenny Lane and Edna Johnson of the Sanders 4-H club participated in "Youth in Action" demonstrations, attempting to sell the public on the idea of making their own soap.

Share the Fun acts were another popular attraction, with crowds attending the fair. Pennington county was represented by the City View 4-H club's act, "The Andy Simmons Show," directed by Judy Melby and Dawn Berard. Performers in the show included Kelly Amundgaard, Cindy Anderson, Denise Ayers, Colleen Belmont, Julie Berard, Stephanie Dagen, Jodi Fimrite, Sarah Gonsorowski, Marie Gonsorowski, Marit Hulteen, Coreen Larson, Becky Melby, Lorie Reierson, Tammy Niemi, Lorie Anderson and Andy Melby.

Livestock shows were scheduled for September 2-4, with the auction set September 5. Names of winners will be published when they become available.

"Minnesota's state fair marks the culmination of a year's hard work and learning for many of our 4-H'ers," noted Matero, adding, "We are proud of their accomplishments and their growth."

Girl Scouts To Register September 8

Registration will be held for Thief River Falls Girl Scouts, Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Seniors on Thursday, September 8, from 7 to 8 p.m. All girls are to register at their respective schools except for those attending Mark Twain and Knox schools who will register at the Franklin middle school library.

Parent or guardian should accompany each girl to help with registration. Dues of $3 can be paid at this time.

It is also noted that adult volunteers are needed. Interested persons should call Kittie Cornell at 681-3449.

"THE SEWING SISTERS" could be a title applied to Susie (left), Collette (center) and Jackie Thune, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Thune of Thief River Falls. Susie and Collette recently earned the top awards of purple ribbons in the intermediate and advanced divisions of 4-H clothing construction competition at the Minnesota state fair. Two purple ribbon winners from a single county is considered extremely rare, and such placement by sisters is unique. In addition, Jackie was Pennington county style revue queen and could have competed in the state 4-H fashion revue, possibly adding an unprecedented third purple ribbon. Instead, she elected to take the state fair trip earned with her horse and will compete in the state horse show September 19, 20 and 21. A feature on the sisters will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Says 4-Year Crop Losses $194 Million In Area

"In seeking solutions to the disaster caused by the 1983 drought, we must not ignore the needs of farmers in other areas," Congressman Arlan Stangeland said today. "The drought is a one-year disaster for corn belt farmers, while northwest Minnesota farmers have faced graver problems for the past four years.

"Farmers in just four counties have lost nearly $200 million in crops damaged by natural disasters in my area during the past four years," he said. "An overall relief plan must not ignore the specific needs of Minnesota."

Congressman Stangeland will attend a "drought summit meeting" in Chicago Friday to stress the importance of improving existing disaster-relief programs while considering new proposals for easing farmers through the 1983 drought. Agriculture secretary John Block has invited Congressmen and governors from drought-stricken states to the 1 p.m. meeting.

"My real concern is that Secretary Block not lose sight of the real need for relief under existing programs for farm families in northwest Minnesota," he said.

Last week, Rep. Stangeland compiled losses from natural disasters which farmers have faced in just four of the Congressman's 23 counties. The figures:

	Polk	Pennington	Marshall	Red Lake	Totals
1980........	$48,250,000	$13,200,000	$34,920,000	$ 7,560,000	$103,930,000
1981........	$ 7,000,000*	$ 2,400,000	$ 7,000,000*	$ 7,560,000	$ 23,960,000
1982........	$ 7,000,000*	$13,200,000	$ 7,000,000*	$ 8,820,000	$ 36,020,000
1983........	$ 7,000,000*	$10,560,000	$ 7,000,000*	$ 6,090,000	$ 30,650,000
TOTALS....	$69,250,000	$39,360,000	$55,920,000	$30,030,000	$194,560,000

(* indicates estimated figures from counties where exact figures were not compiled)

"An estimated 3,000 farm families were affected by the disasters," Congressman Stangeland said. "That is an average loss of $64,000 per farm family in these counties over four years. It is easy to see the impact of such losses on a local economy."

While summit leaders focus on the 1983 drought, Congressman Stangeland will renew his call for the release of $600 million in emergency economic loans which Secretary Block has been holding in reserve.

"I'm not going there to talk only about the drought," he said. "I am going to point out that Federal Crop insurance is not sufficient to cover these types of disaster losses. I want Secretary Block to use his administrative authority to find better and quicker ways to get relief to farmers. Legislation will not be fast enough for farmers hit by the 1983 disasters."

Area Counties Among 79 With Tax Increases

Seventy-nine counties in the state witnessed over-all net property tax increases in 1983 while only eight counties showed actual decreases in taxes, according to the Minnesota Taxpayers association. Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties all had net increases.

According to Don Paterick, executive director of the association, "the average statewide net increase was 11.6 per cent in 1983. In dollar amounts taxes increased $198 million over 1982, totaling $1.9 billion in net collections in 1983.

"While I feel this rate of increase is definitely on the high side," Paterick said, "it is not the nightmare we saw last year when property taxes rose 24 per cent which was the highest in history. Aside from last year, the 1983 increase is the highest since the 12.2 per cent rise in 1977. Between 1977 and 1982, Minnesota was in a state of property tax bliss, with property tax increases averaging only 3.3 per cent per year."

In Pennington county, net property taxes increased $269,233 or 6.04 per cent. Assessed values increased $4,525,770 or 6.21 per cent. The average mill rate fell from 88.91 to 88.14 mils.

In Marshall county, net property taxes increased $632,066 or 10.96 per cent. Assessed values increased from $118,233,404 in 1982 to $126,640,442 in 1983 or 7.12 per cent. The average mill rate increased 1.89 per cent from 68.97 or 70.28.

Red Lake county had a net property tax increase from $2,135,191 to $2,412,356 or 12.98 per cent. The assessed valuation rose 16.95 per cent from $34,112,773 in 1982 to $39,894,780 in 1983 while the average mill rate dropped 4.25 per cent from 88.19 to 84.44.

According to MTA data, which is based on information compiled by the department of revenue, total local levies in the state increased by $235 million or 10.2 per cent over 1982, totaling $2.5 billion in 1983. The state-paid credits to taxpayers, which are primarily the homestead and agricultural credits, increased $37 million or six per cent, reaching $636 million in 1983. After subtracting these credits from the levies, the net tax collections are computed, which is the $1.9 billion or the 11.6 per cent rise mentioned above.

An additional state-paid property tax refund, commonly referred to as the "circuit breaker" is mailed to homeowners and renters separately and is not included in any of the above figures. This income-related refund provided tax relief totaling approximately $200 million in 1983.

The association points out that the 11.6 per cent rise is strictly the "average," or the total rise witnessed statewide, which will differ widely by county. The actual level and increase within a county will

RETIRING FIRE CHIEF Duane (Dewey) Noel (right) checks to see how the chief's badge will look on his successor as chief, Dave Bjorkman. Noel has been chief of the fire department for 11 years since succeeding Roy Langevin and has been a full-time fireman for 20 years and volunteer for 26 years.

NEW FIRE CHIEF Dave Bjorkman (right) is presented with his badge of office by Mayor Bob Carlson at informal ceremonies Wednesday at the Thief River Falls fire hall. Bjorkman has 18 years of experience as a volunteer or regular fireman and succeeds Dewey Noel as head of the local department.

After 20 years as a full-time fireman and the past 11 as chief of the Thief River Falls fire department, Duane Noel has retired and turned the reins of administration over to David Bjorkman. Bjorkman, who has 18 years of experience as a volunteer and 10 as a regular member of the department, was sworn in as chief on Wednesday.

Appointment of the city fire chief is made by the city council through recommendation of the fire chief and the council's safety committee. As the new chief, Bjorkman will supervise activities of six full-time firemen and 18 volunteers in a department which has an operational budget of about $180,000 a year.

Noel joined the department as a volunteer fireman on Jan. 1, 1957, while an employee of the Soo Line railroad where he worked for 15 years. He began full-time service with the fire department on Sept. 1, 1963, and on Sept. 1, 1972, succeeded Roy Langevin as chief.

At the time he joined the department on a full-time basis, other regular firemen were Albert Lafrenz, Freeman Lanska, Einar Barstad, Frenchy Cloutier and Lawrence Hemmesch.

Several major fires in the community are recalled by Noel during his term as chief. Most expensive in terms of property loss was the blaze which destroyed the display building of Arctic Enterprises on the southwest edge of the city.

Most dangerous fire happened just two years ago when the Ben Franklin building in downtown Thief River Falls was destroyed. That fire was made most dangerous because of its location in the downtown business district, the head start which the fire had (a front window was blown out and flames scorched a car at the curb before it was reported) and the double false ceiling of the building which made it extremely difficult to get water to the fire. Another large fire during Noel's service destroyed the Land O'Lakes elevator.

There have been other changes in the past 20 years of Noel's full-time service on the department, the most notable being construction of the new fire hall which was first used in 1979. The department expanded its equipment from two trucks to four trucks, adding vehicles in 1974 and 1975 to support the 1954 and 1965 models then in use.

Smiley and Norden townships were added to the fire district in 1974 and Silverton township in 1975. North and Rocksbury townships had come under city department fire protection by agreement in 1954.

The department also has a 1941 model fire truck which has been donated to the Pennington county historical society but is being housed at the fire hall until arrangements can be made to keep it under the cover at the society's pioneer village.

Noel and Bjorkman also noted that the department has acquired helmets, coats, boots and mittens to meet requirements of the federal occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) and that about a dozen units of breathing apparatus have also been secured and are distributed among the department's trucks.

Noel said he knows of three fires during his tenure when arson has been charged and Wildlife artist Marian Anderson of Mankato will be in Thief River Falls Saturday at the Pine to Prairie gallery at 215 Main av. N., across the street from the J.C. Penney company. She will sign and remarque prints of her paintings and visit with the public.

Roger Ryba, owner of the gallery, said the artist will also display some of her original work during her appearance from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The gallery has a number of Anderson's prints on hand.

Born to a hunter and trapper and raised on a small farm at Swan Lake, Anderson developed a love for the outdoors and has remained in close contact with nature.

"A painting is not complete unless it accurately portrays the subject in its natural setting and tells us how it relates to and affects us in our environment," she says. One of her paintings entitled "Morning Reflections — Canada Geese" is reproduced at left.

Ryba said he hopes to have other wildlife artists make personal appearances here in the future.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Michelle Marie Solseng And Tim Benton Are Wed

Oak Ridge Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls, was the scene of the June 18th wedding of Michelle Marie Solseng, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Solseng, rural Thief River Falls, and Tim Benton, son of L. Ross Benton and Mrs. Pat Hadlock of Beloit, Wis.

Rev. Robert Moberg officiated at the double-ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 125 relatives and friends. Organist Cindy Nyflot played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. During the ceremony, Celeste Leach and Lyn Waswick sang "Devoted to You" and "The Wedding Prayer," and Mrs. Leach sang "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was attired in a floor-length gown with a gracefully flared skirt which flowed into a mini-train. Her fitted lace bodice, buttoned in front, was complemented by sheer bishop sleeves. A lace headpiece trimmed with sequins and pearls, held her elbow-length veil. She carried a bouquet of fresh red roses and white carnations.

Attending the bride were her friends, Lynda Mattson, as maid of honor and Kristie Brosseau, as bridesmaids. They wore pale blue floor-length gowns complemented by pale blue net overblouses. Each carried a single red rose.

The groom was attended by his brothers: Chris Benson as best man, and Stephen Benton, as groomsman. The ushers were Gary Page and Tim Lewis.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Solseng wore a blue street-length dress. The groom's mother was attired in a pink street-length dress. Their corsages were of red roses and white carnations.

Matching corsages complemented the blue dresses worn by the honor guests: Mrs. Lillian Knutson and Mrs. Esther Solseng, the bride's grandmothers.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Host and hostess were Ferrl and Eldora Ranum. LuAnn Lewis registered the guests: Kathy Drydal, Grand Forks, and Cindy Hastad, St. Cloud, presided at the punch bowl, and Joe Donney and Tawnya Morkrid were at the gift table.

To correspond with the bride's chosen colors, the three-tiered wedding cake was iced in white and decorated with miniature blue flowers. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom, also in blue and white. The cake was baked and decorated by Arlene Molskness and was cut and served by Mrs. Elton Solseng, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Tim Kassa, a friend. Eleanor Joyce poured. Waitresses were Kristi Dyrdal and Carol Moskness. The women of the ALCW served the reception.

Following the reception, a wedding supper was served at the bride's parental home for a large number of relatives and friends.

Those attending the wedding and reception were from Wisconsin, North Dakota, Manitoba and the Thief River Fals area.

The newly-weds are now at home in St. Cloud. Photo, Elton Solseng, Fargo, N.D.

Human Insulin Study Is Held For This Area

Since insulin was discovered in 1921, the pharmaceutical industry has made great strides in improving its purity and stability, modifying its duration of action, and more recently, producing synthetic forms of human insulin.

Insulin is a hormone necessary for the person to utilize the food he ingests and convert it into energy. Without insulin, a person cannot survive. Persons whose bodies do not make insulin have Type I diabetes and they must take insulin by injection.

Most insulin used in the United States today is currently made of 70 per cent beef insulin and 30 per cent pork insulin. The beef and pork insulin is extracted from cow and pig pancreas.

This type of insulin contains some contaminants called proinsulin (a large protein precursor that has an extra chain of amino acid). Some persons develop an allergy, lipoatrophy (deep indentions in the skin), or develop insulin resistance due to the formation of antibodies because of the proinsulin.

Purified pork insulin contains less than 10 parts per million of proinsulin and is used as therapy when such things as allergy immune insulin resistance or lipoatrophy exist. (Many diabetologists are now starting new diabetics on purified pork insulin or human insulin.) Purified insulin generally costs 50 to 100 per cent more than standard insulin.

Today human insulin can be produced by two methods. One is to modify the pork insulin and the other is the result of genetic engineering using the recombinant D.N.A. Human insulin produced by either method seems to be identical to insulin taken from the human pancreas.

This is especially eventful because persons with diabetes always worried about what would happen if there were a shortage of beef and pork pancreas to make insulin, particularly since more and more people are being diagnosed to have diabetes.

In North Dakota research is going on with one of the types of human insulin.

On August 1 Robert C. Warner, M.D., Grand Forks, was named the principal investigator for a $200,000 clinical research project studying human insulin for a major pharmaceutical company.

This is a nine month-long clinical study on a synthetic form of insulin produced through recombinant D.N.A. The structure is believed identical to the insulin produced by the healthy human pancreas.

There will be 110 persons with diabetes from this area of North Dakota and Minnesota participating in this study. It is the only study of its kind being done in the United States and the data obtained will be part of the data submitted to the U.S. Food and Drug administration (FDA) as part of the scientific information required to obtain approval for general use.

Taxpayers Can Maximize Use Of Allowances

If you were a little disappointed in the size of your tax cut on July 1, when a 10 per cent rate reduction went into effect, perhaps there is something you can do about it.

According to the U.S. chamber of commerce, most taxpayers received less than a 10 per cent reduction in taxes withheld from their pay checks. Some received as little as seven or eight per cent, and a lucky few received as much as 14 per cent.

Your tax cut may seem smaller because you are among the millions of taxpayers who allow the U.S. treasury — through your employer — to withhold a higher amount of taxes than you owe.

If so, a visit to the payroll office can correct the situation. You can fill out a new form which will permit you legitimately to reduce the tax withheld from your check.

The U.S. chamber points out that taxpayers in 1982 allowed Uncle Sam to collect $50 billion more in income taxes than they owed. Three-fourths of all taxpayers received tax refunds.

"Talk about cash flow! The government is getting rich by having the use of billions of dollars of taxpayers' money," the U.S. Chamber states.

Although some taxpayers prefer to be overwithheld, in order to force themselves to save part of each pay check, Kenneth D. Simonson, senior tax economist for the U.S. chamber, believes the practice is penny wise and pound foolish.

"When interest on other types of savings range from five to 10 per cent, or more," says Simonson, "taxpayers who let the government save for them at zero per cent are giving up a lot of income."

For taxpayers who would rather not have Uncle Sam "save" for them, Simonson points out they can claim additional allowances, or reductions, from their tax withholding.

Taxpayers can fill out a new W-4 withholding form, which includes instructions and work space to help taxpayers calculate their taxes more accurately and obtain additional allowances.

Here is the kicker. "Allowances" are not limited to yourself, spouse and children or other dependents, which are worth one allowance each.

The new form permits taxpayers to project or estimate itemized deductions and tax credits for the tax year, using a formula that converts the information into additional "allowances" from taxes withheld. If a taxpayer plans to contribute toward an individual retirement account (IRA), for example, this can be converted into one or more allowances, or fraction of an allowance, depending on the amount involved.

By using the new form a taxpayer can enjoy the benefit of a larger tax cut all year long. (There is no limit on the number of allowances that may be claimed, but employers are required to give the Internal Revenue service the names of taxpayers who claim more than 14 allowances.)

The difference in amount of money withheld represents money taxpayers can put in the "bank" of their own choosing or can invest in an IRA or U.S. savings bond. "In the latter case, Uncle Sam has use of the money but pays the taxpayer interest, which is as it should be," the chamber reports.

Dep't. Of Health Gives Summary Of Spray Effort

State health department officials say they are responding to a potentially explosive public health threat last week, when they began an intensive aerial spraying effort for encephalitis-bearing mosquitoes. Thief River Falls was sprayed for the second time on Thursday evening.

The planning process for the spray program began as long ago as early July, when authorities stepped up their normal efforts to monitor the state's mosquito population. Routine surveillance had earlier turned up unusually high mosquito counts in many parts of Minnesota. Culex tarsalis, the mosquito that carries Western encephalitis, has been found over a broad area of the state this summer, in the largest numbers since routine mosquito surveillance began in 1975.

Laboratory testing of mosquitoes caught in surveillance traps has shown that up to five or possibly more, out of every 1,000 mosquitoes may be carrying the encephalitis virus in some parts of the state. Two per thousand are enough to place humans in danger of getting encephalitis, authorities say. Thirty-four positive mosquito "pools" have now been identified, from 22 different Minnesota counties.

The mosquito samples were analyzed by the federal centers for disease control in Ft. Collins, CO. Dr. Thomas Monath, director of CDC's division of vector-borne viral diseases, concluded that mosquito counts and virus levels were "of sufficient magnitude to indicate a high risk of human infection." He recommended that spraying "be initiated as soon as possible."

Because weather has been favorable for breeding, mosquito counts have been high through most of the summer. The department began making contingency plans for the spraying program on August 5, and the decision to spray came on August 19, when the department first received laboratory confirmation of encephalitis activitiy in mosquitoes. At that time, the department also had evidence of virus activity in "sentinel" chicken and turkey flocks, as well as horses.

Dr. Michael Osterholm, chief of acute disease epidemiology at the department, believes the current situation may be similar to one that led to a major encephalitis outbreak in 1941. During that year, when no measures were taken to control the mosquito population, there were nearly 1,000 confirmed human cases of encephalitis in the upper midwest, about 100 deaths.

So far, no human cases have been confirmed this year. That doesn't mean there have been no cases Dr. Osterholm noted, since laboratory confirmation of encephalitis takes two or three weeks. There are now 18 suspected cases in humans, with one confirmed case, two probable cases and 13 suspected cases in horses. Dr. Osterholm emphasized, however, that the spray program is designed to prevent the transmission of encephalitis to humans, rather than deal with an existing outbreak.

Authorities have undertaken a second round of aerial spraying in the affected area, which has been expanded to include 34 counties in central, west central and northwest Minnesota. Decisions about further spraying efforts will depend on how fast the mosquitoes move back into the sprayed areas, and whether weather conditions remain favorable for mosquito breeding.

Top priority during the second round of spraying will go to communities with suspected encephalitis cases in humans or horses, or where infected mosquitoes have been found. Second priority will go to communities where conditions have been the best for mosquito breeding, or mosquito counts have been high. Third priority will go to other communities in the spraying area.

The spraying program has focused on communities of 200 or more people, Dr. Osterhold said, because that approach has made it possible to protect the most people with the available resources. Some towns of less than 200 may be added during the second round, if they are in areas where virus has been found in mosquitoes.

Persons who live outside the sprayed communities are especially urged to take protective measures against the Culex mosquito. These may include staying indoors during the hours immediately after dusk, and again around dawn; wearing long pants and long-sleeved shirts; and using an insect repellant which contains 95 per cent diethyltolumide (DEET).

The spraying program is expected to cost $2-3 million. The expenditure is justified in economic as well as humanitarian terms, Dr. Osterholm said. A child who gets encephalitis and suffers brain damage can cost society $700,000 to $1 million over a lifetime, for medical treatment, rehabilitation and institutional care. Up to 20 per cent of patients hospitalized with encephalitis can develop permanent brain damage.

The insecticide chosen for the program, Malathion, should pose no health hazard for humans, and should harm no other plants or animals, other than insects, Dr. Osterholm said. Malathion is considered "the insecticide of choice" for controlling adult mosquitoes. It has been used in several major spraying programs in the U.S. and Canada, as well as by the Twin Cities metropolitan mosquito control district. Extensive studies done following many of these spraying efforts have generally failed to uncover any adverse health effects in people or animals.

Malathion is readily biodegradable, Dr. Osterholm said, and it is widely used by the general public for home and garden applications. The insecticide is usually applied more heavily in home gardens than it has been in connection with the current mosquito control effort. The mosquito spraying specifications call for an "ultra low volume" application of three ounces per acre.

Even though the spray should cause no harm, individuals may wish to take simple precautions like staying indoors during the spraying, or washing garden vegetables before use, Dr. Osterholm said.

Dr. Osterholm warned that, although the populations of other mosquito species have already begun to drop, counts of Culex tarsalis appear to be holding steady, or even increasing. The Culex population remains at about five to 30 times the level necessary to support the encephalitis virus.

Although breeding conditions remain favorable for the Culex mosquito, cooler weather will eventually solve the mosquito problem, Dr. Osterholm said. The night-feeding Culex cannot fly or breed when the night-time temperature falls much below 58 degrees.

Local Hospice Slates Meeting September 13

"Every person has the right to die in a comfortable and loving community of family and friends, with respect and dignity." That the philosophy of the newly-formed Northland Community Hospice, Inc (NCHI).

NCHI was organized in response to requests from a group of people who worked with terminally-ill patients. The group consisted of several hospital employees, local physicians and other community health-related people. Board of directors was formed in January to implement a hospice program for the Thief River Falls area and a director, Darla Twomey, was hired June 1.

Goal of NCHI is to maintain the dignity, independence, and autonomy of persons in the final stages of an incurable illness. Hospice care takes a holistic approach in an attempt to meet the social, physical, emotional and spiritual needs of dying persons and their families and assumes the right of the patient to be involved in decisions regarding his or her care and well being.

One of those decisions is whether the person or family want the remaining time in the person's life spent being cared for in his or her own home by family and friends, or whether he or she prefers to be in a hospital. It is a basic tenet of hospice that each person who has been designated as terminally ill should have the opportunity to remain at home as long as possible, even to die at home, as he or she chooses.

By making available around-the-clock medical, social, emotional and pastoral support during the last stages of the person's life and through the bereavement period of the family, hospice teams facilitate the adjustment to death as a normal process of living and alow the patient and family to concentrate on living the last stages of life fully and without pain.

There is no charge for hospice service. It is a non-profit organization. Care is provided by dedicated volunteers and professionals who are members of the hospice team. Only source of income is from contributing agencies such as the United Way and personal memorials and contributions.

NCHI will be sponsoring an informational workshop on September 13 at the Best Western. Workshop will be offered twice so everyone interested has the opportunity to attend — from 2 to 5 p.m. and again from 7 to 10 p.m. The workshop will feature Rev. H. Kenneth Losch, senior pastor, Grace and Red River churches, Hallock, who will speak on "Death and Dying," and Samira Beckwith, hospice director, United hospitals, Grand Forks, plus hospice families and volunteers. There is no charge for the workshop and anyone interested in learning more about hospice or interested in being a volunteer is invited to attend.

"Thanks to the Thief River Falls United Way, Northland community hospice is able to provide hospice services to the people of the Thief River Falls area," Mrs. Twomey said. Persons with questions may call her at 681-6996.

Noel Retires; Bjorkman New Fire Chief

that two of those cases resulted in convictions. There have been other fires where arson was involved but no apprehension made or charges filed, although most of the 100 to 120 calls the department receives annually involve accidental fires.

The retiring chief had high praise for the department's volunteers as well as the regular firemen. Volunteers receive $72 per quarter for their services whether they fight no fires or 50 fires. They are required to attend one drill and one meeting a month. Noel said response is virtually 100 per cent at night fires and about 75 per cent during daylight hours, many times with firemen calling in and finding out they are not needed.

Regular firemen work either 24-hour or 12-hour shifts — from noon to noon or 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. This provides two regular firemen on duty during night hours and one fireman plus the chief on duty during the day.

Fire chief and firemen have a number of additional duties to being on the scene when a fire needs to be extinguished. Thief River Falls has about 350 hydrants which must be inspected regularly and prepared for winter. Some of them were installed in 1922 and may need replacement (at a cost of about $800 each plus installation). About 20 have been replaced in the past year.

Hydrants are marked with flags in the winter so they can be found if covered with snow. The department checks fire alarm systems, wood-burning appliances and public buildings.

"By the way," Bjorkman noted, "people ought to know that they must have a building permit to install a wood-burning appliance in their homes. If everyone would abide by that ordinance, we wouldn't have stoves installed against paneled walls and stovepipes sticking out of mobile home windows — both serious hazards to life and property."

The fire chief is also responsible for the monthly training sessions in the department and attending regional and sectional training sessions. He is in charge of community fire safety programs and public information.

The fire department also responds to calls other than for fires. Included are drownings, fuel or other spills, leaks of flammable materials and even an occasional rescue mission.

For instance, Bjorkman and Noel recall chopping ice for more than half an hour to reach the middle of the river at its widest point between LaFave park and the Eighth street bridge to rescue a springer spaniel which had broken through the ice. The dog was rescued but exhausted from treading water while waiting for human assistance.

Noel also remembers risking health and safety to climb a tree and retrieve a cat for its worried owner. The next day the cat was back in the tree again and Dewey admits he counseled the owner that "it must like it up there then" before he hung up the phone.

Dewey plans to remain in Thief River Falls while his wife Alverda will continue working at Bridgeman's where she has been employed for more than 30 years. They have two daughters, Joy Gillespie of Thief River Falls and Julie Larson of Holt, and a son Michael of Thief River Falls.

Bjorkman and his wife Gloria, a former social worker with the Pennington county welfare department, have one son, Karl, who is a sophomore at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks. The retiring and new chief were honored at a coffee hour by city employees on Wednesday morning when the change in administration took place.

Changes outside the department also affect the work of the department, Noel and Bjorkman noted. "We always used to guarantee that we could save the lot and the basement," Noel said with a twinkle in his eye. "Then they started building wooden basements. . ."

vary by neighbor, city, school district and special district.

Based on the 87 county averages, net property tax increases varied from a high of 18 per cent in Cook county in the most north-eastern corner of Minnesota, to a decline of 5.3 per cent in Swift county in the western part of the state. Seventeen counties showed increases above 11 per cent, while on the other end of the spectrum, 16 counties showed increases less than two per cent. Of these, eight counties had an actual decrease in net taxes. Six of the seven metropolitan counties are included in those counties with increases above 11 per cent.

"We know that the level of property taxation is higher in the metro area than in suburban or rural counties," Paterick said. "Now with these increases it appears that the metro area continues to pull ahead of the rest of the state. The total 1983 net increase in the metro area is 15.7 per cent, compared with 5.9 per cent in the non-metro area. A recent citizens league report cities the fact that seven-tenths of a per cent of those in the metro area pay less than $145 in property taxes compared with 26.3 per cent in outstate Minnesota. By the same token, 69.1 per cent in the metro area pay taxes which exceed $471, compared to 18.3 per cent in outstate Minnesota. This disparity is increasingly a major tax equity problem in Minnesota, Paterick said.

After assessed values have been tabulated, and the local budget levies determined, a mill rate is calculated. This mill rate is applied to the assessed value of every taxable parcel of real estate in the taxing district. Each mill translates into $1 in taxes for every $1,000 of assessed value. The mill rate is probably the best indicator of the level of property taxation in a jurisdiction. The statewide average mill rate was 92.101 in 1983 which represents a slight decrease from the 92.153 in 1982. Rates declined in 58 counties and increased by more than 10 per cent in Aitkin and Cook counties. The highest mill rate was in St. Louis county with 131 mills compared with a low of 52 mills in Renville and Murray counties.

The association emphasized that the rate and level of property taxes are primarily determined by the budgets of the local units of government — the county, city, school district and special districts. The state's role is one of an "administrator," "keeper and multiplier of the classification system", and "giver of property tax relief." On a statewide average basis the school districts accounted for 48 per cent of the total levy which also means 48 per cent of an average taxpayer's property tax bill. Counties account for 26 per cent, cities 16 per cent, townships two per cent, and the remaining eight per cent is primarily special districts (e.g. Metro council, hospital, sewer districts), and miscellaneous levies (tax increment financing, fiscal disparities and power line). This eight per cent category represents the largest increase in levies on a percentage basis in 1983 — special districts, 20.2 per cent, tax increment levies, 32.1 per cent, and fiscal disparity contribution levies, 36.5 per cent. County levies were up 6.7 per cent in 1983 while cities and towns increased their levies 8.6 per cent and 8.5 per cent respectively. School district levies rose 10 per cent. Coupled with a 29 per cent rise in 1982, school levies have increased 42 per cent in two years.

"This rise in school levies is extremely significant," Paterick said. "School district levies account for nearly half of the property tax bill; a 42 per cent rise translates into a $360 million property tax hike in only two years."

Looking down the road, Paterick feels that the 1983 increase of 11.6 per cent will be followed by a slightly higher percentage rise in 1984.

"After 1984, it will ironically depend upon how much budget cutting is done on the local level, and how much spending of other tax dollars for property tax relief is done on the state level," Paterick said.

REFLECTI NS

Disappointments are to the soul what a thunder storm is to the air. They clear the way to reaching inside for more strength to re-join the battle of life. A disappointment or defeat may temporarily sidetrack you . . . but after a breather . . . a time of renewal you can find the courage to continue. . . . We all have our "thunderstorms" that try the soul but we must wait them out knowing they will pass, leaving us fresh and stronger.

Marshall Co. 4-H Members At State Fair

Marshall county was well represented at the Minnesota state fair this year by 37 4-H members from across the county. They were among the 6,500 4-H'ers from every county in the state participating in the fair, reported Alice Colby, County 4-H agent.

4-H members in the red ribbon group include: Jayne Erickson, Viking Volcanoes - photography; Lisa Gust, Oakridge Wranglers - horticulture; Karl Jorgenson, Riverside - aerospace; Greg Knoll, Comstock - shop; Kelly Ness, Cedar - needle arts.

There are many 4-H activities at the fair which are presented to the public. Demonstrations are a creative way to explain something a 4-H member has learned through project work. Demonstrations given by Marshall County 4-H'ers include: Pat Erickson and Corey Green, Ringbo Bobcats - photography demonstration; Jon St. Germain, Argyle Hustlers - gun safety demonstration and Kathy Nelson, Cedar - health demonstration.

Share-the-fun acts from across the state are another crowd pleaser. Viking Volcanoes 4-H Club presented their musical act entitled "Country Cousins". Members included: Jeff Erickson, Joel Erickson, Jayne Erickson, Julie Gustafson, Ken Krohn, Denise Olson and Wendy Shern. While at the fair, share-the-fun participants have the opportunity to work with an experienced director and perform under professional conditions.

State fair fashion revue is another activity where 4-H'ers may participate. Lori Bjorgaard of the Riverside club and Heather Westlund of the Oakridge Wranglers club were among those being judged by peers and judges. Lori fashioned a dress and jacket ensemble while Heather chose to purchase a winter jacket and be judged in the consumer area of the clothing project. Both girls were judged on appearance, knowledge and considerations given to either constructing or purchasing their garment.

As always, one of the big fair attractions was the 4-H livestock show. This year's shows were September 2 to 4 with the auction on September 5. Everything from rabbits to beef were judged and displayed.

4-H'ers from Marshall County in the livestock shows included: Margo Dahl, Plainview - sheep; Shannon Fenning, Comstock - swine; Tracey Koehmstedt, Oakridge Wranglers - dairy goat; Ronald McGregor, McCrea - beef; Dawn Olson, Grove Valiants - sheep; Kyle Olson, North Star - dairy calf; Paula Olson, North Star- dairy cow; Laurie Rud, Triangle - geese.

Minnesota state fair marks the culmination of a year's hard work and learning for many 4-H'ers. They should all be proud of their accomplishments and their growth.

Senator Pushed RR Retirement Solvency Act

Senator Rudy Boschwitz today said that he is pleased the senate passed the railroad retirement solvency act in order to protect and preserve the railroad retirement system.

"I voted in favor of the bill and urged my colleagues to do the same. This rescue plan is necessary to prevent a 40 per cent cut in benefits on Oct. 1, 1983 and an additional 40 per cent cut on Oct. 1, 1984," Sen. Boschwitz said.

As passed by the Senate, the rescue plan's basic provisions include:

I — Increased taxes; Employer payroll taxes go up one per cent per year through 1986; employee payroll taxes go up .75 per cent per year through 1986; Tier II benefits will now be taxed like other private pension plans; and Tier I benefits will be taxed the same as social security benefits.

II — Payments from general treasury to railroad retirement account: $1.7 billion plus interest to be paid over three years.

III — Changes in early retirement rules for new retirees: the 60-30 rule is changed to 62-30, meaning an employee must now work until age 62 with 30 years of service to receive full benefits. This change will be phased in over two years.

IV — Other changes: Tier I COLAs will be offset by a reduction in Tier II benefits up to five per cent; and. The railroad unemployment compensation debt to the RRA will be repaid by a special employer tax, beginning July 1, 1986 and ending Sept. 30, 1990.

Hearty Meal In A Salad

Colorful, tasty and nutritious. A spectacular salad for a family summer supper or for casual entertaining.

Ripe Olive Buffet Salad

2 lbs. small new potatoes
1/2 cup chicken broth
1/4 cup white wine or water
1 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped pimiento
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon basil, crumbled
1/8 teaspoon paprika
1-1/2 cups pitted California ripe olives
Butter lettuce
2 large tomatoes, sliced
1 cup cooked ham strips
1 cup cheddar cheese strips
3/4 cup cooked peas
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Snappy Sour Cream Dressing

Peel potatoes. Put potatoes in skillet and add broth and wine, 1/2 teaspoon onion powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Bring to a boil, reduce heat; cover and cook for 20 to 25 minutes, just until potatoes are tender. Drain, reserving liquid. Make up marinade for potatoes by mixing together 1/4 cup liquid from cooking potatoes, vinegar, oil, pimiento, parsley, basil, paprika, and remaining 1/2 teaspoon onion powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Drain olives and combine with potatoes. Mix marinade with potatoes and ripe olives and chill thoroughly. Shortly before serving, cover large salad plate with butter lettuce leaves. Drain potatoes and olives and arrange on plate with peas, sliced eggs, ham and cheese strips, and tomato slices. Serve with Snappy Sour Cream Dressing. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Snappy Sour Cream Dressing

1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/4 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon dill weed
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Mix together sour cream and mayonnaise. Stir in horseradish, mustard, dill weed, salt and pepper. Makes about 3/4 cup salad dressing.

UND Exempted From Rules On Flight Time

Federal aviation administration recently exempted the center for aerospace sciences at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks from federal rules about minimum flight time for private and commercial pilot certification.

The exemption will markedly reduce the flight lab fees for the 700 students majoring in aviation, while producing far better and safer pilots, according to center director John Odegard.

With the two-year exemption, which is effective this semester, UND may graduate aviation students trained to a specific performance level, rather than after they have flown a minimum length of time.

"The university's quality of training far exceeds any quality of experience measured by total hours," Odegard said. "Because of the history and success of our programs and students, we asked the FAA for an exemption in regulations. The exemption is certainly honor from the FAA."

Odegard added that of the 525 aviation students who graduated from the private and commercial pilot certification courses over the past two years, 98 per cent passed their final check for certification on their first attempt. Overall, flight training conducted by the UND during this time period has exceeded 75,000 hours.

In granting the exemption, Kenneth Hunt, FAA director of flight operations, wrote:

"The FAA has determined that granting relief from the minimum total hour requirements is in the public interest because it encourages the development of safe, highly qualified pilots in a manner which will result in savings of human and material resources, including fuel."

Under the exemption, the private-pilot student, who now pays about $2,300 in flight lab fees to be certified, may save several hundred dollars; the commercial-pilot student may trim more than $1,000 from the slightly more than $10,000 previously paid for these fees, Odegard said. The savings will vary based on each individual's ability.

The increasing complexity and operating cost of aircraft point to the greater use of computer simulators, which can provide more in depth training than can be accomplished in the air.

"The additional use of simulators, in lieu of aircraft, results in safer flight training, greater cost reduction, fuel conservation and less air traffic, thus greatly enhancing the safety of the public," Odegard said.

UND is the only one of about 35 colleges and universities in the country that grant aviation degrees exempted to this extent by the FAA, Odegard said.

Index Of Farm Prices Rises During August

Mid-August index of prices received by Minnesota farmers at 141 was eight per cent up from July and also eight per cent above the index a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Crop prices were up from the previous month except for wheat, which declined slightly.

Prices were down for most livestock commodities except hogs and eggs, which were up, and milk, which held steady. The average price received by farmers for corn is the highest since December of 1974; soybeans since April of 1981; sunflowers since June of 1981; and potatoes since July of 1981.

The crops index jumped 15 per cent to 147 during the month. This was 35 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-August prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.93 per bushel, was down one cent from the revised July estimate; corn, $3.18 per bushel, up 25 cents; oats, $1.48 per bushel, up 10 cents; barley, $2.26 per bushel, up 25 cents; soybeans, $7.75 per bushel, up $1.57; flaxseed, $5.05 per bushel, up two cents. Potatoes averaged $8 per hundredweight for all grades.

All hay was up $5 per ton to $65; alfalfa hay at $69 per ton was up $6 but other hay at $44 per ton was down $5. All sunflowers at $11.90 per hundredweight were up $2.40 from the revised July price. Dry edible beans were up $2 to $15 per hundredweight.

The meat animal index at 136 was four per cent above last month but 16 per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $48 per hundredweight were up $4.80 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $47.40 per hundredweight, down $1. Calves were down $3.60 to $59.50 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $13.70 per hundredweight, down $1.40. Lambs were down $3.60 to $48 per hundredweight.

The dairy index held steady at 144, equal to last year's index. The preliminary milk price at $12.70 per hundredweight, was unchanged from the revised July price.

Poultry and egg index at 101 was up five per cent from last month but down seven per cent from a year ago. Turkeys were 31 cents per pound liveweight, down one cent from a month earlier. Table market eggs brought 49 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-August, up seven cents from mid-July and up nine cents from a year earlier.

Congressman Comments On Plane Downing

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has termed the apparent downing of a commercial Korean airliner by Soviet warplanes "a senseless and wanton act."

"I am shocked and angered by this action," he said. "This plan was obviously recognizable as an unarmed commercial jet. The Soviets watched it for almost three hours and, if they had wanted to, they could have forced it to land."

Congressman Larry McDonald (D-GA) was aboard the destroyed craft, traveling to a celebration of the 30th anniversary of the U.S.-Korean defense pact.

"I had been invited to that event," Congressman Stangeland said, "but a full schedule of meeting with constituents kept me from going."

"We must get the facts of this case quickly," Congressman Stangeland said. "Then we must turn to the community of nations, if the facts warrant it, for a suitable action against the Soviets.

"Some Congressional leaders are already advising harsh actions," he said. "But we learned from the Carter grain embargo that sanctions will not work if America stands alone. If some viable steps are necessary, we must have the cooperation of all civilized nations."

Dr. Achenbach Has Fellowship In Dentistry

Dr. H.R. Achenbach

Prestigious fellowship award of the Academy of General Dentistry (AGD) was presented to Dr. H. R. Achenbach of Thief River Falls during special ceremonies at the academy's 31st annual meeting recently in Toronto, Ont., Canada.

To earn the award, AGD members must complete more than 500 hours of continuing dental education within 10 years. Dr. Achenbach has accumulated more than 800 hours of continuing study, having dedicated at least two weeks a year for the past decade to post-graduate study throughout the United States and Canada.

Presently there are only 29 dentists in Minnesota who have received the fellowship award, along with only one dentist in North Dakota and two in South Dakota. The Academy of General Dentistry with 25,000 members is the second largest dental assocation in North America.

Dr. Achenbach is a 1959 graduate of the University of Minnesota and has maintained a general practice in Thief River Falls for the past 24 years. He is a member of the Red River Valley study club, Northwest District dental society and Lions club, and is on the approved staff of Northwestern hospital.

Deadline Near For FmHA Loan Applications

Farmers Home Administration Fm-HA) is reminding farmers in Pennington and Red Lake counties that October 5 is the deadline to apply for disaster emergency loans covering actual crop losses caused by adverse weather during the 1982 crop year.

FmHA County Supervisor Francis J. Koehmstedt said a six-month period for receiving applications will expire on that date.

FmHA, a U.S. department of agriculture agency, makes disaster emergency loans to farmers who cannot find other sources of credit needed to restore operations to normal. Loans must be based on substantial loss from the designated disaster. Eligibility extends to recognized farmers who work at and rely on farming for a substantial part of their living and are U.S. citizens, or to farming partnerships, corporations or cooperatives in which U.S. citizens hold a majority interest.

FmHA services Pennington and Red Lake counties through its office at North Dale Street, Thief River Falls, and Marshall county through its office at 105 South Division Street, Warren. It is also noted by Ross Peterson, FmHA county supervisor in Warren, that farmers in Marshall County have until February 12, 1984 to file applications for disaster emergency loans covering actual crop losses caused by adverse weather during the 1982 crop year.

Fraud Schemes Directed At Older People

A survey by the U.S. Senate committee on aging concluded that consumer fraud is widespread and affects almost every aspect of life. Anyone can become a fraud victim, but the elderly are frequent targets of this crime, according to Minnesota Crime Watch — a program of the Minnesota department of public safety.

A common scheme directed against the elderly is medical fraud. One scheme begins when someone offers a miracle cure to a senior citizen suffering from an ailment like arthritis. Because of the elderly's concern for their health, senior citizens are easily persuaded to buy the care which turns out to be useless.

In one case a miracle cure for cancer contained contaminated compounds that could have been harmful if used. In another, a glaucoma remedy consisting of exercise directions to be taken instead of prescribed medication could have resulted in blindness. Other medical frauds include aging cures, medical aids and hospital frauds.

Senior citizens can avoid becoming medical fraud victims by being suspicious of health products or services that claim quick guaranteed cures or secret formulas, said Charles Rix, Minnesota Crime Watch coordinator.

"Be particularly cautious if the cure is for an otherwise untreatable disease or condition. Some medical fraud schemes not only make senior citizens poorer, they could also be harmful," said Rix.

The elderly are also targets of investment frauds. Such schemes begin when a con artist promises a senior citizen high monetary rewards in return for a very small investment in such things as precious metals or business opportunities. These frauds prey upon the elderly's need to supplement a fixed income but could place them in financial jeopardy, according to Rix.

In one case a senior citizen invested over $11,000 in a scheme to grow earthworms at home and only received a $231 return before the company went out of business. A retired firefighter lost $35,000 when the gold bullion he purchased was never delivered.

Senior citizens should remember there is no quick way to get rich. Before investing they should talk to a banker, financial planner and the Better Business Bureau. Take time to investigate and plan investments carefully. If theft or fraud is suspected, local police should be called.

Break Or Bounce

We thank Dr. Bob Lind of Montana State university for this philosophical look at how people should look at life:

One way in which eggs and tennis balls differ is that tennis balls are fuzzy, non-nutritive, and don't make your ideal breakfast. Eggs, on the other hand, are awfully messy to hit with a tennis racquet. You can readily think of other important differences.

The difference on which I wish to focus in this little essay is that when an egg is dropped to the floor, it just goes "splat!" and lies there. When a tennis ball is dropped to the floor, it bounces right up. The harder it is thrown, the higher it bounces.

You fully understand that neither eggs nor tennis balls are responsible for their behavior. An egg cannot decide to bounce rather than to break. The egg's nature is to break; the ball's nature is to bounce. But that isn't true of us as human beings. In the rough and tumble of life, we can choose whether to be eggs or tennis balls. We ourselves elect whether we shall allow life's troubles to break us or whether we will bounce right back and give it another go when somehow we find ourselves on the floor.

To be thrown to the floor is a common experience. Sooner or later it happens to all of us, and to some of us it happens lots of times. People lose their jobs, lose a loved one, have a home destroyed by flood or fire, have a crop hailed out, become ill, get injured or maimed, get divorced, have a child who is not normal, wreck their car or make bad investments. That's only a start on the list of things that may throw us to the floor.

If you're an egg, the maximum number of tragedies you can endure is zero. The first time you do down, you're done for, like Humpty Dumpty. If you're a tennis ball, you can take it again and again.

To "suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" is not a fun thing, and nobody in his right mind goes looking for trouble. But the strong and stable tennis ball type can bounce back if for some reason trouble comes — and it does come to everyone.

We mortals learn to be eggs or tennis balls. It's often an indomitable spirit we caught from our parents: an attitude that says to the world, "You may knock me down, but you can't keep me down!" One person suffers the loss of a limb and becomes a helpless cripple. Another with the same loss continues to live a full and productive life.

It isn't what happens that matters most in life, for lots of good and bad things happen to all of us. What really matters is whether we are an egg or a tennis ball.

Which one are you? If you're now inclined to be somewhat egg-like and brittle, what are you going to do to change? Each day we have the chance to make many choices, and one of them is the choice of whether to break or bounce when we get tossed to the floor of life.

Seeking Common Ground

Following editorial is from the Montevideo American News:

Salary and contract negotiations between the Montevideo Education Association and the school board are always mind-boggling to me. It's customary for a person to take knowledge from familiar areas and apply it to the unknown for better understanding, but there is so little common ground between a teacher's job and other positions in a community that I have difficulty relating.

Personal leave is one example. At present a Montevideo teacher is entitled to one day of personal leave, and the MEA is requesting three in the new contracts. As I understand it, a teacher taking more than one day of personal leave (having made arrangements beforehand) will not be paid during the additional days off.

In most jobs that an employee received a yearly wage, co-workers cover for him when he is gone. Office crews do the best they can to absorb the extra work load. Store clerks handle the same number of customers even though service may be slower and poorer.

Often a client can be put off for a day or two until the missing person returns. Many times an employee who has been gone for a day can make up his work late at night or on the weekend.

It's not like that for a teacher. School goes on. Students are in the classroom. Someone else, someone additional, is hired to assume his responsibilities. It costs more money for that one day of instruction.

Another area that significantly differs from what I'm accustomed to is the product. Most of us deal with things — things that can be measured — the amount of newspaper copy put out in a week, the number of automobiles that are serviced in one day or the total sales that are rung up at the end of eight hours. While doctors, lawyers and social workers specialize in people and the time devoted to paperwork, research and person-to-person contact varies from each case, positive or negative results usually become apparent within months.

But, how do we determine if a child is receiving a good education? When do we make the judgment? How do we separate the things of teaching from the human being who are taught?

If most students have a good grasp of the subject matter at the end of the year, is that all that concerns us? Or, do we hope that something has been learned about the thinking process and good communication?

If a student is doing badly in math this year, is his current teacher or a previous one at fault? How do we know when a teacher lets too much time go by before acting on a problem?

And the list goes on. Probably the toughest part of evaluating a quality education is knowing whether the teachers who are really motivating our children are going beyond the call of duty and are extraordinary, or if they should represent the norm.

But, teachers don't like to be compared with one another, and their hopes for "raises" are wrapped into one master agreement.

That's something else with which most of us from a small community can't identify. We're judged on an individual basis by our employers, and, if business has not pulled in good bucks over the year, we're probably not going to be financially rewarded.

I believe our teachers should be paid more — at both ends of the scale — but I'm never able to get that idea across when I'm talking to a teacher. I'm sidetracked by innuendoes. In forming their salary requests teachers become one dimensional (in order to survive the bargaining process, I'm sure) and have little sympathy for the woes of employees in other businesses.

If we read that a goal of the MEA is a salary of $17,000 for a beginning teacher with a B.A. degree and we mumble that a degreed person starting out in the newspaper business isn't receiving that wage, we're declaring war. If we stated that we must pay for additional insurance coverage for our family and don't have a dental plan, we're making waves.

And, what will surely fill the air with electricity is the added comment that "in my line of work I'm talking about a starting salary for 11½ months of work." Although I say that, I continue to believe that teachers should be paid higher wages and I know that the summer is used for further education paid out of a teacher's own pocket, but why won't anyone acknowledge that a minimum of 40 hours a week at a minimum of six weeks at a minimum of $4 per hour is another thousand dollars?

One reason, I'm certain, is that the gap between teachers' salaries and those in other professions has been too wide for too long. Teachers are defensive and sensitive. Another reason is that bargaining takes place in contract settlements. What the MEA is asking for and what will become a reality are usually two different things.

For either the school board of MEA to tip their hand or make concessions, even in casual conversation, is unlikely.

So, here I am again — with my mind boggled during salary negotiations.

I don't know any profession that is comparable to teaching. Most of the unions I'm aware of deal with blue collar workers and things as products. In no other job (except for a governmental position) are there so many options from "employers" on what priorities and guidelines should be.

Perhaps the time will come when teachers and others like me will see that we have more in common than we realize. We'll all gripe together about our lack of benefits and abundance of tough times. We'll applaud the gains that we've made. We'll all care about one another's working conditions.

We'll all be able to relate.

Borrowed Nonsense:

It takes two things to make a woman truly happy — a husband and somebody else to compare him with.

"What you do in America?" the cannibal chief demanded of his prisoner.

"I'm editor of the weekly newspaper," the captive replied.

"Good!" smiled the cannibal, smacking his lips. "Tomorrow you be editor in chief!"

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Washington, D.C. — An experienced non-political foreign affairs expert told me that no effort at arms control or movement toward real peace will take place until we demonstrate to the Russians that we have the will to defend ourselves and our freedom. Now the Russians feel they can take advantage of our lack of backbone and get whatever they want for nothing, so they have no reason for negotiating. From their reading of the news from the United States, they can observe many Americans who want to give away their ability to defend our country. These Americans are serving Russia's objective far better than the Russians could in a conference.

Let's recognize some of the facts of life in 1983 world politics. To a large extent, the pressures and the problems are inspired by the Russians. They have been pushing and prodding all over the world, exporting trouble and encouraging the kind of fighting that kills. We, on the other hand, have only been responders to trouble, not inciters. That fact seems to elude many of our "peaceniks" who seem to forget that it takes "one" to start or stop a fight, and that one is Russia. All of the picketing here is meaningless without action by Russia.

Don't mistake the Russians for the folks who live next door. The Russian leaders are cruel and do not believe in majority rule. If they were democratic, how could they do what they are doing in Afghanistan, Poland, and many more places, where they are suppressing the majority with arms and threats.

There were those in the 1930's who suggested that we should give Hitler a little and his appetite would be satisfied. The more he got, the more he wanted. The peaceniks of the 1930's contributed to World War II. Anyone who listened to Hitler and read what he had written knew what he intended. Anyone who listens and reads what the Russians have established as objectives knows that they want to dominate their neighbors and the world, and bury us and our theories of individualism and freedom. To assume that weakness and one-sided freezes and disarmament will do anything but encourage more aggression and future problems is not being realistic.

When I hear Americans advocate an arms freeze, and then look at what that would mean I see the Russians way ahead of us in many areas, with two-and-a-half times the number of submarines, four times the manned bombers, almost twice the number of submarine launched missiles, a third more of the intercontinental missiles, more armed forces, most defensive weaponry in place, and about 15 per cent of their gross national product devoted to weapons. We put about six per cent of our gross national product into defense. Yes, an arms freeze sounds good until you understand that it leaves us permanently without the weaponry and defense systems needed to protect ourselves, while building in a Russian superiority.

The experts tell me that most Americans are naive and lack an understanding of other people. Americans have a tendency to believe that everyone thinks as we do. Under this theory, if we demonstrate good faith and a desire for peace and arms control, unilaterally, everyone on earth will follow us. We will convert the unbelivers by our good example.

The Russians have had many opportunities to follow our good example over the periods of defense cuts. They have never been willing too do so.

Today the United States is viewed by many in this world as a country that does not follow through on its commitments. We allowed the Viet Nam disaster to occur and the Cambodian bloodbath has happened, as predicted, though the same protestors on so-called American responsive actions take no time to protest what the Russians (and their allies) have done and are doing. We sit back and watch the Cubans and others twist us and taunt us, knowing full well that none of Russia 's neighbors would do that and get away with it.

To put it bluntly, the experts tell me that until we have achieved a power equilibrium from strength of arms, and demonstrate the backbone to stand up for our interests, the Russians will not negotiate, but they will create more problems and tests of our willpower. It is from these problems and tests that wars can develop.

We must let the people of the world know that while we want peace, we are going to do whatever is necessary to defend our freedom and our interests. We must let the people of the world know that the United States is not weak and willing to succumb to threats, and that we will not tolerate any outside actions designed to foment trouble in the Americas.

Every time we push through a nuclear freeze or arms reduction resolution, kick our president in the head, or demonstrate a lack of will and unity, we weaken the chances for peace!

That's Straight Talk!

An American company in the midwest makes foot stools and hassocks. They calculate their income like this for one foot stool:

Labor cost (10 hours x $4 per hour, including benefits), $40; sales and administrative costs, $9; material costs, $10; freight in and out, packaging costs, $5; actual out of pocket cost, $64; income tax and investor earnings (to be taxes again), $2; and total break even cost, $66.

This one foot stool, making $1 each for both the owners and Uncle Sam and states (combined), must be sold for $66 to a retail store.

The retail store, to break even, calculates its pricing and costs like this:

Sales price of the foot stool, $108; cost of the foot stool, $66; contribution to overhead, taxes and profit, $42; operating expenses, including sales cost, rent, utilities, advertising and the rest, $40; operating income, $2; income taxes, federal and state, $1; and investor earnings, which will be taxed, again, $1.

To make one dollar, the furniture dealer must sell the foot stool for $108. And that one dollar of profit, which can be used to increase the inventory or improve the building, or many other things, is still subject to taxation.

Let's suppose that you are interested in buying one foot stool and you visit a furniture store. You will compare the quality and price of all of the foot stools in stock. If there are comparable quality foot stools available for $50 to $75, at retail, and another has to sell for $108, I do not believe that many people will buy that $108 foot stool.

If we assume that some workers are being paid $3 per hour, with all benefits, that footstool can sell in the store for $92 at retail, still too high to be competitive with those that are priced at $50 to $75.

With foreign foot stools, and a gross labor cost of 95 cents per hour, and lower sales and administrative costs so that they can make a profit when the foot stool retails for $50 and wholesales for $30.50, guess which foot stool, yours or the foreign foot stool, will sell and which will sit.

Without replacement orders, it should also be apparent that our midwestern American company will first have to slow down production, then lay off workers, and finally close down the plant.

From this study, you can see that the important point is not just cost per hour, but the total labor cost. If this midwest American foot stool company can bring its labor cost down to $9.50 from $40, the company could continue to operate and the jobs would be saved. That reduction in labor cost can be accomplished in one of two ways. If fewer manhours can produce the same foot stool by the individual worker becoming more efficient, that's one way. Or, if the individual worker, assisted by a machine, can cut that labor cost, including the cost of buying and operating that machine, that's another way.

If all of this sounds very complicated, believe me, it really isn't. In the store, the customer considering a purchase looks at quality, cost and style. Being competitive in the quality, cost and style, gives you a chance. Not being competitive in each of these areas is like racing with a handicap.

That's why a good many companies that were careless, and let labor and other costs get out of hand, found they could not compete. Their prices were too high. Their quality was a problem. And once price presents trouble, the effort to compete has an impact on quality and styling.

These analyses, in very simple terms, tell the story of why, in this tough rough world in which United States companies must compete, we have to be competitive in every area. These analyses describe why it is critical today that American companies keep direct labor cost competitive. . . why American companies must keep themselves slim as far as overhead expenses are concerned. . . and why American companies must produce products of high quality.

Further complicating the problem is the dollar. When the dollar becomes too expensive, even if we are competitive in every way, that ups the price to the foreign buyer, wrecking everything we have accomplished. Today the dollar has become overpriced, which makes foreign products very cheap. This has happened because oil purchases are paid in dollars. . . those who want stability are transferring their money to the United States, and that bids up the dollar. There are many more reasons for an expensive dollar. We'll discuss them!

High School Fall Sports Seasons Are Underway

Michael-Albertville Tuesday.

Interest in interscholastic girls volleyball has increased immensely during the sport's first decade of sponsorship in Minnesota. Ten years ago only 11 schools sponsored the activity compared to more than 475 during the last six years. Nationally, Minnesota ranked seventh in number of schools participating with 486 and in number of participants with 13,214, according to 1982 figures.

Attendance at the state tournament level also indicates spectator interest — witnessed by the record 18,773 that watched the Class AA and Class A state tournaments last November.

Cross Country

Girls and boys that compete in cross country number nearly 6,000 runners statewide at the high school level. Last year more than 3,600 boys and 2,200 girls participated. This season began officially on August 22 and will culminate with the state meet at the University of Minnesota golf course in Falcon Heights on Friday, November 4.

Minnetonka is the two-time defending girls team Class AA champion, while Redwood Falls won the 1982 Class A team title. In boys state competition last November, Winona won Class AA laurels and Staples captured the Class A crown.

Top individual girl runners competing this year include Stephanie Herbst of Chaska and Jackie Hubbard of Becker. Both seniors, Herbst was state runner-up in the state Class AA meet, and Hubbard won the Class A championship in 1982.

Among the top-notch boy runners are senior Steve Lumbar of Bemidji, junior Jeff Taylor of Mounds View, senior Bob Jirele of Rochester Lourdes and junior Randy Reichel of Staples. Lumbar and Taylor were the top finishing underclassmen at last year's Class AA state meet when finishing fourth and fifth, respectively, while Jirele and Reichel, finished second and third, in the Class A state meet.

Soccer

Sixty-six boys teams and 50 girls teams are registered to participate in the MSHSL soccer season in 1983. Set to culminate with the tenth state tournament in November, the boys program began with drills August 22 and will have most opening games being played the second week in September.

Top rated again in a pre-season poll, Burnsville is the defending state champion.

Girls soccer practice began on August 22 and will have most of the opening games being played this week. The defending state champion is Bloomington Jefferson, who won the first ever state girls title in 1980.

State tournament games for both boys and girls will take place October 31, November 3-5.

Girls Tennis

Girls tennis begins its 12th year as a MSHSL sport with 169 schools. More than 3,000 girls will participate this season, which will culminate October 26-29 with the Class AA and Class A state tournament in St. Paul.

Perennial girls tennis strongholds, Edina in Class AA and St. Paul Academy in Class A will be teams to beat once again. Edina has won five straight Class AA team championships, and St. Paul Academy will be after its fifth consecutive Class A crown.

Among the better individual players include sophomore Ginger Helgenson of Edina and junior Kim Burnet of Breck. Both players finished as runner-ups at the state Class AA and Class A meets last year, losing to graduated seniors Janet McCutcheon of Wayzata and D'Arcy Kyle of St. Paul Academy, respectively.

Girls Swimming

There will be more than 3,000 girls from 118 high schools competing in girls swimming and diving during the 1983 interscholastic season this fall. Twenty-eighth annual state girls swimming and diving meet will be conducted at Cooke Hall on the campus of the University of Minnesota, November 18-19.

Defending state team champion is Burnsville, who won its second straight title in 1982. The Braves appear to be the team to beat again in 1983 with the likes of senior Nancy Swanum returning. Swanum was a double winner a year ago and also swam on the victorious record-setting 200 yard medley relay team. A record-holder a year ago in the 200 yard individual medley and 100 yard backstroke events, Swanum also won those events as a sophomore.

Other outstanding individuals competing are Jody Schirmers, a senior from St. Cloud Tech, who won state titles in the 200 and 500 freestyle events; and state titlists Colleen Griffin, Lakeville; Shawn Anderson, Rochester John Marshall; Amy Reed, St. Paul Johnson; and Amy Volna, St. Anthony Village.

Gymnastics

Now entering its eighth season as a fall-sponsored activity, boys gymnastics will be sponsored by 17 schools this season. Last year when 20 schools sponsored the sport, 638 boys benefited from the activity.

Forty-second annual state gymnastics meet is scheduled for November 22-23 at Bloomington Jefferson high school. Edina is the defending state team champion. Among the individual standouts will be Eric Gieseke, a senior from Anoka, who is the defending all-around champion.

MSHSL Briefs

MSHSL Board of Directors has approved the request from Atwater and Grove City high schools for a single membership effective with the start of the 1984-85 school year.

Final sites have been determined for the MSHSL state soccer championship games. Girls championship game will be conducted at Park High in Cottage Grove and the boys title contest is set for the Osseo Athletic Field. Both games will take place Saturday, November 5.

St. Francis high school has registered for the first time with the MSHSL to participate in hockey and has been assigned to Section Seven. With the merger of White Bear and White Bear Mariner into one school this year, the number of hockey playing schools will remain at 150 schools in 1984.

Pre-season soccer poll as conducted by the State High School Soccer Coaches Association: 1. Burnsville; 2. Frank B. Kellogg; 3. Minneapolis Washburn; 4. St. Thomas Academy; 5. Bloomington Jefferson; 6. Mounds View; 7. Hopkins; 8. Benilde-St. Margaret's; 9. Hill-Murray; 10. Apple Valley.

Top five cross country teams as rated by the State High School Cross Country Coaches Association:

Class AA girls — 1. Tonino Grace; 2. Faribault; 3. Alexandria; 4. North St. Paul; 5. White Bear Lake.

Class A girls — 1. Redwood Falls; 2. Becker; 3. Hermantown; 4. Elgin-Millville; 5. Sauk Centre.

Class AA boys — 1. Frank B. Kellogg-Alexander Ramsey; 2. Bemidji; 3. Mounds View; 4. Winona; 5. Hopkins and Apple Valley (tie).

Class A boys — 1. Staples; 2. Onamia Crosier; 3. La Crescent; 4. Montgomery-Lonsdale; 5. Rochester Lourdes.

Starting Friday the Thief River Falls football facilities — Prowler Field — will be tested for durability during the 1983 season when 16 games will be played on the grassy surface that has not had a good track record for resiliency.

Home football games this fall will include six varsity, four junior varsity and three freshman games for Lincoln high school teams, plus three games for Northland community college. It's probably fortunate for the field that the Northmen will be playing five road games this fall and just three at home.

If there is a rainfall before the Prowlers and Northmen play back-to-back weekend games at home the field really takes a pounding. Last fall the Northmen frequently found themselves playing in a mid-field quagmire while players and coaches stood in ankle-deep water on the sidelines.

There will be two such Lincoln-Northland doubleheaders this fall when the Friday night games of the Prowlers will be followed by the Saturday afternoon games of the Northmen. On Sept. 30 the Prowlers host Moorhead, with the Northmen entertaining Hibbing the next afternoon. On Oct. 7 the Prowlers have Bemidji here, with the Northmen at home against Mesabi the next afternoon.

Only other Northland home game will be Sat., Oct. 22, vs. Fergus Falls. Lincoln plays a Wednesday MEA game at East Grand Forks that MEA week.

Lincoln starts a five-game homestand Friday against Detroit Lakes, with Mahnomen, Breckenridge, Moorhead and Bemidji following the Lakers into Thief River Falls. Only other remaining games will be Oct. 14 at Fergus Falls and Oct. 28 at home against Crookston.

LHS Football Opponents

Detroit Lakes, this week's opponent for Thief River Falls' 1983 football home opener, opened the season Friday at home against Fergus Falls minus head coach Dick Riedberger, who was hospitalized earlier in the week with a blood clot in his right leg.

Riedberger told Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune he had been bothered by the clot for about a week. This marks the second time in his eight years at Detroit Lakes that he has been hospitalized with a similar problem. In his first season with the Lakers in 1976 he was sidelined for three games and turned over the coaching reins to assistants Bob Hooper and John Jacobson, both of whom are still on the coaching staff.

Detroit Lakes returns only three starters on offense and two on defense this fall. On offense, Mike Danner is back at tight end, Alan Squires at guard and Chad Meyhoff, last year's quarterback, has been shifted to fullback. Defensively, Danner and Squires, both linebackers, are back.

"Our inexperience will likely show up in the early games and will probably show until we can get a game or two under our belts," said Riedberger.

Meanwhile, Mahnomen, the Class B state runner-up last year and scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Sept. 16, is also rebuilding this fall — at least on defense.

"Defensively we do not return a single starter at a regular position," reported Mahnomen coach Ken Baumann in a preseason release from Wendell Vlasin, sports authority for the school. "Our inexperience on defense may show at the start. We have some people who can play and it will be our job to get them in the right spots."

Offensively the Indians lost in an outstanding athlete in quarterback Ken Muckenhirn, a senior who beat Thief River Falls 6-0 with a long punt return last fall, but should have a strong running attack.

"Our strength this year should be in our offensive line where we return four of seven starters from last year," noted Baumann. "We have plenty of linemen, so we hope to built good depth at each position."

Mahnomen also has two good runningbacks in Charlie Stock and Don Schoenborn. Stock gained over 1,000 yards last year and Schoenborn came on strong as a sophomore. "If they stay healthy we expect good things from them," said Baumann. "Our key on offense will be finding a quarterback where we have no real experience returning."

Looking down the road, Fergus Falls could have a strong offense, too, with quaterback Joe Gervais and top runningback Len Kretchman, the Edina transfer, both back. Kretchman is a breakaway runner who can score from any point on the field.

Another Thief River Falls opponent, Breckenridge, is the favorite in the Heart O'Lakes Conference with 20 returning lettermen back from last year's 7-2 team.

UMC Division Favorite

Beginning his eighth year as University of Minnesota-Crookston head football coach after leaving a similar position at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, Jim Sims expects to field a Northwest Division favorite this fall.

Sims has a squad of 55-60 players on hand, headed by sophomores Jeff Strandell, a quaterback, and Rich Lemke, a defensive back. "When you list the quality football players in the league, they have to be listed among them," Sims told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times. "We're expecting big things from them."

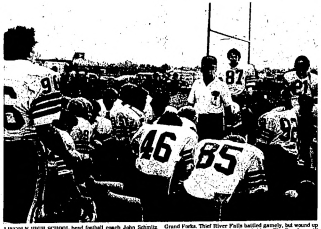
Strandell, from East Grand Forks, passed for 1,072 yards and 10 touchdowns last fall and was also the club's leading ground-gainer with 219 yards.

"Jeff likes to throw, no question about it," acknowledged Sims, "and we're going to gear our offense to his arm."

While Strandell sparkled on offense, Lemke, from Barnesville, was his equal on defense where he had four fumble recoveries and a school-record nine pass interceptions.

Strandell, Lemke and sophomore Steve Bengston, a 6-1, 275-pounder from Middle River, will serve as 1983 UMC captains.

Northland ends the year as Crookston Oct. 29. The Trojans were 7-1 Northern Division champions in 1982, losing to Southern Division champion Normandale 51-6 in the state playoff game and losing to Illionis Valley 47-6 in the Midwest Bowl at LaSalle, Ill.



LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL head football coach John Schmitz addressed members of his team as they gathered just before the game-opening kickoff Friday in the Prowlers' 1983 season opener against Grand Forks Red River at Cushman Field in Grand Forks. Thief River Falls battled gamely, but wound up losing a 21-12 decision to the Roughriders. The Prowlers will open their home schedule this week, hosting Detroit Lakes Friday in a 7:30 p.m. game.

Roughriders Top Prowlers 21-12 With Two Long Touchdown Plays

Two long-range Grand Forks Red River scoring strikes spelled defeat for Thief River Falls Friday as the Roughriders beat the Prowlers 21-12 in the 1983 high school football season opener for both teams.

Red River struck for a 74-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Scott Marquardt to flanker Robbie Eelkema in the final moments of the first half for a 14-8 edge at intermission, then put the game out of reach on a 73-yard touchdown run by Brian Hoffman in the opening minutes of the second half.

Thief River Falls battled gamely, mostly on the strength of 123 yards worth of passing by quarterback Mitch Semanko, but the Prowlers netted a meager 13 yards on the ground en route to the 21st consecutive loss over the past four years.

It was a game that was disrupted by temperatures that hit 103 degrees less than an hour before the 7 p.m. kickoff, winds that were gusting to 40 miles per hour, lightning that sent the teams into the lockerroom for 20 minutes late in the first quarter, driving rain and finally hoards of mosquitoes.

"We played hard. It was just a couple of big plays that beat us," offered Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz as he headed toward the lockerroom after the long game that took over 2½ hours to complete. "I tell you what — this team is going to win some football games this year."

Red River finished with 203 yards on the ground and 277 total offensive yards, but 147 of them came on those two long touchdown plays — the only pass completion of the night for the Roughriders and 73 of the 138 yards that the 200-pound Hoffman accumulated on 15 carries. And Red River's other touchdown came after the Prowlers failed to get off a punt deep in their own territory.

That's not to say Red River didn't move the football. The Roughriders' problem was holding onto the ball. They fumbled seven times, losing five of them.

"I thought offensively, if we wouldn't have dropped the ball so much, we did all right," explained Red River coach Nick Cichy. "But we made too many mistakes. Defensively, I thought we played well."

Thief River Falls totaled just 14 yards and no first downs in the first half and despite the hard running of junior Ryan Drees who drew post-game praise from Schmitz for his efforts, the Prowlers' offense never really got untracked until Semanko began finding Tim Bottem open in the Red River secondary in the second half. Drees, playing in place of regular Rick Spong who missed the game with a back problem, worked hard for his team-leading 28 yards rushing. The rest netted a collective minus-15 yards.

"They out-sized us in the middle. We just couldn't get anything going offensively outside of that pass," noted Schmitz.

That pass was Semanko hitting Bottem, the flanker, as he crossed over the middle left to right. That play worked five times for 109 yards in the second half-four times in the fourth quarter alone.

"We had trouble picking that up," admitted Cichy. "Thief River played well. They didn't give up."

Red River began the scoring when punter Scott Jorstad bobbled a low snap from Dan Upham and failed to get the kick off, giving the Roughriders the ball at the Thief River Falls 28 with 1:34 left in the first quarter.

Hoffman bounced off would-be tacklers for 13 yards on the first down to the 15 and the Roughriders reached the 12 before game officials conferred with coaches and elected to suspend play in the face of a lightning storm with 52 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

When play resumed it took Red River just two snaps to reach the end zone as 208-pound junior Dennis Dolan bounced to the outside and scored on a run around the left side. Kirk Demarais' extra point kick was wide to the right, leaving it 6-0 with 21 seconds on the clock.

Another punt situation allowed Thief River Falls to tie it when Demarais didn't hustle after the ball when it was snapped over his head from the Red River 24. Instead, Thief River Falls defensive end Jeff Langan beat him to it, falling on the ball in the end zone for a touchdown with 10:22 remaining in the first half. The snap was off on the extra point kick attempt and the score remained 6-6.

Jorstad, who averaged 40.3 yards, including a 55-yarder into the wind, on the four punts he did get off, looked like he put Red River in a hole when he punted to the Roughriders' 12 with 4:37 to play in the first half. They were in trouble with a third-and-12 play from the 26 with 1:49 remaining when lightning struck — this time on the playing field — as Marquardt, a junior who alternated on a quarter-by-quarter basis with senior Dave Leker at quarterback, put the balls into the hands of Eelkema on the right sideline. He was behind the Thief River Falls secondary on the play and sprinted into the end zone to complete the startling 74-yard touchdown strike. Matt Payne, who complemented Hoffman with an 89-yard night on a busy 21 carries, plunged into the end zone for the two-point conversion and a 14-6 halftime endge.

Safety Steve Grove intercepted a Semanko pass at the Red River 27-yard line 1:56 into the second half to kill a Thief River Falls scoring threat that developed when linebacker Scott Fowler recovered a Payne fumble on the first snap of the second half at the Red River 39. The interception not only stopped the Prowlers, but on the very next play Hoffman burst off left tackle and showed good speed on a 73-yard touchdown sprint. Demarais made the kick and it was suddenly 21-6 with just 2:18 gone in the second half.

Thief River Falls didn't fold, though. Jeff Johnson's fumble recovery near midfield on the first play of the fourth quarter began a Thief River Falls drive that reached the Red River 5-yard line before the Prowlers fumbled the ball away on third down.

Moments later linebacker Steve Wiskow intercepted Marquardt at the Red River 22 and returned the ball to the 1-yard line before Marquardt himself wrestled him to the ground. Drees punched through the middle for a touchdown with 6:16 left, but the two-point conversion try failed, leaving the Prowlers facing a nine-point deficit with 6:16 to play.

Still battling, Thief River Falls came up with another scoring chance when Wiskow recovered a Hoffman fumble at midfield and Semanko's passes to Bottem and Wiskow carried them to the Red River 6-yard line before a fumbled center snap wound up in the hands of Red River nose guard Mike Sanderson with 2:42 to play.

"They didn't give up," praised Schmitz. "They hung in there and played hard."

Second game of the doubleheader at Cushman Field matching Grand Forks Central and East Grand Forks didn't get started until after 10 p.m. and finished near midnight — a 19-0 Central victory. Because of the afternoon heat the Central-East Grand Forks game was moved from a scheduled 5 p.m. start to the doubleheader nightcap, with the Red River-Thief River Falls game moved up from 8 to 7 p.m.

Thief River Falls will open its home schedule Friday against Detroit Lakes, a 28-0 loser to Fergus Falls in the first weekend.

Plummer Wins Opener 40-14

Plummer proved its preseason ranking as one of the North Tri-County Conference favorites was no fluke Friday with a season-opening 40-14 high school football win over Gonvick-Trail.

"We're very, very pleased offensively and defensively," reported Plummer coach Gary Brantl.

Orginally scheduled to be played at 3:30 p.m. at Gonvick, the game was switched to 7:30 p.m. at Clearbrook because of the high afternoon temperatures and the lack of lights at Gonvick. The Bulldogs wouldn't move the game to Plummer which has lights, so Clearbrook was selected as the playing site.

A turn of events late in the first half was the key to the outcome, explained Brantl. Ahead 16-8, Plummer was trying to hold on to the lead when Gonvick-Trail had a first-and-goal situation from the Cardinals' 5-yard line. On fourth down from the three, Plummer's Gene Fisher intercepted a Gonvick-Trail pass and returned it 30 yards. On the very next play he hauled in a 53-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tim Gagner. The 12-point swing made it 22-8 at halftime.

Then to seal things, Plummer's Russ Fisher returned the second half kickoff 35 yards to set up a 5-yard Troy Gustafson touchdown as the margin quickly ballooned to 28-8.

Plummer finished the night with 307 yards worth of offense. The Cardinals gained 117 yards on the ground, with Mike Gustafson netting 57 on 13 carries and Russ Fisher getting 41 on six tries. Plummer also had 190 yards passing, with Gagner's 7-for-15 throwing accounting for 173 yards. Gene Fisher caught three passes for 113 yards and two touchdowns.

Defensively, Russ Fisher, an outside linebacker, had 10 solo tackles, 10 assisted tackles, a fumble recovery and an interception. Lineman Gary Torkelson had 11 tackles, a fumble recovery and a quaterback sack. Karl Mattison and Troy Gustafson each had six tackles.

Plummer will host Grygla-Goodridge Friday at 7:30 p.m. in a key early-season confrontation between North Tri-County Conference favorites.

Two other North Tri-County Conference games were postponed Friday because of the heat, with the McIntosh-Winger at Middle River game switched to today (Monday) at 4 p.m. and the Oklee at Fisher game changed to tomorrow (Tuesday) at 4 p.m.

Erskine-Mentor, considered along with Grygla-Goodridge and Plummer as one of the conference favorites this fall, edged Clearbrook 16-14 Friday.

GRAND FORKS Red River quarterback Scott Marquardt stood in the face of a pass rush by Thief River Falls' Gary Cornell and launched a 74-yard touchdown pass to Robbie Eelkeland with just 1:49 remaining in the first half of Friday's high school football game at Grand Forks. Eelkeland was behind the Prowlers' secondary on the play down the right sideline, snapping a 6-6 tie. It was the Roughriders' only pass completion of the night, but it was instrumental in their 21-12 victory over the Prowlers.

TRF Beats Detroit Lakes Friday . . .

Prowlers Open Volleyball Season With 2-1 Victory

Recovering from a slow start, Thief River Falls rallied for a 2-1 season-opening high school volleyball win over visiting Detroit Lakes Friday.

Thief River Falls won the match 14-16, 15-2, 15-14.

It was all Detroit Lakes at the start, though, as the Lakers opened with a 14-1 lead. However, with Missy Bondy serving 11 straight points and Paula Bergan playing strong defense at the net, the Prowlers rattled off 13 consecutive points to gain a 14-14 tie.

Even though Thief River Falls would up losing the first game, the Prowlers' comeback efforts carried over into the second game when Detroit Lakes had trouble receiving the serve and was never in it.

Third game was close throughout, with Thief River Falls finally breaking a 13-13 tie en route to the win.

"It feels really good to win," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "I was impressed."

In addition to Bondy's serving, the Prowlers also got strong service games from Leslie Weigand with nine points and Deb Opdahl with seven.

"We still need to work on receiving the serve," noted Anderson. "Once we received the serves and set up the shots they really starting to get into it."

Thief River Falls was an 18-10, 15-7 junior varsity winner.

Warren will be in the Lincoln gym Tuesday for volleyball action that starts with C squad matches at 5 p.m., junior varsity at 6:15 and varsity at 7:30.

1. If struck while crossing a highway, would porcupine quills puncture an automobile tire?

No. Porcupine quills bend quite easily. Objects such as car tires striking a porcupine on the highway would break the quills before any damage occurred: Jim Breyen, Assistant Regional Wildlife Supervisor.

2. Can the general public venture on foot through national wildlife refuges for nature hikes or photographic trips?

Yes, however, individual refuges may have use restrictions on certain areas at certain times during the year. Contact the refuge manager of the national wildlife refuge in which you are interested. National wildlife refuges are administered by the Department of the Interior, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. A brochure detailing locations, facilities and activities is available at refuges or at U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Region III, Federal Building, Fort Snelling, Twin Cities, MN 55111. Bryce Anderson, Regional Naturalist.

3. I heard there is a new shining law. Is it true that a person can now be arrested for shining even if he or she does not have a firearm in possession?

Yes, there is a new addition to the old shining law. It is illegal for a person to shine any wild animal while in possession of a firearm, bow and arrow or other implement whereby big game could be killed, unless guns and bows are unloaded and unstrung and encased and contained in the trunk of the vehicle. If the vehicle has no trunk, the weapon must be in the rear-most location of the vehicle. In addition, effective September 1 to December 31 each year, whether or not in possession of a weapon, it is illegal to shine for wild animals between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. It is not a violation for any person to carry out any agriculture, occupational or recreational practice, including snowmobiling, which is not related to spotting, counting or taking any wild animal. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

Deadline Nears For Antlerless Deer Drawing

Minnesota deer hunters who wish to apply for an anterless deer permit or special area permit have only until Sept. 15 to get their applications in to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

DNR wildlife officials emphasized that persons who want to hunt anterless deer should apply for a permit even if they received one last year. An application must be made each year in order to gain preference for future drawings.

Licenses and application forms for participation in the computerized drawings that select antlerless and special area permits are available at license agents throughout the state.

Grygla-Goodridge Wins First Game, 20-6 At MCC

Grygla-Goodridge made its debut as a new cooperative high school football program a successful one Friday with a 20-6 Nine-Man victory over Marshall County Central.

Played at Newfolden, the game was moved back from a 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. start because of the heat.

Grygla-Goodridge did all of its damge in the first half, opening up a 20-0 lead.

"They're a good team," confirmed Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "They were coming right at us in the first half and we just couldn't stop them."

Marshall County Central tightened defensively after intermission, holding the Blue Devils to 26 yards worth of offense in the second half, according to the Nordics' charts.

"We didn't give up," reported Gebhart. "We played a lot better in the second half. We showed some character."

Grygla-Goodridge capitalized on a fumble recovery by Wayne Byklum at the Marshall County Central 15-yard line to set up a first quarter two-yard touchdown run by Rick Mosher.

Another fumble recovery by Byklum, this one at mid-field in the second quarter, led to a two-yard touchdown run by Doug Schulz.

Grygla-Goodridge then connected on a 10-yard Tony Wiseth-to-Scott Groven touchdown pass in the closing moments of the first half when Groven made a leaping, finger-tip catch.

A 24-yard Kevin Boe punt return early in the fourth quarter led to a 5-yard Brent Hanson touchdown run for the only Marshall County Central points.

"We were happy with the first half," explained Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "In the second half we didn't seem to have the enthusiasm we had in the first half." He said he didn't know if it was the heat, the big lead or simply tougher Marshall County Central defense that stopped them in the second half. "The second half was definitely a standoff," he admitted.

Most of the Grygla-Goodridge yards came in the first half as the Blue Devils totaled 158 yards rushing and 17 yards passing for the game. They collected eight of their ten first downs in the first half. Schulz finished with 79 yards on 18 carries and Byklum had 54 hads on 11 trips.

Marshall County Central had 125 yards for the night, with 109 on the ground and 16 in the air.

Both sides had an outstanding individual efforts on defense from a linebacker. The Nordics' Grant Nelson was credited with 17 solo tackles and eight assisted tackles, including a quarterback sack. Byklum led the Blue Devils with eight tackles, two fumble recovers and two interceptions. Tim Wayne also had two fumble recoveries for the winners as the Nordics lost four of seven fumbles and had three passes intercepted.

"We made a few mistakes that really hurt," confirmed Gebhart.

Ross Olson and Ken Krohn also played well defensively for the Nordics with 13 tackles each in the defensive line.

"We're happy with the win," mentioned Nelson. "Any time you beat a team like Marshall County Central you've got to be pleased. They have a good team, a good program."

Grygla-Goodridge takes on North Tri-County Conference challenger Plummer Friday at Plummer while Marshall County Central starts Top of the State Conference play vs. Tri-County at Karlstad that same night.

THIEF RIVER FALLS quarterback Mitch Semanko set up for a second quarter pass attempt against Grand Forks Red River Friday in the 1983 high school football season opener for both teams. Semanko was 7-for-18 passing, good for 123 yards, but he was also intercepted three times and the Prowlers didn't generate any yards on the ground and lost to the Roughriders 21-12.

Fall Sports Seasons Are Underway In Minnesota

Following three weeks of sweat and strain of two-a-day August workouts, the Minnesota State High School League's 68th football regular season unveiled when most of the 467 teams opened the season with games Friday night, reported Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publications.

For most squads the campaign will involve a nine-week, nine-game regular season. And for those teams that excel, the "March to the Metrodome" will follow in late October with playdowns leading to the second annual Prep Bowl, which will be held on Saturday, November 19.

All but 33 of the state's 500 high schools participate in interscholastic football. More than 22,000 young men are expected to be involved in the sport this fall.

For the 12th consecutive year the MSHSL will conduct state football playoffs in five classifications — AA, A, B, C and Nine-Man. Based on enrollment of schools within conferences, the five divisions comprise 65 conferences and 11 independents.

Classification enrollment figures to be used for a third straight year include Class AA — 800 students and above in the upper three grades; Class A — 799-320; Classes B and C — 319-under, with largest 50 per cent in Class B and smallest 50 per cent in Class C; and Nine-Man for all schools playing nine-man football.

A breakdown of schools playing in each division is as follows: AA — 81; A — 91; B — 93; C — 94; and Nine-Man — 108, for a 467 total.

Although there are changes in conference affiliation in some of the classes, the most significant being in Class B and Class C, for the most part there are no major changes for the 1983 season. The major change will come in 1984 when following regular season play, section playoffs leading to state playoff berths will take place in—each of the five classes.

Again this year conference champions and independents with outstanding won-lost records will enter post-season play in late October and early November.

Defending champions include AA — Stillwater; A — Brooklyn Center; B — LeCenter; C — Truman; and Nine-Man — Westbrook, which boasted the state's longest winning streak at 13 games. Unbeaten last year, the Wildcats opened against Sioux Valley-Round Lake on Friday.

Two or more schools agreeing to cooperative sponsorship programs is becoming more prevalent throughout Minnesota. This year in football nine such mergers were approved by the MSHSL board of directors. They include in Class B — Mountain Iron and Buhl; Cromwell and Floodwood; Class C — Preston-Fountain and Wykoff; Osakis and Villard; Gaylord and Winthrop; Gibbon and Fairfax; Nine-Man — East Chain and Granada-Huntley; Goodridge and Grygla; and Beardsley and Graceville.

Opening games during the first week in September were the first of a total of 2,081 that are scheduled for varsity teams during the 1983 regular season.

Volleyball

Meanwhile, Minnesota State High School League's tenth girls volleyball season began with matches last week, and all but 14 of the 500 member schools of the MSHSL will participate in the sport which is expected to involve more than 13,000 girls.

Defending state champions Robbinsdale Armstrong in Class AA and Mayer Lutheran in Class A each return a good nucleus of players from championship teams of a year ago and are hopeful of repeating as state titlists when the state tournament is conducted at the Met Center in Bloomington on November 18-19.

Robbinsdale Armstrong, winner of state championships in the past three years and a state tournament entrant five times in the nine-year history of the event, returns six players from its 1982 roster of 12. Coach Dennis Erickson's 1983 edition began play against Minneapolis Roosevelt Friday and will open conference play on Tuesday when hosting Hopkins.

Mayer Lutheran, meanwhile, like Armstrong, returns six players from their title team of last fall. Head coach Liz Spletzer is confident this year's contingent will again, seriously challenge for a state tournament berth. The Crusaders begin the season when playing host to St.

A veteran girls team and an inexperienced boys team will open the 1983 Lincoln high school cross country schedule Tuesday at Roseau.

Forty-seven runners in grades 6-12 are working under coach Lynn Dyer. The group includes ten boys in grades 10-12 and eight girls in grades 10-12. There are just three letter winners back for the boys, and only one of them was a full-time varsity starter in 1982. However, there are ten letter winners back for the girls, with last year's line-up nearly intact.

"I have no idea what to expect, especially out of the boys," admitted Dyer. "We've got some new faces who could be good runners if they keep working at it, but we've got absolutely no depth."

But while the boys will have to prove themselves this fall, a veteran group of girls could enjoy a productive season.

"We've got some good runners on the girl's side," acknowledged Dyer. "We've got everybody back. It's just a matter of getting everybody to run together."

Senior Kevin Kezar, the lone regular back, senior Jim Geatz and junior Mike Booren are the returning lettermen. Rest of the high school squad members are senior Bill Benedict; juniors Bob Breiland, Todd Wing, Paul Cuppett, Dave Dalager and Troy Skiem; sophomore Dave Winjum; and freshmen Brian Stark, Trent Lemer and Jim Breiland.

Varsity line-up for Tuesday's opener will include Kezar, Benedict, Geatz, Wing, Cuppett, Dalager and Winjum.

In the junior high ranks are eighth graders Shayne Anderson, Chris Oseid, Brian Joppru, John Dondelinger, Jason Brunkhorst, Sean Krepp, Grant Larson, Shoan Nelson, Dean Fugleberg and Harlen Altepeter; seventh graders Shawn Heinze, Aaron Tofte and Jeremy Sisler; plus sixth graders Lucas Soine, Mike Puetz, Jeremy Anderson, Mike Howe and Jon Anderson.

Returning letter winners for the girls are seniors Paula Wilkens, Sherry Sabo and Jessica Soine; juniors Lisa Howe, Stacie Kruta, Jackie Thune, Georgia Howard and Julie Finstad; plus eighth graders Edna Johnson and Jackie Smith.

Varsity line-up Tuesday will have Wilkens, Soine, Kruta, Howard, Finstad, Smith and eighth grader Peggy Cruz.

There are no sophomores or freshmen currently on the girls' roster. Junior high runners include eighth grader Cindy Kruta; seventh graders Gwen Aune and Chris Koch; plus sixth graders Rhonda Rothschadl and Christy Holthusen.

Thief River Falls will also be in action Thursday at Grand Forks.

AGRI-GROWTH REPORT!

by RUSS SCHWANDT

Farmer, Agribusinessman, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture in the 1960's and president of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, which was created to speak out for all groups, associations, companies in the state's agriculture industry.

Any reading of the work done by the recently completed session of the Minnesota State Legislature clearly indicates that the lawmakers put agricultural export and related international market development high on their list of priorities. In fact, it would appear that the legislature has a higher regard for international agricultural export and trade than does Governor Perpich. The questions about Perpich's commitment to developing international agricultural trade have been raised throughout the state following his surprising veto of monies that would have funded the international marketing efforts of the Duluth Port Authority.

Perpich did, however, sign into law all of the other major appropriations that the legislature made to encourage development of the international marketplace for agricultural export.

In all, $6.665 million was appropriated for all of the related aspects of international marketing and market development. The appropriation combines such measures as Rep. Willis Eken's (DFL-Twin Valley) extensive market development proposal with Rep. Jerry Schoenfeld's (DFL-Waseca) bill on matching funds for the agricultural commodity research and promotion groups. It also includes a concept pushed by Rep. Glen Anderson (DFL-Bellingham) for a World Trade Center project.

On the commodity "matching" portion of the new law, the appropriation is for $1 million. Under provisions included in the measure, each commodity group can obtain a maximum of $70,000. The monies will be made available on a 3-to-1 matching basis. In addition, the Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture must approve a "work plan" submitted by those commodity groups wishing to obtain monies under this now state funding mechanism. The "work plan" must set forth how the commodity group would use the matching dollars in the promotion of Minnesota's agricultural commodities. Much of this promotion is concentrated on developing the foreign markets for these Minnesota-grown commodities.

Tax Schemes May Deceive Taxpayers

Almost all tax schemes, regardless of what label a promoter puts on them, have a common element. They all claim they're designed to get you out of paying any taxes. Some are rather transparent while others, such as tax shelters, may appear to be very legitimate, according to C.D. Swizer, director of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in Minnesota.

Switzer provides this brief rundown on how a tax shelter works, examples of some abusive shelters and the tax penalties.

A tax shelter, in simple terms, offers people a chance to defer paying tax on income they have received. An IRA and the purchase of a home may be looked at as shelters because both offer the "tax deferral" feature.

In its probe of abusive tax shelters, the IRS is finding that many are designed to claim tax benefits never intended by the law. Generally, they are schemes, often sold for substantial fees, that involve artificial transactions and inflated appraisals; they're simply package deals designed from the start to generate paper losses far in excess of the investment.

Under one scheme, a person might purchase from a promoter for $200,000 an original lithographic plate and the rights to a limited number of prints. Only $30,000 however, is paid in cash and a loan the investor is not personally liable for, called a nonrecourse loan, is signed for $170,000 due many years later. Leverage involved makes the schemes' alleged tax benefits substantial, with a 50 per cent bracket taxpayer more than recouping his or her total outlay in the first year.

In another type of scheme, a gem dealer might offer an investor a packet of gems for $5,000 with the understanding that the investor will hold the gems for one year at which time the dealer provides a written appraisal inflating the value to $40,000. Packet of gems is then donated to a charitable organization and the investor claims a deduction eight times greater than the original investment.

In Minnesota, promoters are selling tax shelter schemes that claim large amounts of investment tax credit. Assets being used are often very large food storage containers, computers, or master recordings. Like the gems, the value of these assets is greatly overstated.

IRS agents here are examining almost 900 tax returns that appear to involve abusive tax shelter issues. Some common types of investments they are finding in addition to the containers, computers and recordings involve dogs and horses allegedly used for racing and gold and silver mines. In many cases the animals, typically housed in another state, are way past the age when they could be raced. Mines may not even exist or have long ceased to be productive.

There are now penalties aimed at promoters of abusive tax shelters, persons who aid in the understatement of someone else's tax or who file frivolous returns, and stiffer criminal tax penalties.

Penalty for promoters of abusive tax shelters is 10 per cent of the promoter's income from the promotion, or $1,000, whichever is more. It will be imposed on anyone who organizes or sells a tax shelter scheme and who knowingly makes false statements about tax benefits from that scheme or who overstates the value of any tax shelter property or service by more than 200 per cent.

Anyone who assists or advises in preparing a tax return or other document that, if used, could result in the understatement of another person's tax is now subject to a penalty of $1,000. If the understatement happens on a corporate return, the penalty is $10,000.

There is also a $500 penalty for filing a frivolous income tax return. This is one that does not contain enough information to determine the correctness of the tax shown on it, that clearly shows an incorrect tax or that stakes out a frivolous position, for example, that the income tax law is unconstitutional.

These new penalties were authorized by the tax equity and fiscal responsibility act of 1982. They are designed to curb abuses of the tax laws.

In addition to these new civil penalties, the act raises various criminal fines. Maximum fine for criminal tax evasion for individuals goes from $10,000 to $100,000, and to $500,000 for corporations. Fine for criminal fraud and false statements increases from $5,000 to $100,000 and to $500,000 for corporations.

Landowners Monitoring Area Rainfall

Landowers in the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district are assisting the state climatology department in monitoring rainfall in the area, according to Cheryl Sistad, district clerk.

"The result of their work shown when the district recently received a telephone call from Earl Kuehnast, state climatologist, concerning the recent rains we had on August 20-21," Sistad said. "District staff checked with our local observers and also others in the area as to the amounts of rainfall they recorded. The state climatology department was then able to prepare a map showing the differing amounts of rainfall for the area."

Rain gauges are located about 12 miles throughout the state. Those currently monitoring rain gauges in the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district are Ordean Anderson, Oliver Howland and Lawrence Neuschwander all of Grygla, Carol Anderson of Goodridge and Peter Aune of Gatzke.

City Seeks To Cut Rainwater Put In Sewers

In an effort to prevent recurrence of serious problems which resulted from overloading of the sanitary sewer system during a recent rainstorm, the city of Thief River Falls is asking residents of problem areas to complete a questionnaire intended to help identify sources of excess water entering the system.

Questionnaires were distributed to residents living in the Cartway Drive, Sherwood Forest and Edgewood Drive developments and in the area north of Third Street between Markley and Pine Avenues. Numerous reports of damage caused by water and sewage backing up into basements were received from these areas following a storm August 20, when about seven inches of rain fell in a very short time.

Wastewater department employees noted that even though all pumps at the lift stations were operating, they were unable to keep up with the flow entering the sanitary sewer system, which was at three times its normal level during and after the storm.

Major contribution to the problem is believed to be sump pumps and foundation drain tile directed into the sanitary sewer system. In order to correct the problem, the city is attempting to gather as much information as possible to identify problem areas so that infiltration can be reduced. Citizens who are unfamiliar with the plumbing in their homes can contact building inspector Bob Bregier by calling 681-2500. He or an employee of the utilities department will inspect the basement to determine whether the plumbing is contributing to the problem.

Inspectors will also make recommendations to homeowners on how to correct problems where sump pumps and drain tile are directed into the sanitary sewer. Voluntary compliance with the city's plumbing code will be sought, since homes contributing to the problem are also among the most likely to suffer damages.

Although it is against city code, to connect drainage systems into the sanitary sewer system, some such connections may have been made before the ordinance was passed or by unscrupulous builders or contractors. City council has noted that, at one time, builders were encouraged to connect drainfields into the sanitary sewer system in the belief that the extra water would be beneficial to the lagoon system. However, the wastewater system is designed to operate best at an optimum level. According to Bud Enge, wastewater engineer, it just wouldn't be cost effective or practical to build a system capable of handling volumes that are experienced as seldom as every seven years. Rainwater simply overloads the system unnecessarily, and should be eliminated wherever possible.

Law Changes May Affect Estimated Tax

If you file state quarterly estimated tax, recent law changes may require you to amend the amount of your total 1983 estimate payments, according to state income tax director, C.E. Peterson, Jr. Failure to do so could result in the assessment of an underestimate penalty of as much as 14 per cent.

Some of the recent law changes that could increase your state tax liability are:

— Ten per cent federal tax reduction that went into effect July 1 will result in an increase in your state liability.

— Changes in the medical and casualty loss deductions for state purposes.

— Investment credit is no longer an allowable deduction on the state return.

— If you are a public employee, and file an estimate, your pension contribution was ruled exempt from federal tax, but must be added back on your state return.

— If receiving severence pay, the method of computation for state purposes has been changed.

— Elimination of the individual housing account.

To complete the amendment for your total declaration payment, determine your total tax liability due for 1983; subtract what you previously paid in April and June of 1983; remit the balance in two payments, one-half on September 15, and the balance on January 16, 1984.

If you have any questions on whether you should amend your estimate, or how to go about doing it call 1-800-632-9094.

1983 amended M-14 forms were mailed to all persons filling a declaration of estimated tax for 1983.

If your total declaration payments are adequate in amount, please disregard this form.

The young musicians stayed in the homes of people in the countries they visited and presented the program in churches or public auditoriums. As a final concert the 15 groups combined their talents in a program at the Anaheim (CA) convention center on August 23. Mr. and Mrs. Hess were in attendance at the concert which filled the large convention center.

U'M' Licensed To Develop Transit System

A worldwide licensing agreement for the manufacture, construction and marketing of newly developed, high-tech personal repid transit system (PRT) has been signed by officials of the University of Minnesota and Automated Transportation systems.

Terms of the agreement were not revealed, but the officials reported that the university will hold an equity position, will receive royalties and has applied for patents for the technology. "This technology could develop a whole new industry and be a model of what can be done in technology transfer," said Ken Keller, vice president for academic affairs at the university.

The PRT was developed in the university's institute of technology based on the design and under the direction of J. Edward Anderson, who is now on leave from his position as professor of mechanical engineering. He is executive vice president, chief operating officer and a director of automated transportation. Other officials of the new corporation include chief executive officer Richard Gehring, former president of Sperry Univac, and board member John McNulty, a Twin Cities attorney.

Computer - controlled system utilizes many three-passenger vehicles powered by linear induction motors running on narrow elevated guideways, according to Anderson. Automatic vehicles will be nonstop from a passenger's departure point to a final station destination.

Plans called for PRTs to be used as transit systems in downtowns as well as in business centers, airports, recreational centers, industrial parks, medical centers, college complexes and other areas where this mode of transportation could be useful.

Stumpf Favors Wolf Control By State DNR

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, a member of the Minnesota Senate agriculture and natural resources committee, this week voiced support for a plan to place the control of wolves in the state under the authority of the state department of natural resources.

"There have been several incidents of local predation of livestock by wolves in our area recently, such as the four sheep killed by wolves near Goodridge last week," Stumpf said. "I believe that it just makes good sense to put the control of Minnesota wolves back into state hands, where it rightfully belongs."

Recently, the U.S. fish and wildlife service declared an exemption to the federal endangered species act which provides for a limited harvest of wolves in the state, and the DNR is seeking even greater jurisdiction over the wolves in Minnesota.

"I know there are many metropolitan residents, and some environmentalists in the state, who don't — and can't — truly appreciate the serious problem we have with wolves here now under federal control," Stumpf said. "I am convinced the DNR can do as good a job, or better, of managing the wolf, and I support the return to state control of this animal," he added.

Teachers And School Board To Meet Thur.

Next negotiations session between the Thief River Falls board of education and the Thief River Falls Education association has been scheduled for Thursday at 5 p.m. at the school district service center.

At the August 24 negotiating session, the TRFEA rejected the school board's third proposal and requested that a mediator be obtained to help resolve an agreement for the 1983-1985 master contract. The association also expressed the desire to continue to meet and negotiate during the interim.

In rejecting the board offer, the TRFEA noted it was ". . . very disappointed that the school board wishes to still gut out the existing language of the 1981-83 contract and refuses to offer the association any increase in monies in an amount that the capable and professional teachers of Thief River Falls deserve".

Supt. Robert Block said the board agreed that mediation should be requested and a formal request has been made to the state board for mediation services. He said the most recent proposal of the TRFEA was rejected by the board and, according to his calculations, would call for a total increase of 18.3 per cent ($851,750) in salary and fringe benefits in 1983-84 and an additional 9.7 per cent ($536,173) in 1984-85.

People with accumulations of newspapers are asked to have them boxed or bundled and left at the curb by 10 a.m. Plastic bags should not be used since they will not be picked up in the paper collection.

Thune Sisters Sew Way To State Fair's Top Awards

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

SUSIE THUNE earned a purple ribbon in intermediate division clothing construction at the Minnesota state fair with this three-piece outfit including lined skirt and jacket of 100 per cent wool and a polyester blouse. She is shown with a sewing machine and china hutch which were refinished by her sister Collette in the 4-H home environment project.

COLLETTE THUNE is shown with the blue ultra-suede outfit that won a purple ribbon in clothing construction at the Minnesota state fair advanced division. The ensemble included skirt and lined jacket in ultra-suede, a second skirt of lined wool and a silk blouse.

When Collette and Susie Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club received purple ribbon "Awards of Excellence" in the advanced and intermediate divisions of the 4-H clothing construction competition at the Minnesota state fair, they joined an elite group of seamstresses to receive that honor. It is rare for two entrants from the same county to capture the honors, and for sisters to accomplish the feat is unique.

And what adds to the story is the fact that a third sister, Jackie, was the Pennington county style revue queen this year and therefore eligible to compete in the state 4-H style revue. Potential was there for a possible third purple ribbon for the sisters. But Jackie elected to take the state trip she won in the county 4-H horse show instead, and will compete in the state horse show September 19, 20 and 21.

Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Thune of rural Thief River Falls, Collette, Jackie and Susie have a combined total of 27 years of participation in the 4-H clothing project. Collette, now a freshman at St. Thomas college in St. Paul, was a 10-year clothing project member. Jackie, 16, is a junior at Lincoln high school and has nine years of 4-H clothing project work. Susie, 15, is a sophomore at Lincoln with eight years in the clothing project.

Except for a five-session tailoring course which Collette once took, the girls credit "Mom and books" for their sewing knowledge. Add to that their extensive experience in sewing and an interest in fashion and clothing design. Except when sewing for competition, however, the girls find little time to make their own clothes since they are active in a number of other interests.

Since the sisters have shared interests in sewing and have fared well in 4-H club competition for a number of year, it is easy to think of them as a trio rather than individuals. Yet each has personal goals and interests and an individual record that merits special attention.

Collette estimates that she has sewn approximately 25 garments during her 10 years in the clothing project and participation in the Make It Yourself with Wool competition. Some of those "garments" include five-piece suits.

In the 10 years of 4-H club clothing project work, she has won six county championships in clothing construction and three in the dress revue. She has entered the wool sewing contest four times, winning three times and making two trips to state competition, finishing second in the state once.

Her winning outfit this year was a four-piece ensemble. The main skirt and lined jacket were of blue ultra-suede and were matched with a lined heringbone wool skirt and light blue silk blouse.

In addition to the clothing project, Collette has carried 4-H club projects in sheep, foods, needlework, home environment, child care, indoor garden, horse, goat, photography, rabbits, vegetable and flower gardening and junior leadership. Her home environment project included refinishing a number of pieces of furniture which will be available to her when she has a home of her own.

Jackie estimates she has sewn about 15 outfits in her clothing work and has won one championship in construction at the county fair as well as two titles in the 4-H dress revue. She has entered the wool sewing contest twice and placed second in her division once.

Her outfit this year is of 100 per cent wool and will allow her to enter the Make It Yourself with Wool contest again this fall. The full, front-pleated skirt is lined, as is the grey striped brown jacket. Her polyester blouse is charcoal blue.

While she enjoyed the state fair style revue last year, she also enjoys horse show competition and will ride her six-year-old Appaloosa gelding "Union Man" in the state show. She qualified for entry in showmanship, western horsemanship, western pleasure, English equitation, English pleasure, western reining and hunter hack by winning blue ribbons in those events at the county show.

Jackie's other 4-H club projects over the years include sheep, needlework, photography, indoor gardening, foods, entomology and flower gardening.

And she still has two years of competition left in the sewing project.

Susie has made about 13 garments during her eight years in the clothing project and has won three county championships in construction and two in the dress revue. In her two years of entering the JACKIE THUNE made and modeled this outfit to earn the Pennington county 4-H style revue crown at the county fair this summer. Eligible to compete in the state 4-H style revue at the state fair, she elected instead to enter her horse in the state horse show. She earned blue ribbons in seven horse show events and can enter each of those events at the state show. Only a few of the Thune horse show tropies are shown in the background — along with the jacket that completes Jackie's outfit.

Council Hears Complaints Of Bug Swarms

Thief River Falls city council heard complaints about insects and approved bids for construction and repairs among other business during an adjourned regular meeting held last night in council chambers at city auditorium.

Citizens living in the vicinity of the sewage treatment lagoons on the west side of the city brought complaints that large numbers of insects hatching from the ponds made it difficult to conduct any type of outdoor activity. They noted that large swarms of the bugs "plastered" their buildings and clogged radiator screens on farm equipment so badly that they had to be scraped off in order to continue working in the fields. One resident noted that he had to scoop them up with a shovel under the light on his garage. He noted that it was an annual problem, especially bad during July and August.

Alderman Bill Penning questioned them about the nature of the insects, determining that they were larger than a mosquito, but did not

Sparby Asks Rescinding Of Loan Changes

Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls has sent a formal request to Agriculture Secretary John Block asking that the new procedures for emergency loan applicants be rescinded "within the next few days."

In his letter to Block, Rep. Sparby pointed out the "disastrous weather condition in Pennington, Marshall and Red Lake counties of Minnesota. Farmers are witnessing their fourth year of extreme losses in crop production with estimated losses of $160 million," he wrote.

"It has been brought to my attention that the procedures have been changed for emergency loan applicants who now have to go under the criteria of 30 per cent loss for the county," wrote Sparby. "It is our opinion that this procedure should revert to the procedure existing in 1980.

"In reviewing and discussing this change with farmers involved, it appears as if the department of agriculture is attempting to create a much more difficult procedure for aquiring an emergency loan.

"Prior to this ridiculous new ruling, it was permissible for a disaster declaration to be provided for the county for an individual farmer. Today, this is no longer possible, and we must have 30 per cent of the farmers in a given county suffering the economic losses in order to be eligible for disaster aid," he wrote.

Calling the present procedure "in itself a disaster;" Rep. Sparby requested an immediate change in the department of agriculture ruling.

Broderson-Peters Vows Spoken At Newfolden

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Peters are at home in Moorhead following an exchange of marriage vows at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden and a Carribbean cruise wedding trip.

The bride, the former Charmaine Rae Brodersen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Brodersen of Newfolden. Mrs. Fern Peters, Viking, is the mother of the groom.

Rev. Robert Moberg officiated at the double ring, mid-afternoon ceremony. Diane Waterworth was the organist and Craig Swenson and Kurt Vandermeer sang "Two Candles," "God A Woman and a Man" and "My Love." Acolytes were Karen Holmstrom, friend of the bride, and Mitch Brodersen, brother of the bride.

Baskets of white roses and pastel forget-me-nots graced the chancel and white satin bows with ferns accented the candelabra and marked the pews. The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white bridal satin gown designed and sewn by her mother. The fitted empire bodice with lace overlay was stayled with a Queen Anne neckline edged with lace ruffling which flowed back to the zippered closure accented with pearl buttons. Lace appliques in rose design graced the bodice and trimmed the long sleeves of point d'esprit lace gathered into lace trimmed satin cuffs that came to a point over her wrists. Matching appliques enhanced the gored, satin skirt. Edging the skirt were satin and lace ruffles which expended into a chapel-length train with an overlay of soft neeting. A profile headpiece held her bouffant veil of bridal sheer. She carried a cascade of white roses and forget-me-nots in her chosen pastel colors of blue, mint green, yellow, peach, pink and lavender.

Shanna Brodersen, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown of pastel blue voile over white featured a bloused bodice, elasticized at the waistline, a flounced scoop neckline and a full skirt edged with a wide lace ruffle. A white satin sash encircled the waistline. She carried white lace parasol complimented by a cluster of foreget-me-nots, matching her gown.

The pillared, three-tiered wedding cake, baked by Mrs. Clarence Molakness of Thief River Falls, was flanked on either side by a round cake connected by a stairway with replicas of the bridal party on the steps. At the base was a flowing water fountain. A miniature bride and groom, topped the cake which was cut and served by Bonnie Alafouzos and Shari Peters, aunts of the groom. Pouring coffee were JoAnn Peters, aunt of the groom, and Lorraine Warne, aunt of the bride, and Ella Larson, great-aunt of the groom.

A white satin wedding banner, made by the bride, graced the chancel.

The bride and groom were escorted to the altar and given in marriage by their parents. For her wedding, the bride selected a princess styled gown of Chantilly lace fashioned with Queen Anne neckline and long bishop sleeves with deep cuffs. The skirt featured a scalloped, pick-up flounce over pleated chiffon. Her fingertip veil was held by a headband of lace and pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses, gardenias, and stephanoties, accented with trailing ivy.

Attending the bride were her friends: Marcia Hiller, Madison, Wis., as maid of honor; Shari Kluth, Kenosha, Wis., Valerie Koukios, Park Ridge, Wis., and Vicki Jardine, Port Wing, Wis., as bridesmaids. Their gowns of light pink cotton with white embroidered flowers were complemented by ruffled necklines and hemlines. In their hair, they wore a pink flower spray on a comb. They carried arm bouquets of pink roses and babies' breath.

9 Candidates Seek Hospital Board Posts

Medical doctor candidates include Dr. Arnold Berg and Dr. Duane Davidson. All positions are for three-year terms on the board and all members of the hospital association are eligible to vote in the election.

In addition to the election, the annual meeting program will include presentation of reports by officers and committees associated with the hospital and an educational presentation entitled "Changing Times — New Directions". Registration will begin at approximately 6:45 p.m.

A summary of the board candidates (listed alphabetically) as gathered by the hospital association includes the following:

Darrell Bakke — A resident of Thief River Falls for more than 20 years and a member of the board for three years, Darrell is an insurance agent, member of the chamber of commerce, Life Underwriters association and Redeemer Lutheran church. He believes hospital board service is a challenge and requires a couple of years of experience to be a knowledgeable participant. Board continuity is important, he said, and he believes the present board provides a good administrative team.

Dr. Arnold Berg — A resident of Thief River Falls since 1965, Dr. Berg is a family practice physician with the Falls clinic professional association. He is a member of the American Medical association, member of the board of family practice and secretary of the Red River Valley medical society. His interest in board service includes the belief that the hospital has a need for building, especially as evidenced in the older areas of the hospital where there is no air conditioning during this hot summer.

Rodney Brodin — Rodney is vice president of Brodin Sheet Metal and has lived in Thief River Falls for 50 years. He is on the board of directors of Valley home and a member of the Evangelical Covenant church and Gideons International. He says he is interested in the health needs of the community and providing the best care for the most reasonable costs.

Dale Dillon — Owner-manager of Paint and Glass Supply, Dillon has lived in Thief River Falls for 14 years, is a past president of the chamber of commerce and involved in the retail business association. He believes the hospital is an important part of the community and it is necessary to maintain its role and reputation as a good medical facility.

Dr. Duane Davidson — In family practice with the Thief River clinic here for the past 19 years, Dr. Davidson is a member of the Red River Valley and American Medical associations. He feels service on the board of trustees of the hospital would permit him to be of additional service to the field of medicine in our area.

Morris Howick — Born and reared in the Thief River Falls area, Morris spent much of his life away from Thief River Falls before returning here to retire. He is chairman of the Pennington county council on aging and the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls as well as a member of the Trinity Lutheran church board. He previously served on the hospital board in 1960. Howick believes that senior citizens should be represented on the board of trustees and that there is no such representation on the present board.

Roger Reuter — President of Norwest Bank of Thief River Falls, Reuter has lived in Thief River Falls for seven and one-half years and has been a hospital board member for three years. He is also a member of the Lions club and a member of the chamber of commerce board of directors. His decision to seek hospital board membership three years ago was based on the belief he could provide assistance in financial areas and long range planning. He also believes continuity in board service is critical to smooth administration.

Angeline Steinhauer — A farm wife and part-time instructor in the science program at Northland community college, Angeline is a lifetime resident of the area and a member of the hospital association for two years. A former hospital employee with a degree in medical technology, she is a member of St. Bernard's Catholic church, serving as a Eucharistic minister, circle member and volunteer in the Birthright organization. She is also a homemaker club member and works part-time with the WIC program. She is concerned about the quality of care and attraction of area patients to the local hospital.

Chris Twomey — Now director of corporate administration for Arctco, Inc., Chris has lived in Thief River Falls for eight years and was formerly director of the occupational development center. He is a past president of the Rotary club, chairman of the chamber of commerce legislative committee and a member of St. Bernard's Catholic church. He foresees many changes in the next few years in hospital operation and medical care and believes his present hospital board experience will help guide in hospital policy decisions resulting in good medical care for patients.

Thune Sisters Sew Way To State Awards

wool sewing contest she has won two first place awards on the district level.

This year she will also enter the Make It Yourself with Wool contest again, having sewn a wool outfit which won the state fair award of excellence. The ensemble includes a mauve wool lined jacket, very full striped lined wool skirt of light and dark grey and mauve with front pleat, and a mauve polyester blouse.

Also a horse show competitor, Susie entered the state horse show last year and finished second in horsemanship in a class of more than 80 riders. Her other projects include sheep, rabbits, child care, flower gardening, photography, home environment, needlework, foods and entomology.

Now back in school for the fall, Collette is adjusting to dormitory life in college, and Jackie is a member of the Lincoln cross-country team and Susie is involved in junior varsity volleyball. The sewing machines and fabrics are set aside as other interests come to the fore. But next spring when it is time to prepare once again for the county fair, the urge to sew will once again rise in Pennington county's sewing sisters.

Council Hears Complaint Of Bug Swarms

bite. He noted that the council would need to get an entomologist to identify the insect and determine whether its life cycle was part of the biological process used to treat wastewater in the ponds. Mayor Bob Carlson assured the residents that every attempt would be made to reduce the problem as soon as they had determined what was the best course of action to take.

Council voted to accept the bid of Molstad Excavating Inc., Grand Forks, ND, for improvements to be made to the alley south of First Street, between Main and LaBree Avenues. Although the bid of $44,155 was the only one received, it was accepted since it was within 10 per cent of consulting engineer David Kildahl's estimate of $40,762. Kildahl noted that approximately $6,500 of that cost was additional concrete work on the Bridgeman's property which would be billed directly to them. Remainder of the cost will be assessed against adjoining property owners which are Northwestern Hospital, Bridgeman's Inc., and the city. Kildahl estimated that the city's share would be between $3,000 and $5,000. Assessment hearing will be scheduled for the latter part of October.

Quotes for replacement of a 6,000 gallon fuel tank at the crash, fire and rescue building at the airport were also reviewed. Lee Plumbing's quote of $5,776 was accepted. Only other quote received was from Determan Tank for $6,060. Cost of the replacement will be divided, with the state paying two-thirds and the city paying one-third.

Council approved a recommendation from the finance committee that architect Gerald Mundt be contacted and asked to express something definite within 60 days, regarding his proposal for the purchase and remodeling of the old Carnegie Library building. Mundt's offer to purchase the building for restoration and creation of an office complex was contingent on completion of feasibility studies regarding rental of office space.

Mayor Carlson noted that three volunteer firemen possibly four, were expressing definite interest in the permanent fire fighter position made available by the appointment of David Bjorkman as chief. Public safety committee recommended that they screen applicants from the list of volunteers before advertising for the position. Council approved the recommendation, noting that the committee would be meeting at noon, Thursday.

Request was heard from Gloria Kildahl and Cor Flynn to utilize the basement of the Carnegie Library building for teaching aerobic dance classes. Their request was approved and referred to the building committee for negotiation of rent based on number of persons in the classes. Council noted that use of the building could be terminated if it was sold. The women intend to hold classes on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights, and Friday mornings.

Council noted that the regional league of cities meeting is scheduled for Thursday at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls, discussing plans for attendance at the meeting and other related items. Workshops will be held in the afternoon, with the meeting to follow social activities starting at 5:30 p.m.

Alderman Ken Murphy noted that the sanitation committee would be meeting today, Wednesday, with the Roseau county board to attempt to negotiate a three year contract to haul solid wastes to the sanitary landfill at Saloi.

New MEA Head Says Teachers Still Militant

"Teacher-school board negotiations are lagging behind the pace of two years ago, but the atmosphere on the surface is less hectic, even though teachers continue to be militant."

This summation comes from Martha Lee (Marti) Zins, president of the Minnesota Education association (MEA). The teacher union is exclusive bargaining agent for all but 58 of the state's 434 kindergarten-12th grade public school districts.

By the end of August, petitions for mediation had been received at the Bureau of Mediation Services (BMS) from 320 of those districts. At this time two years ago (the last time biennial teacher contracts were bargained), that figure was just under 400.

So far this year, Zins reports, there are 10 ratified agreements and eight tentative agreements, with a few more about to be resolved.

The step following mediation is mutually agreed-to arbitration or a legal strike. Two years ago, there were three dozen legal strikes by teachers.

First day that a notice of intent to strike can be filed is September 13. The first date a legal teacher strike can occur is September 24.

"The atmosphere this time around," Zins concludes, "is much less hectic on the surface than it was two years ago. This time around, there isn't the kind of — nor as much of — the pent-up frustration that had evolved over a long, long period of time up to 1981, but there is underlying tension."

"Teachers continue to be militant. The bargaining arena is defined. We will not back off," she said.

Stable Program Needed To Ease Farm Burdens

Stable, long term farm programs are needed to help farmers out from under the burden of subsidizing today's economy, according to members of the Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors. Farmers repeatedly subsidize the economy, they said, by accepting low commodity prices and taking the blame for expected rises in food prices due to the poor weather.

Reports of economic recovery for most segments of America do not take into account the depressed conditions farmers still face, the directors said in a meeting in St. Paul recently. Farmers, as the first link in the food chain, still receive a price for their crops at below their cost of production, keeping food prices low for consumers. In a report last week, those low food prices were credited for keeping the economy on an even keel, with only a four-tenths of one per cent increase in inflation for July.

The U.S. labor department report credited declining food prices as a major factor in the leveling of inflation at about five per cent for the near future. What the report fails to take into account, according to the Farmers Union county leaders, is that prices received on the farm are the only ones that have dropped — it is safe to say that processing, packaging, advertising and merchandizing prices have stayed the same or perhaps increased.

"We think it is time to clear the air. Rural communities, and particularly farmers, repeatedly subsidize the rest of the economy by accepting low prices for their products and taking a loss in their businesses," the board members said.

"At the same time, farmers are receiving bad publicity for an expected increase in food prices next year due to this year's drought and bad crop in most parts of the country. It seems to us that those commenting on the economy expected both worlds — an improved economy for most Americans and lower food prices at the expense of the farmer at the same time.

"We appreciate low food prices too, but not at the expense of our economic health. What we would most like to see is a recovery for all Americans — including farmers and rural Americans — and a recognition that agriculture as a renewable resource industry contributes to, rather than takes away from, the nation's economic health. Without a farm recovery, we won't have a lasting, sustainable recovery for the rest of the nation," the board members said.

To achieve this, the board called on elected officials to lead the way in developing public understanding for the contributions of agriculture. Public officials should reinforce a positive attitude toward agriculture with a comprehensive, long-term farm and food policy that will allow the farm economy to recover and prosper with the rest of America, the directors said.

U'M' Workshop Will Focus On Teaching

Teaching others will be the subject of a class at the 8th annual north country arts and crafts workshop sponsored by the university of Minnesota's agricultural extension service on September 27 through 29.

Linda Johnson, a county extension agent and educator from Virginia will teach the class, showing how to reorganize a class, making a model lesson plan, identifying ways in which adults and youth learn best, and making visuals to aid learning.

Volunteers from 4-H, scouting, church groups, homemakers groups, and other civic organizations will find the class helpful. Living resourcefully is another aspect of the workshop, with classes in remodeling and recycling clothing, clothes closet economy, home furnishings, heirloom braided rugs, and recovering lampshades. Classes are open to both men and women, with fishing skills, wood carving and build your own birdhouse expected to be the most attractive.

International language village near Bemidji is the site of the event, which features food and lodging packages in addition to classes and evening entertainment. Brochures may be obtained from your county extension office. Registration deadline is September 9, to avoid a late fee of $2.

Farm Accident Videotape Is Training Film

Serious farm injuries occur with great frequency in today's modern agricultural community. A videotape entitled, "1st Care," has been produced as a public service by North Memorial medical center in Robbinsdale to educate farmers whose occupation makes them potential accident victims.

"1st Care" is being distributed to any interested parties through the Minnesota Farm Bureau, 1976 Wooddale Drive, PO. Box 43370, St. Paul, MN 55164, and can be viewed at the Farm Bureau booth at the 1983 Minnesota state fair.

One of five farm families will experience a serious farm related accident. Statistically, most injuries in a rural setting are discovered by a family member. The victim's life often depends on how effectively the family member deals with the initials emergency.

The "1st Care" videotape portrays a serious farm accident from the time it happens, through the necessary steps taken after the mishap and the pre-hospital first-care procedures. It follows the accident victim from the accident scene through emergency transport to a hospital emergency department and operating room through hospitalization and on to recovery.

Jaycee Women Bike-A-Thon To Help Project

In cooperation with the Minnesota Jaycee Women priority project to assist the American Brittle Bone society, Thief River Falls Jaycee Women are sponsoring a bike-a-thon September 18. Persons interested in participating may call Carolyn Schmitz at 681-6143 or 681-5555.

Brittle Bones is the name applied to Osteogenesis Imperfecta, a disabling disease in which bones break easily, often from little or no apparent cause. People who are afflicted with it endure a lifetime of serious medical problems and physical limitations, in addition to the pain of numerous bone fractures.

Individuals with the disease may suffer a few or as many as several hundred fractures in a lifetime. Some children are so severely affected they do not survive infancy.

In addition to fractures, persons with Brittle Bones disease may have other symptoms including short stature, skeletal deformities, hearing loss, breakable teeth, heart and lung problems, frequent pneumonia, extremeley weak muscles, hernias, easy bruising, anaesthetic risk, loose ligaments and blue sclera (whites of the eyes).

Some forms of Osteogenesis Inperfecta are dominantly inherited; others are likely recessive. In many cases there is no previous family history of the disease. Brittle Bones occurs about once in every 15,000 live births with an estimated 30,000 Americans currently affected.

Osteogenesis Imperfecta is considered a connective tissue disease, but the basic biochemical abnormality is not yet known. Treatment is therefore directed toward symptoms and includes care of fractures, extensive surgical and dental procedures and physical therapy. Wheelchairs, braces and other custom-made equipment are often necessities.

"Hope for an end to the suffering caused by this disease lies in research that will lead to improved treatment, carrier detection and eventually a cure," Carolyn Schmitz said. "This is the primary goal of the American Brittle Bone society. Minnesota Jaycee Women have chosen support of the fight against the disease as a two-year priority project."

Senator Asks Reagan Not To Think Embargo

Senator Dave Durenberger has strongly urged President Reagan not to consider cancelling the newly signed long term grain agreement with the Soviet Union.

In a letter delivered to President Reagan, who arrived in Washington to consider retaliatory measures toward the Soviet Union following its destruction of a Korean passenger aircraft, Senator Durenberger said that any advice to nullify the new grain deal or to impose any kind of economic embargo against Russia would be "shortsighted and should be rejected."

"The experience of the past 10 years clearly shows that the absence of world-wide participation, embargoes are ineffective... The inescapable fact is that an embargo hurts us, not the Soviet Union."

Durenberger warned that competitors in the world grain market have the capacity to "take over" any grain markets the U.S. vacates. "To put it simply," Durenberger stated, "we do not have a cartel of grain and the United States cannot go it alone."

In his letter to the President, Durenberger reminded him that "you signed into law the sanctity of contract provisions contained in the commodity futures trading act (PL 97-444). Your actions that day sent a signal to the world that this administration had rejected the embargo policies of the past. More important, your actions restored the bond of trust between the farmer and his government which had been so callously severed by the Carter grain embargo."

Durenberger urged the President to weigh his actions carefully and not to put the burden of retaliatory punishment on the American farmer, and to "use caution and restraint in formulating an appropriate response by this government."

TWNETY-SEVEN YEARS of combined participation in the 4-H club clothing project have been compiled by (left to right) Collette, Jackie and Susie Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club. Collette, who is now a freshman at St. Thomas college in St. Paul, was in the project for 10 years. Jackie, a junior at Lincoln high school, has carried the clothing project for seven years and Susie, a sophomore at Lincoln, is a seven-year clothing project member. Collette and Susie captured top honors in the advanced and intermediate divisions of the state fair this year in clothing construction, winning purple ribbons. Jackie was county style revue queen but elected to take a state trip in the horse project rather than the clothing project. They all credit "Mom and books" for their sewing skills.

Skylite Apts. Modernization To Begin Soon

Construction activities at Skylite Apartments, 415 South Arnold Avenue, Thief River Falls, should begin within a week.

On September 1, the board of commissioners of the housing and redevelopment authority of Thief River Falls awarded the contract for comprehensive improvements to Sunrise Builders, Inc. of Bemidji, who submitted the low bid of $423,625. Other bidders for the project were Construction Engineers, Ltd., $437,000, and Twin City Construction Co., $465,000.

Project includes many energy conservation measurers, including addition of insulation, reroofing, stripping and restaining the siding, sidewalk and patio replacements, and minor landscaping. Work should begin the week of September 12 and is expected to be substantially completed by February 12, according to Stewart & Walker, Inc., architectural consultant for the project.

Dairy Refund Program Starts September 1

Dairy producers who wish a refund of their second 50-cent per hundred weights deduction for milk marketings should establish their base marketings at the Marshall county ASCS office, said Leo Orpen, chairman, Marshall county agricultural stabilization and conservation service.

Dairy refund program will go into effect September 1 with implementation of the second 50 cent milk marketing deduction. To be eligible for a 1982-83 marketing year refund, producers must reduce their commercial milk marketings for September 1, 1983, through September 30, 1983, by 8.4 per cent from the September average of the two marketing years that began October 1, 1980. To be eligible for a 1983-84 marketing year refund, producers must reduce their commercial milk marketings by 8.4 per cent for the period October 1, 1983, to September 30, 1984. Average annual marketings between October 1, 1980 through September 30, 1982, will be the producer's base marketings, Orpen said.

Acceptable documentation of milk marketings are payment receipts or statements from milk handlers that show both the amount of milk sold each months during the base period and the upcoming refund period. Receipts for the refund period should also show the amount of money deducted for USDA's commodity credit corporation (CCC) to help offset the cost of the milk support program.

Producers who sell milk directly to consumers should provide the county office with sales records and cancelled checks as proof of marketings and the amounts paid to CCC.

Orpen said that producers may establish their bases at ASCS offices any time during the marketing year. They may file applications for 1982-83 marketing year refunds from October 1, 1983, through December 31, 1983. Applications for the full 1983-84 marketing year may be filed between October 1, 1984 and December 31, 1984 marketing year may filed between October 1, 1984 and December 31, 1984. Amount refunded will be the amount the producer paid to CC in excess of the first, nonrefundable, 50-cent deduction.

Producers may request an advance of 60 per cent of the refundable deduction paid during the first six months of the 1983-84 marketing year any time on or after April 1, 1984. Producers requesting this advance must furnish pertinent milk marketing records and certify that the required 8.4 per cent reduction in marketings will be made for the entire marketing year.

Both the milk marketing deductions and dairy refund program are authorized by the Omnibus budget reconciliation act of 1982. These actions have been taken to reduce milk production and to reduce cost of the dairy price support program, Orpen said. CCC expects to purchase more than 18 billion pounds of dairy products in the year ending September 30, and more than 15 billion pounds during the 1983-84 marketing year.

Schwandt Woos Union Support On Waterways

Russel G. Schwandt, president of the Minnesota Agri-Growth council, a lifelong advocate of water transportation for the movement of American agricultural production, last month took his opposition to water-user fees for American waterways before the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA).

According to veteran union members, Schwandt's appearance, as a featured speaker at the ILA's international convention in Miami, was the first time a representative of American agriculture had been granted such an opportunity.

Because of the ILA's role in controlling labor on the ports of the United States and Canada, those farmers and agribusiness people who are involved in the international movement of agricultural commodities for foreign export have long been aware of the union's significant influence, especially in Washington, D.C.

In his speech, Schwandt called on the ILA to join with American agriculture "to send a strong message to Washington."

"They (officials in Washington, D.C.) are making a tragic mistake," Schwandt told the ILA, "by failing to support a bold, new, aggressive program to modernize and improve the waterways of this nation. I tell you that our organization is totally and unalterably opposed to the imposition of user fees.

"The greatest investment that the American people can make with their tax dollars," Schwandt told the ILA members, "is in the waterways of this nation."

Schwandt termed water-user fees "a regressive tax" on agriculture. "To tax us for what the environmentalists and others are demanding is wrong," he stated.

The former Minnesota commissioner of agriculture concluded by noting that "water represents a great future for our nation, and we in agriculture are devoted to giving you that full support. It is a large task, but our goal is clear and our purpose is firm. Together we can make it happen."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As new residents of Thief River Falls we were surprised to learn of the plans of the department of transportation concerning the proposed work on Third street. We find Thief River Falls a delightful city and were particularly pleased to purchase our home on Third street near the downtown area. The convenience of the location together with the beauty of the tree lined boulevard influenced our decision to retire here.

We feel a wiser solution would be to establish a truck route rather than to make the expenditures proposed for widening the Third street bridge. There would be equal expense in establishing a truck route but the improvement of traffic conditions through the city and relief of congestion downtown would well warrant it.

This would not be a proposal for a by-pass, since the merchants want to benefit from tourist traffic, but a designated truck route. Improvements may be necessary on Third street but it would be our hope that the nature of the boulevards could be preserved in any case and trucks rerouted.

Sincerely,
Grace Bridges

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Stung by the growing success of supply-side economics, the liberal establishment has been searching desperately for an alternative that will both protect and expand the welfare state and still not be laughed out of town.

The first requirements were that this policy have a new name and some intellectual heavyweights to write books about it. They have decided, it appears, on "Industrial Policy." Liberal academicians have been making the rounds of the television talk shows. All the leading Democractic contenders for the presidency have endorsed an Industrial Policy in some form. And everyone is insisting that this is something new, innovative and, of course, progressive.

But just what is this Industrial Policy? Is it a new approach to economics? Will it work?

Unfortuantely, Industrial Policy is simply a new name for centralized government planning. It is not new. And it won't work — it never has.

The idea is that some committee of self-styled experts sitting in Washington will decide which industries are growing and which are fading. The Congress will then throw money — their tax dollars — at those growth industries and, conversely, help finish off the old industries.

It is a return to the failed policies of protectionism, subsidies and ever more regulation. And, of course, to pay for all these expert planners and their nice offices — more taxes.

A brief look at the planned economies of the Eastern Bloc and the milder forms in socialist France and Spain paints a dismal picture of such planning efforts. The American government is simply not capable of second guessing the direction and progress of a $3 trillion economy.

Between 1971 and 1982, government forecasts of the change in the federal deficit for the next year have been wrong by an average error of 529 per cent. The government has misforecast changes in federal spending by an average of 29 per cent. Federal revenue predictions have been wrong by an average of 87 per cent. And predictions in the change for the GNP were off by 36 per cent.

Our government cannot even predict its own financial status one year ahead. How then are they expected to predict the future of entire industries 10, 15 and 20 years into the future?

(If some bureaucrat were actually clever enough to accurately predict market trends in the future, he would simply head to Wall Street and make a fortune.)

No. These would-be drafters of five-years plans for the American economy have come up with a loser. It has been tried in the past and always failed. It is, frankly, nothing but another attempt to increase the size and power of the federal government. Directly the opposite direction we should be travelling.

I would like to suggest an "Industrial Policy" targeted not to some industries or regions of the nation, but a policy of growth for all Americans.

Rather than looting some workers and firms to subsidize others, let us cut taxes on all workers and companies.

Rather than subsidizing loans to favored industries, let us pursue a sound monetary policy to cut inflation and interest rates facing all Americans and all businesses.

Rather than raising taxes on the working men and women of America to create a pool of government-contolled investment capital, let us cut taxes on the savings and investments of the American people to stimulate real investment in real wealth producing jobs.

Rather than increasing the number of bureaucrats and regulations in the name of economic efficiency, let us remove the deadweight of nonproductive paperwork and repeal those laws that misdirect capital and labor.

In short, I recommend the only industrial policy that has ever worked in any nation and at any time in history: the free market, with its reliance on individual initiative, risk-taking and rewards for those who work harder, smarter and more creatively.

Now that is an industrial policy worthy of the name.

New Minnesota Geologic Maps Are Available

Publication of several new color geologic maps has been announced by the Minnesota geological survey (MGS).

State map S-1 is the first map of Minnesota's surficial geology at the scale of 1:500,000 published since 1932. This large (49-by-56 inch) map shows the distribution of the various types of glacial drift deposited by glaciers and their meltwaters during the Pleistocene ice age. Recent stream deposits and peat lands also are shown. Glacial deposits consist of materials ranging from the finest clay particles to gigantic boulders and they range in thickness to hundreds of feet.

Glacial deposits are the major influence on topography, soils, water and land uses in Minnesota. Map was prepared from numerous published and manuscript sources in conjunction with a study of satellite imagery supported by a grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). Publication of this map, called "Quaternary Geology," was supported by grants from the legislative commission on Minnesota resources and the U.S. department of energy.

State map S-13, called "Bedrock Geology of the Lake Superior Region," shows the geology of Wisconsin and the northern peninsula of Michigan, as well as the entire state of Minnesota, at a scale of 1:1,000,000. Region's bedrock ranges from metamorphic and igneous rocks, some of which have radiometric ages as old as 3,600 million years, to sedimentary rocks as young as about 60 million years.

Bedrock geology of northeastern Minnesota is shown on the "Two Harbors Sheet" at a scale of 1:250,000. Area shown extends from the Canadian border to the city of Two Harbors on the south, and from Grand Portage on the east, to north of Duluth on the west.

Of interest to water well drillers and county and city planners in southeastern and east central Minnesota are miscellaneous maps M-51 and M-52. Eight plates of M-51, called "Paleozoic Lithostratigraphy of Southeastern Minnesota," include 10 maps, each showing the regional extent, structural contours and thickness of an important sedimentary formation or group of formations. Map M-52 consists of two plates: east central and Southeastern Minnesota.

Publication of a geologic atlas for Scott County has been made possible by a grant from the Scott county board of commissioners. This atlas is the prototype for future atlases of counties concerned with land-use planning for economic development, population changes and protection of water and other resources. Data are being collected by Dakota, Olmsted, Wabasha and Waseca counties. Largely in color, the Scott county atlas includes physiographic diagrams, maps and cross sections of the land surface, the unconsolidated surficial deposits and the underlying bedrock formations, as well as maps showing the influence of the geology on such factors as water quality and potential yield from water wells.

Maps may be examined at the MGS and at the geology department on the Duluth campus of the University of Minnesota. Copies may be obtained from the Minnesota Geological Survey, 1633 Eustis Street, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, MN 55108. Prices for mail orders, which must be prepaid, are: S-1, S-13, M-51 (eight plates) and Scott County Atlas (six plates), $12 each; Two Harbors Sheet, $10; M-52 (two plates) and S-14, $6 each. Each order should include $1 for postage and handling. Minnesota residents must include six per cent sales tax.

Meet Composer Programs May Receive Grants

Organizations interested in inviting composers to meet with their audiences during 1983 and 1984 may be able to apply for financial assistance under a program developed by the affiliated state arts agencies of the Upper Midwest.

Purpose of the program is to increase recognition for composers throughout the Upper Midwest and to provide opportunities for audience and composer interaction. Any non-profit organization may apply for grants from $100 to $750 (average grant is $250) which may be used only for the composer's fee. Program is intended to support all musical styles, and funds programs featuring composers as guest conductors, performers, workshop leaders or lecturers. Although all composers are eligible, preference will be given to composers from the Upper Midwest.

Deadlines for grant applications will be September 16, for projects taking place before October. 1984; November 17, for projects prior to December, 1984; and April 2, 1984, for projects prior to May 1983.

Nurse Of Year For Minnesota To Be Selected

March of Dimes and the Minnesota nurses association (MNA) are currently taking nominations for the 1983 Nurse of the Year award, to be presented for outstanding contributions to the quality of nursing care to mothers and infants in Minnesota.

To be eligible for nomination, a candidate must be directly involved in maternal and infant health nursing through teaching, administration, research, or clinical practice, and committed to five years in this nursing speciality. Candidates must also meet criteria developed by the executive committee, division of maternal child nursing practice, of the American nurses association.

Recipient of the award will be chosen by a MNA committee. Award will include $500 from the March of Dimes for continuation of education or projects to improve maternal-infant health care.

Nominations, which can be made by any interested parties, should be sent to the Minnesota Nurses Association, 1821 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN. 55104. Nominations should contain supporting material, including a description of the nurse's practice, letters from colleagues and consumers and any other pertinent data. Nominations must be submitted no later than September 30. Announcement of the Nurse of the Year award winner will be made at the 78th annual MNA convention on October 21.

In its efforts to protect the unborn and newborn, the March of Dimes emphasizes the importance of nursing practice in promoting the healthy outcome of pregnancy.

MNA is a professional organization for registered nurses in Minnesota, with almost 12,000 members.

Free Security Surveys Might Prevent Theft

Free security surveys conducted by local law enforcement officers can help Minnesotans protect their homes and businesses from burglary according to Minnesota Crime Watch, a program of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Officers conducting surveys in homes examine windows, doors, alarms and house exteriors to determine easy entry points for an intruder. Specific instructions to strengthen vulnerable areas may include improving lighting, trimming shrubs or installing deadbolt locks and other security hardware on exterior doors.

Merchandising techniques, locks and other security safeguards such as check cashing procedures are examined during business security surveys.

Minnesota homeowners and business owners can request a security survey by calling their local police or sheriff department.

Other ways to reduce burglaries include joining Operation Identification (which is free), locking doors and windows and organizing neighborhood watch groups.

More crime prevention tips for home and business owners are found in "What to do Before the Burglar Comes" and "Commercial Security." These booklets plus other brochures on personal protection and vehicle theft are available free from police and sheriff departments.

Promotion Of Fall Tourism Now Underway

This fall is the first opportunity for the Minnesota office of tourism to expand on promoting travel using the increase funding it received from the legislature in the session ending in May.

"We have been actively promoting fall vacations in the fall for the last four years," said Hank Todd, state travel director. "But this year our budget allows us to advertise with more frequency and in a broader market for the Midwest than we've ever been able to before."

Increased budget has been used to print more copies of the fall color activities guide and calendar of events and to increase the staff support and computer terminals needed to answer the phone calls and letters generated by the promotion of fall activities.

A year ago the fall advertising costs were $25,000 with coverage only in the Twin Cities. This year's advertising expenditures are nearly $120,000 with media buys both in Minnesota and in 21 cities outside the state.

Supporting the advertising buys are television and radio public service announcements and "Explore Minnesota" columns, travel articles based on events and activities that are sent to interested Minnesota newspaper editors and the editors of corporate newsletters. Out-of-state newspapers will also receive press releases.

Again this year, the Minnesota travel information center will be offering its fall color reporting service called the "Minnesota Leaf Line." Fall color reports are weekly summaries tracing progress of fall color throughout the state. "Leaf Line" is being promoted through both advertising and public relations activities.

Fall marketing plan will be discussed on talk shows in late August and September throughout the state, including interviews at radio stations broadcasting live from the state fair. Fall publications are being distributed at the state fair through these interviews, as well as from a booth manned by some Minnesota tourism regions and statewide associations.

Wide range of insulation projects covered include roof, walls, foundation, windows and doors, ducts and piping. Participants will receive a workshop manual covering these topics.

To advance computer literacy in the agricultural industry, the foundation is awarding $180,000 of microcomputer software grants to ag educators throughout the United States.

The software grants will be used in the classroom, at seminars and conferences to help area students, farmers and ranchers learn how to use computers in their businesses.

Harvesting Hay, Straw, Advised By Carpenter

Farmers in many areas of the state and nation may face a shortage of available hay and straw, and are advised by Minnesota Farmers Union President Cy Carpenter to harvest as much as possible.

Expected shortage of hay for feed and straw for bedding is largely the result of drought affecting much of the nation, and the Midwest in particular.

"There is no question. There will be a serious shortage of both hay and straw," Carpenter said.

"Many times farmers do not harvest all of their hay or straw because of the costs involved in baling and storage. However, I believe the shortage will put enough pressure on the market price to make harvesting straw and hay profitable. Farmers should harvest all the hay and straw they possibly can, either for themselves, to help their neighbors, or for sale. In any case, a larger harvest of these two commodities will be a service for the farming community."

Panel To Study Research Data On Diabetes

Karl Sussman, MD, president-elect of the American Diabetes association, Inc., says considerable confusion has resulted from recent news reports on new research findings on the effects of sugar and starches on blood glucose levels in persons with diabetes.

"These research findings, some of which are preliminary in nature, and which involve relatively small numbers of patients, must be carefully studied and evaluated before any changes in current nutrition and dietary requirements for diabetics may be recommended," Dr. Sussman said.

The American Diabetes association has announced that its national council on nutrition will convene a special panel of top medical experts from the United States and Canada later this month to investigate new and emerging research data to determine whether to revise its current 'Principles of Nutrition and Dietary Recommendations for Individuals with Diabetes Mellitus.'

In the meantime, the association recommends that persons with diabetes: (1) continue to avoid sugar and products containing sugar, (2) continue to eat foods low in fat and high in complex carbohydrates and fiber, and (3) follow the dietary programs prescribed by their physicians and health professionals.

Dean Midboe, MD, president of the American Diabetes association in North Dakota, urges diabetics to follow this advice and promises to keep them informed of this special panel's recommendations.

Ask Information On Soviet Mail Interference

As part of a large-scale Congressional investigation, Congressman Bruce Vento of Minnesota is seeking information about the tampering of U.S. mail sent to the Soviet Union and Soviet-bloc countires.

Vento is sending out a questionnaire and soliciting evidence of Communist interference with U.S. mail.

"Many American citizens mailing letters and packages to friends and families in Communist countries are claiming that the authorities are interfering with the delivery of their mail," Vento said. "We have received reports that people in Russia, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia and other Eastern bloc countires have been denied mail and the right to send letters out.

"We are especially interested in obtaining documents that would indicate such mail tampering is going on. Altered receipts, envelopes or parcel post wrappers, or mail marked 'return to sender' without good reason, would provide us with solid evidence," he said.

Copies of the official Congressional questionnaire on Communist mail tampering activities can be obtained from Congressman Vento's office. The phone number in St. Paul is 725-7724.

The completed questionnaire will be submitted to the House post office and civil service committee which is conducting the investigation.

WWI Vets To Meet Monday

Disabled Youth Are Subject Of Conference

Participants will be introduced to the major categories of disabilities and learn how community resources can be used to expand youth programming.

Disabled youth and parents will be on hand to discuss programming opportunities from their point of view. Disabled youth athletes, some representing national competitive teams, will be inviting participants to join them in recreational activities at the conference site, which features recreational, housing and dining facilities designed especially for the disabled.

Registration begins Wednesday, October 19 at 4:30 p.m. Program ends on Friday at 3 p.m. and costs $73, including materials, housing and meals. Special discount fees apply. To Dedicate Hagglund Park In Holt Sunday

Dedication of the public park in Holt as Bennie Hagglund park will take place Sunday with a program to begin at 2 p.m. at the park. The dedication is co-sponsored by the Holt city council and the Keenagers senior citizen group of Holt.

According to Mrs. Gerry Nelson, president of the Keenagers, the park is used every day by Holt residents and frequently by travelers who stop and make use of the playground equipment, picnic shelter and restrooms.

The park is being named after Bennie Hagglund who donated four lots of the Keenagers for park use. The city of Holt has provided an additional seven lots for a softball diamond and five more lots for basketball and other games. Equipment provided by the city includes two swing sets, monkey bar, fireboxes for outdoor cooking and the benches, tables and restrooms. The Keenagers provided the shelter with the aid of a $500 government grant and carpentry work under the direction of Harry Engen, Marvin Sandberg and Frank Smith.

The park is located on the Main street of Holt east of highway 32 and across the street from the senior citizen center — a former city building which was remodeled with a $9,000 grant received through the Northwest regional development council. All land for the park has been deeded to the city of Holt which also provides maintenance.

Mrs. Nelson noted that Harry Engen and Marvin Sandberg were the primary movers in getting the park project underway and they received good cooperation and innovative assistance from Mayor Ivan Johnson and the Holt council. An earlier site consideration was along the Burlington Northern railroad but was abandoned when it was learned the railroad would retain a 30-day repossession right.

Hagglund was an early resident of Holt and as a youngster worked at the Holt Weekly News. He died of cancer several years ago, is now buried in Holt, and a tribute to him — written by his second wife, Flora Hagglund Merell — will be read by Mrs. Nelson at the dedication.

Lunch will be provided by the Holt city council and the Keenagers and public attendance at the dedication is invited.

Washington Art Advanced Through Alice P. Barney

by Margery Byers
Smithsonian News Service

"What is capital life at all? Small talk and lots to eat, an infinite series of teas and dinners. Art? There is none."

That was artist Alice Pike Barney's blunt assessment of Washington, D.C., in 1902. Determined to elevate the taste of the capital's residents, she built Barney Studio House as her home, studio and salon. It was the second house to be constructed on one of Washington's famous circles, and she filled it with her own paintings and those of her friends with carved furniture, Oriental rugs and European decorative bibelots. Antique embroideries and tapestries hung near 20th-century reproductions.

Today, this unusual house is open to the public from October through May. There, surrounded by Barney's collections, one can experience a bygone era.

The house resembled a state set, on which the lively and unpredictable Alice was one of the main attractions of her Bohemian-style salon. A free-spirited woman, she was barely five feet tall yet towering in her influence on the arts. In her dress, she combined haute couture with costume. Her jewelry included both diamonds and paste imitations: It was the dramatic effect that was important.

Alice Pike Barney's behavior, unconventional for her era, occasionally starled her more staid social counterparts. When the house was finished, she gave a banquet for the workmen and their wives which Town & Country magazine called "unique in local annals." She once caused a traffic jam by placing a life-sized reclining nude statue from Paris on her front lawn.

A congenial setting for the social and artistic life of the city, Barney Studio House was the scene of tableaux, musicales, theatrical and poetry readings, lectures and dance performances. Members of the diplomatic corps were frequent visitors, and other noted guests include Alice Roosevelt Longworth, actress Sarah Bernhardt and dancer Ruth St. Denis, as well as justices of the Supreme Court.

Activity at Barney Studio House continues today. After Alice Barney's death in 1931, it was rented for 26 years and opened to the public only once during those decades. It was given to the Smithsonian by her daughters in 1960 and has been carefully renovated by the Institution's National Museum of American Art. Three quarters of the original furnishings are on view. Once again, this unique showplace evokes its original mood and intent as a place of artistic enjoyment. A generous godmother to the arts, Alice Pike Barney would be pleased.

Born in Cincinnati in 1857, Alice was surrounded by wealth. Her father built the first opera house there in 1859 and the Grand Opera House in New York in 1868. When Samuel Pike died in 1872, he left his daughter $2 million, and two years later, she visited Europe for the first time.

Alice, then 17, was wooed by 33-year-old Henry Morton Stanley, the adventurer and newspaper of Stanley and Livingston fame. They signed a pledge to be faithful to each other and to marry when he returned from Africa. Stanley named his boat "Lady Alice," wrote his "fiance" daily and sent her exotic gifts. Engrossed with her parties, Alice consigned his mail — unopened — to the basement. In January of 1876, she married wealthy Albert Clifford Barney, as stuffily proper and decorous as she was not. She liked but never loved Barney. "Surely he is more than punished," she once said, "by being with his own unavoidable self."

After their marriage, the Barneys divided their time among Cincinnati, New York and Europe. They had two daughters, and, when Alice enrolled the girls in a French boarding school in 1886, she began to study painting seriously. In 1889, the Barneys built a 26-room "cottage" in Bar Harbor, Maine, and the following year, a mansion in Washington, D.C.

Alice, although a prominent member of society, was fascinated by the Frensh avantgarde artistic and literary life that she found missing in the nation's capital. At the turn-of-the-century in Paris, she studied with — and became a good friend of — artist James McNeill Whistler. She returned to Washington in 1901, but her daughters remained in France; Albert died in Monte Carlo in 1902.

Studio House, as was true of the Paris salons of the time, became a setting for the enjoyment of poetry, music, art, drama and dance. Invitations were eagerly sought. An article in Washington Society magazine described Studio House in a marathon sentence as "the meeting place for wit and wisdom, genius and talent, which fine material is leavened by fashionable folk, who would like to be a bit Bohemian if they only knew how, with the result that Mrs. Barney's entertainments, her dinners, luncheons, teas, receptions have a piquant and unusual flavor different from any others attempted here."

SUITS FOR FALL and a fashionable winter are modeled above by Mrs. Lori Joppru and Mrs. Dorothy Larson (right). They will be among the many garments shown at the style show scheduled Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Thief River Falls city auditorium under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls retail business association. Free tickets for the show may be obtained in advance from cooperating RBA members with remaining tickets to be available at the door.

Despite an air of seeming frivolity, Alice Barney was a respected artist. Her first solo exhibition was in 1901 at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington. During the next 10 years, she had a serioues of well-received shows in Paris, New York and Boston. Having proved that a wealthy society matron could be a serious artist, she turned to other cultural pursuits — particularly dance and theater.

It was in Paris that Alice Barney first saw Isadora Duncah dance, and at Studio House "exotic" dance was part of the theatrical presentations. In 1906, Barney sponsored Ruth St. Denis' debut in Washington in Radha, a highly fanciful Indian temple dance replete with incense and veils, which titillated and intrigued Washingtonians. Alice Barney wrote a series of ballet scenarios, and in 1915, she accepted an invitation from the famed Anna Pavlova to write a one-act ballet. She also designed the sets and costumes for the ballet, which Pavlova presented on a nationwide tour.

Alice Barney produced grand tableaux and amateur plays as charity fundraisers and occasionally appeared in them. Although Washington had only a handful of sparsely attended legitimate theaters, attendance at her pageants and plays was standing room only. In 1904, at the Belasco Theater, she presented "The Dream of Queen Elizabeth," with the daughter of the Russian ambassador as one of the stars. Theodore Roosevelt came but, considering it improper for a president's daughter to appear on a stage, he refused to let his daughter Alice take part in the drama.

When Sarah Bernhardt came to American in 1918 to raise funds for French war widows and orphans, Alice Barney honored her friend with an evening's entertainment at Studio House. The crippled actress arrived on a litter carried by four liveried footmen. Describing that occasion years later, fellow artist Marietta Minegerode Andrews wrote: "The strange house on Sheridan Circle was filled with the elite of Washington. That day the lights were dim; Mrs. Barney knows how to make us all look our best; the lighting of her rooms lends a touch of mystery to the most prosaic — age, looks young, while youth takes on just enough dignity to be interesting."

In addition to Studio House, the Sylvan Theatre on the Washington Monument grounds is a lasting artistic monument to Alice Barney. Following her presentation of an allegorical tableau attended by 10,000 people at the base of the monument in 1915, Alice was a leader in the establishment of a permanent outdoor theater. With a state of sod, shrubbery "wings" and dressing rooms, Sylvan Theatre officially opened in 1917 with 200 socialites appearing in an Alice Barney Extravaganza. A message from Sarah Bernhardt was read: "I am very glad that it is a woman who has realized. . . my dreams, and I am especially glad that this woman is yourself. I have always dream for this wonderful country a national theater. . . Brava, dear madame! Brava! Any my thanks."

Alice Barney's support of the arts continued throughout her life and she died on Oct. 12, 1931, while attending a concert in Los Angeles. She is buried in Dayton, Ohio, a small stone appropriately acknowledging her as "Alice Pike Barney, The Talented One."

For visitors to Washington, D.C., Barney Studio House is open free to the public, from October through May. Reservations must be made by calling (202) 357-3111.

Sanders Club Is Community Pride Winner

The 4-H community pride program is designed to stimulate increased participation of young people in community affairs and concerns, according to Deb Matero, Pennington county extension agent.

In the spring of the year, 4-H clubs look at their communities needs and decide what their projects will be and a plan of work is submitted to the county extension office by June 1, she said. In late August a report of the activities is submitted and then judged. One member from the winning club is selected by the club to attend the state community pride conference in St. Paul September 19-21.

Winning entry of this year's community pride program in Pennington county is the Sanders club. Its projects were conducted under the leadership of Alberta Johnson and Jean Helle and included: Christmas caroling in their neighborhood; selling first-aid kits (not as a fund raiser, but to insure that people had them available in their homes and vehicles); and presenting their share-the-fun act to the Catholic daughters and the monies they raised were sent to cystic fibrosis.

In June they sponsored a bike-athon for cystic fibrosis, raising $600. As a club activity, they chose "clowning" and visited at the CNC unit of Northwestern hospital and at Oakland Park and Valley home. They participated in parades at both art in the street day and the St. Hilaire centennial, helping youngsters through the parade routes and assisting with kiddies games.

During Crazy Days they ran the Hot Wheels races at K-Mart and during Cub scout camp they baby sat for adults so they could help with the camp activities.

Members of the Sanders club went before their town board to request the spraying of noxious weeds around their town hall and have started painting the hall, hoping to finish this fall. They also asked the county highway department to put up reflectors at a blind corner.

Silverton 4-H club child care members made play-doh for a vacation Bible school and clothing members made bags to hold equipment for cancer recovery patients. Other projects included cleaning ditches and selling the cans collected; cleaning the Silverton town hall and planting and caring for a flower bed along highway number 1. Shop members also built a new sign for the flower bed hosted a presentation of Kids On The Block and worked as news election service reporters on election day.

Highlanding and Ridge Runners clubs both tackled the ambitious projects of cleaning and upkeeping country cemeteries, which required a considerable amount of mowing, trimming, weed pulling and sometimes filling of dirt. Ridge Runners club is also working on renewing their town hall.

Black River club sent Christmas gifts to Fergus Falls state hospital; made survival kits with each family making two kits, one to keep and one to share. They also presented a church service at Black River church on 4-H Sunday and Mother's Day and also presented a program at Oakland park nursing home.

Kratka members collected soup labels for the library to use to purchase equipment and planted flowers at the Kratka canoe landing and cared for them throughout the summer.

Mavie club members developed a new flower bed and maintained it in the townsite of Mavie.

Production Of Red Meat High In Minnesota

Minnesota's red meat production was up 19 per cent in July 1983 as compared with a year ago. On a comparison with last month, the state was up one per cent and the U.S. was down nine per cent, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

July beef kill was up 14 per cent in Minnesota. An increase of 20 pounds per head of beef brought the total beef liveweight 16 per cent above the July 1982 beef liveweight total.

The hog kill was up 22 per cent and five more pounds per head brought the total liveweight 25 per cent over the July 1982 level.

Things are looking better for agriculture, say some economists. Even though domestic supplies and world supplies are still heavy and U.S. farm exports are on the downswing, and the supply-demand outlook is improving.

Why? Because smaller crops are in prospect for this year and the general economy is getting stronger, the reporting service notes. U.S. net farm income for 1983 is now expected to range between $25 and $29 billion, up from last year's $22.1 billion.

The U.S. economic recovery has so far been concentrated in housing and consumer durables but should start improving farm-level demand before the end of the year. When this demand goes up, livestock prices traditionally go higher. But with near-record supplies of meat in prospect, that may not be the case this year as meat prices will be pressured downward.

U.S. trade with the USSR and China should show signs of improvement, following a recent "in principal" agreement on long-term grain trade with Russia and the separate agreement on textile trade with China. (The absence of a textile agreement had curtailed U.S. farm exports to China; the recent agreement could improve wheat sales to China but probably not cotton or soybean sales.)

The agreement with the USSR raises minimum purchases from six million to eight or nine million tons of grain.

Chemical Use Among Elderly Is Discussed

Elderly are among the fastest growing segment of our population. Improved medical care, better diet and lifestyles and mere population statistics have all combined to result in more elderly people than ever before.

Another continually increasing statistic is the number of individuals that are experiencing chemical abuse, misuse or dependency problems. Although this problem impacts on the entire population, the awareness of chemical misuse among the elderly is increasing.

More and more health professionals are now functioning in the area of aging. Field of chemical dependency counseling and treatment has also grown. In many cases, however, those trained in dealing with the aging are not necessarily aware of problems experienced by the chemically dependent person. Conversely, those trained in chemical dependency may not be aware of problems experienced by the aged.

An upcoming workshop, set for September 15, at the Bemidji Holiday Inn convention center, is designed to aid professionals in the fields of aging, chemical dependency and mental health to be better equipped to deal with the interdisciplinary problem of chemical misuse and abuse among the aging.

Program begins with registration at 9 a.m., followed by a dramatization of the denial system of chemical dependency presented by E.L. "Hub" Hubner. Morning will conclude with small group discussions of both chemical dependency and aging issues lead by Philip Kelly and Mary Ruthenbeck. Afternoon will feature additional small group sessions as well as a problem solving workshop and a large group resource panel.

Workshop hopes to explore the myths and stereotypes of both aging and chemical dependency, and explore resource options and means of improving services at the local level as well as promoting networking and outreach among health professionals.

Workshop is sponsored by the Minnesota board on aging, the Minnesota department of public welfare — chemical dependency program division, and the Minnesota association of area agencies on aging.

Training is endorsed by the institute for chemical dependency professional in Minnesota and objectives and posts-tests will be available for nurses attending the session.

Fee for the workshop is $6 which includes lunch and breaks. Reservations can be mailed to the Headwaters Regional Development Commission, Po. Box 586, Bemidji, MN 56601.

Nine-Man Showdown Friday

It might be too early in the season to call it a crucial game, but Friday's North Tri-County Conference high school football match-up that finds Grygla-Goodridge at Plummer for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff is certainly an important affair for those Nine-Man squads.

Most observers expected Grygla-Goodridge, Plummer and Erskine-Mentor to be evenly-matched North Tri-County Conference favorites this fall. Friday the Blue Devils and Cardinals will try to get the early edge.

"It's a big opportunity for us," acknowledged Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "It's a very big game for us, but it's not going to be the end of the world if we should lose. I think the conference is balanced this year. I think whoever wins it will have one, or maybe even two losses."

Still, you don't want to fall behind this early in the season, he admitted.

Both coaches expect a close ball game. They both heap praise on the opposition.

"I thought they (Plummer) were one of the best teams in the conference jamboree," pointed out Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson. "They're probably the most balanced team in the conference. They really don't have a weakness."

"They have a good football team," echoed Brantl when talking about the first-year Grygla-Goodridge cooperative program. "They can put points on the board. I don't think we can give (quarterback Tony) Wiseth time to run around back there. We have to contain him. They have some awfully good backs."

Nelson was equally impressed with the Plummer backfield, and the Cardinals showed offensive power in a 40-14 opening week win over Gonvick-Trail. Grygla-Goodridge won, too, but in a more low-key 20-6 nonconference manner over Marshall County Central.

Despite the offensive capabilities on both sides, Nelson isn't expecting a high-scoring affair. "I think it'll be a ball-control type game," he said. "I think both teams will be a little tight. If it's high scoring it's to their advantage — they scored 40 points already; they know they can do it. The key for us is to control the football like we did in the first half at Newfolden."

Brantl admits the one-sided opener was a real confidence-booster for his Cardinals.

What it boils down to is blocking and tackling, said Nelson in a time-worn chiche'. "Whoever blocks and tackles the best will win."

What makes the game even more interesting is the fact that both sides are making a rare appearance in the spotlight after struggling through tough times in recent years. Neither Goodridge or Grygla has ever been a North Tri-County Conference champion. Closest Goodridge ever got was a 5-3 third place finish in 1972. Plummer has had some success since the conference was first organized in 1963, but the Cardinals' lone title came with a 7-0 finish back in 1969. They were third with a 6-3 mark in 1985 and they shared second place with a 5-2 finish in 1977.

Over the last five years its been a real battle for both sides. In 1980, for example, Plummer was 0-9, Grygla 1-8 and Goodridge 4-5. In 1981 Grygla was 1-8, Plummer 2-7 and Goodridge 3-6. Last year Grygla was 2-7, Plummer 4-5 and Goodridge 5-4.

Friday the teams will be playing for first place. "There's definitely going to be some pressure on the kids," admitted Brantl, "but nothing overwhelming because it is early in the season." If it was the ninth week the tension would be much greater, he said. Still, he confessed to being a little nervous going into the game.

"I think it should be a good ball game," concluded Brantl.

"I think it's going to be a good game," agreed Nelson. "We're looking forward to it."

So are the players and fans in the communities involved, but it doesn't end there. The following week the third title favorite — Erksine-Mentor — will be playing Grygla-Goodridge. Plummer will have a third-week bye on its schedule, but then the Cardinals take on the Mustangs the following week.

It's going to be a frantic three weeks.

Close TRF-Detroit Lakes Series

If past history repeats itself, Friday's Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes high school football game on Prowler Field will feature a close finish.

With the exception of an 11-point spread in 1980, the winning margin in the series has been a touchdown or less since 1976.

Those results include a 34-31 Detroit Lakes victory in 1976; a 13-10 Detroit Lakes win in 1977; a 12-7 Thief River Falls triumph in 1978; a 13-6 Detroit Lakes decision in 1979; that 32-21 Thief River Falls spread in 1980; a 13-8 Detroit Lakes outcome in 1981; and a 14-7 Detroit Lakes rally in 1982.

Thief River Falls had a 7-0 lead a year ago before Detroit Lakes tied it on a 45-yard fourth quarter touchdown pass from junior quarterback Chad Meyhoff to senior end Erik Brand. The Lakers then broke the tie by blocking a Thief River Falls punt and recovering the ball in the end zone for the game-winning touchdown with just 21 seconds left in the game.

Grygla Winner In Volleyball Season Opener

Grygla opened its 1983 high school volleyball schedule Tuesday with an easy 18-5, 18-7 victory over an inexperienced Badger squad.

Judy Verbout was credited with 11 ace serves in the two games for the winners.

"I'm real pleased with our performance," reported Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer. "We served real well."

Grygla will host Roseau in its home opener Thursday and continue a challenging North Border Conference scheduled next week with back-to-back matches Monday at home against Middle River and Tuesday at Marshall County Central.

Mcc—Stephen

Stephen, a newcomer to District 32 this year, knocked off defending district champion Marshall County Central 18-13, 18-10 in season-opening action on the Tigers' court Tuesday.

"We didn't play very well," noted Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim. "Stephen has a good team. They have a lot of hard hitters."

Shelly Anderson led the Nordics with six service points, including a couple of aces, while Jodi Foss and Barb Garthus had four each, but Tunheim said serving was not the Nordics' strong suit in the opener.

Marhshall County Central will face two more District 32 challenges Thursday vs. Middle River and Tuesday vs. Grygla — both matches scheduled to be played in Newfolden.

Warren 2-0 Winner Over Lincoln Volleyball Team

Unable to receive the serves, Thief River Falls was easy prey for Warren Tuesday as the Ponies ran away with a 2-0 high school volleyball win in the Lincoln gym.

Warren breezed to an 18-5 first game victory and held on for an 18-12 second game triumph as both teams evened their season record at 1-1 for the year.

Leading from start to finish in the opener, Warren broke it open when a 5-4 edge became a 10-4 spread behind the serving of 5-0 junior Jackie Novak. Then 5-4 junior Emily Anderson served it to 14-4 before 5-8 junior Brenda Anderson closed it out at the service line.

"First game was a serving game," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "Their points came on mistakes we made receiving the serve. You can't set up and spike the ball if you don't receive the serve."

Second game was a little better effort on the part of the Prowlers, mentioned Anderson, but they still found themselves down 9-4 when Brenda Anderson served five straight points. It reached 15-7 as 5-7 junior Gretchen Mattson served four points before Thief River Falls made a game come-back, sparked by a block at the net by senior Jacki Kramer and a deep spike by junior Deb Opdahl.

But they couldn't get any closer than 16-10.

Starting line-up for both sides featured mostly juniors. For the Prowlers, Kramer and Missy Bondy were the lone seniors who started. Opdahl, Paula Bergan, Kristi Finney and Leslie Weigand, all juniors, rounded out the starting line-up. Tami Copp, a 5-4 setter, was the only senior to start for the Ponies. Thief River Falls reserves included seniors Kim Poole, Nora Haushagen and Becky Ulrich, along with junior Kelli Olson. Bondy and Finney led the Prowlers with five service points each. Weigand had three.

Thief River Falls junior varsity improved its record to 5-0 with a pair of 18-12 wins over Warren. Thief River Falls C squad lost its season opener 18-0, 18-4.

All three Thief River Falls teams will be at Alvarado Tuesday, with matches scheduled to start at 5:30 p.m.

Northland Opens Football Schedule At BSU Sunday

Northland community college opens its 1983 football season Sunday with a 7:30 p.m. game at Bemidji State University, playing the Beavers' junior varsity in a nonconference meeting.

"I hope we're ready," offered Northland coach John Helley. "We're playing a numbers game," he said in reference to the small squad of 35 Northmen currently preparing for the opener. It's fortunate, he noted, that "we've got some really versatile people who can play a number of positions in offense and defense. And that's good, because they're going to have to."

But despite the small numbers, the squad morale is high, according to Helley. "The enthusiasm is great. Everybody is in shape ready to play football," he said.

This will be only the second football meeting between the two schools. The Northmen, who were 1-7 last year, beat the BSU junior varsity 19-0 in a 1978 game at Bemidji.

Helley said the Northland line-up wasn't set yet, but did list probable starters for the opener.

On offense, newcomer Steve Blanc, a 6-1, 195-pound freshman from Columbia Heights has apparently succeeded incumbant Bob Rockwood, a sophmore from Fargo, at quarterback. "He's a good athlete," said Helley of Blanc, who will run the offense that will utilize some I-formation, pro set and a little wishbone.

Runningbacks will likely be sophomore Mark Hagl (Red Lake Falls) and freshman Kevin Roehl (Nevis), an all-stater in Nine-Man high school football last fall. Sophomores Kent Kainz (TRF) and Jim Dillon (TRF) figure to share the slotback spot. Receivers will be sophomore Todd Graalum (Fargo) at split end and freshman Avery Dahl (Roseau) at tight end.

Offensive line will include freshman Jay Weiher (Verndale) at center, sophomore John Helley, Jr. (Plummer) and freshman Wade Hruby (TRF) at guards, with freshmen Nathan Bukowski (Middle River) and Bill Kron (Newfolden) at tackles.

Certain to see playing time on offense, said Helley, are freshmen Dan Flanagan (Edinburg, N.D.) at slotback, Pat Burke (Westland, Mich.) at wide receiver and Mike Puberinger (Red Lake Falls) at runningback.

Defneisvely in the 4-4 set, sophomores John Helmes (TRF) and Greg Langerud (Edinburg, N.D.) will probably be the ends, with freshman Alan Melvie (Newfolden) and either Kron or Burke at the tackles. The linebackers are expected to include Rockwood and sophomore Eric Bondy (TRF) on the outside, with freshmen Steve Robinson (Westland, Mich.) or Todd Stokke (Newfolden) at the left inside spot, while Dillon and Puberinger vie for playing time at the right inside position.

Kainz or Hagl will do the kicking on extra point tries, with Blanc doing the kickoffs and Roehl will punt.

"Everybody will play a lot of football," pointed out Helley.

Northland begins Minnesota Community Conference (MCCC) play Sat., Sept. 17, at Itasca.

John Schmitz To Address Sports Boosters Club

Lincoln high school football coach John Schmitz will be the guest speaker Thursday at the 12-noon luncheon meeting of the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

Football Home Opener . . .

Prowlers Host Detroit Lakes

Thief River Falls, a team that played just three home games all last year, will be playing six of them in 1983, including a five-game homestand that begins Friday with a 7:30 p.m. high school football game against Detroit Lakes on Prowler Field.

Mahnomen, Breckenridge, Moorhead and Bemidji will follow Detroit Lakes into Thief River Falls on successive Friday nights this fall as the Prowlers are compensated for their six 1982 road games.

Both the Lakers and the Prowlers will be trying to rebound from season-opening losses. Detroit Lakes lost to a strong Fergus Falls squad 28-0 and Thief River Falls lost to an equally-strong Grand Forks Red River team 21-12.

It was the Prowlers' 21st straight loss, an unenviable string of defeats that stretches over all or parts of four football seasons. It's a strong the Prowlers obviously want to end, and based upon their solid showing against the Roughriders, they feel confident they can have a winning football season in 1983.

"They went into the Red River game feeling they could win, and they feel again this week they can win Friday," said Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz as he tried to explain his team's mental approach to a game in light of the prolonged losing streak. "We saw some good things in the films. We had a couple of opportunities to score, but we didn't."

They also saw some mistakes in those films, and hope to use the films as a correction tool to bolster a ineffective ground game that netted the Prowlers just 13 yards on 31 carries — 28 of them by junior halfback Ryan Drees.

"We saw why we had the problems on the films," noted Schmitz. "It's just a matter of blocking the right people."

What offense the Prowlers did generate came through the air as quaterback Mitch Semanko was 7-for-18 for 123 yards while halfback-flanker Tim Bottem caught five of those passes for 109 yards.

Detroit Lakes has a history of yardage-producing passing attacks, too. Schmitz expects the Lakers to throw the ball Friday and he expects the Lakers to be an even match for the Prowlers despite the one-sided loss to the Otters last week. "Fergus Falls has a very good football team," said Schmitz after receiving a scouting report, "and one game of experience can make a big difference to a team."

Thief River Falls' opening game line-up is expected to remain intact this week.

On offense, seniors Tim Kruse (6-3, 188) and Lynn Johnson (5-11, 185) will alternate at tight end; seniors Gary Cornell (6-0, 190) and Ryan Bakke (5-9, 180) will be the guards; senior Jeff Hamerlink (6-2, 212) and junior Shannon Kezar (6-1, 224) will be the tackles; with senior Steve Wiskow (5-11, 183) at a wide receiver.

Senior Todd Ortloff (5-11, 170) will be the center.

In the I-formation backfield, Semanko (5-10, 157) will be the quarterback and Bottem (5-10, 186) will be one of the runningbacks. They're both seniors. The other halfback spot will go to either Drees (5-5, 169) or senior Jeff Langan (5-11, 160), while senior Scott Jorstad (5-7, 151) and junior Scott Fowler (6-3, 185) share time at fullback. Senior halfback Rick Spong (5-11, 175), a full-time starter a year ago who missed the 1983 opener with a back problem, is expected to see spot duty against Detroit Lakes.

Defensively, Langan and either Cornell or Bottem will be the ends, with Hamerlinck and junior Dan Upham (6-2, 196) at tackles in the 4-4 alignment. Linebackers will be Kruse and senior Todd Ortloff (5-11, 170) on the outside, with Wiskow and Fowler inside. Semanko and junior Mark Bondy (6-0, 161) will be the cornerbacks, with Jorstad at safety.

Swimmers Open Season On Saturday At Fargo

Swimming season starts Saturday for the Lincoln high school girls who will be at Fargo Shanley for a 9 a.m. meet that day. Prowlers' home opener is set for Tues., Sept. 13, vs. Bemidji, at 5 p.m. dual in the Franklin middle school pool.

Beginning his second year as head swimming coach, Jay Forney sees a parallel between this fall's girls team and last winter's boys team he coached. "We're in the same boat as the boys," he acknowledged. "We've got one or two good ones, but we're building for the future."

Top Thief River Falls prospects include sophomore Michelle Puetz, who placed fourth in the 200 individual medley in Section 3 last fall and has enjoyed a great deal of success this past summer in USS swimming competition; junior Teri Klopp, seventh in the diving competition at the Section 3 meet in 1982; junior Connie Geatz, eighth in the 100 backstroke in sectional competition; senior Kathy Reuter, 12th in the 100 backstroke in the Section 3 meet; junior Shelley McGann, a versatile performer who returns to the pool after playing volleyball last fall; and junior Jill Lusignan, who has shown promise in practice.

"It looks like the girls are working hard in practice," noted Forney, a fact that maybe has to do with hard work and fund-raising efforts that were needed by program backers in the face of threatened budget cutbacks that would have eliminated the sport.

Jody Dallmann is working with Forney as an assistant coach.

Rest of the team members include senior Denise Anderson; juniors Cindi Russell and Leslie Grisanti; sophomores Kaylyn Espe, Lisa Hejlik, Janelle Smidt, Rochelle Sandstrom, Tammy Gunderson and Kim Kenville; freshmen Michelle Turenne, Marci Turenne, Brenda Russell, Gayle Borchert and Laura Beito; eighth graders Pete Kuyath, Jenny Nelson, Christy Puetz, Heidi Tofte and Tina Hible; seventh graders Wendy Swanson, Denise Kiesow, Karla Espe, Kendra Johnson and Sara Oas; plus sixth grader Kristin Reuter.

Forney is hoping a few more sixth graders will show an interest and report out for the sport.

Kathy Reuter and Denise Anderson are serving as co-captains this fall.

Blue Devils-Cardinals Meet Friday . . .

Skippers Beat Scots 14-6 In Holiday Football Game

A strong first half effort carried Middle River to a 14-6 North Tri-County Conference high school football win over visiting McIntosh-Winger Monday afternoon.

Season opener for both sides, the game was moved back from Friday's original playing date because of the extreme heat. More comfortable temperatures and a little first half rain greeted the Labor Day game Monday.

Middle River won it with a pair of first half touchdowns that capped sustained drives for the Skippers as Jamie Peterson hauled in a 5-yard scoring pass from quarterback Kevin McKeever in the first quarter, with Mike Coltom reaching the end zone on a 10-yard run midway through the second period. Sheldon Peterson caught a two-point conversion pass from McKeever following the second touchdown.

"We moved the ball real well in the first half," reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, who wasn't quite so pleased with the Skippers' second half play, especially in the third quarter when a blocked punt led to a 12-yard touchdown run for the Scots' Gerry Syverson. McIntosh-Winger also came up with a fumble recovery at the Middle River 10-yard line that could had led to the tying score, but the Skippers held on.

Defensively, cornerback John Scheff led the Skippers with 15 tackles and made an interception; Sheldon Peterson had two fumble recoveries and was credited with two quarterback sacks at a defensive end; and McKeever, was credited with "his best defensive game he's ever had," by Sparby following a 9-tackle effort from his safety position.

"It was a good effort. We didn't make many mistakes," mentioned Sparby.

A year ago the Skippers were winless until the final game of the 1982 season when they beat the same McIntosh-Winger team by the same 14-6 score. This week Middle River will play a Friday nonconference game at Gary.

Friday's North Tri-County Conference schedule will feature an early season match-up of two preseason league favorites when Grygla-Goodridge plays a 7:30 p.m. game at Plummer. Both were winners last Friday as the Blue Devils won a 20-6 nonconference victory over Marshall County Central at Newfolden and the Cardinals were impressive in a 40-14 victory over Gonvick-Trail, a game moved to an evening start under the lights t Clearbrook to avoid the afternoon heat at Gonvick.

Elsewhere Friday, Erskine-Mentor, an 18-14 winner over Clearbrook in the opener, will be at Gonvick at 3:30 p.m., Fisher will be at Clearbrook at 7:30 p.m. and Oklee will be at McIntosh-Winger at 7:30 p.m.

Marshall County Central will get into Top of the State Conference play Friday when the Nordics play Tri-County at Karlstad in a 7:30 p.m. game. In other league games that day, Hallock will be at Argyle at 7:30 p.m. and Stephen will be at Greenbush for a 4 p.m. game.

Last week, Argyle handled Greenbush 45-12 and Tri-County shocked Hallock 50-18 while Stephen edged Twin Valley 22-14 in nonconference play.

Bobcats' Rally Beats Flyers

Senior quarterback Kevin Enerson threw three second half touchdown passes Tuesday afternoon as Oklee came from behind to beat Fisher 20-14 in a rescheduled North Tri-County Conference high school football opener.

Originally scheduled to be played last Friday afternoon at Fisher, the game was postponed because of the near 100-degree temperatures that day.

Oklee trailed 14-0 at halftime, but Enerson connected with Gary Parenteau on a 25-yard third quarter touchdown pass and hit Parenteau with a 20-yard scoring strike in the fourth quarter to gain a 14-14 tie.

Winning touchdown was a 55-yard Enerson-to-Loring Mercil bomb with about 1½ minutes left in the game.

"I was pleased with the win," reported Svaren. "I was proud of the kids. They did a tremendous job coming back like that."

Oklee won it without a ground game. The Bobcats netted just 22 yards rushing yesterday. They did get 172 yards passing from Enerson, though, on a 6-for-21 afternoon.

"We played pretty good defense in the second half," mentioned Svaren, who cited the play of defensive end Chad Christianson and cornerback Darrin Tougas.

Oklee will play a 7:30 p.m. game at McIntosh-Winger Friday.

Legion Baseball Stats Posted For '83 Season

Reflecting on the 1983 American Legion baseball season, Thief River Falls head coach Nick drees admitted that a 23-8-1 finish exceded anything that he might have anticipated with a squad staffed mostly by young, inexperienced ball players.

"The season on a whole was very satisfying," Drees explained. "I think you have to consider it a successful season. It was a lot more than what we were expected to do. The kids did well."

There were only four seniors — those completing their final year of American Legion baseball eligibility — on this year's Thief River Falls team, with Kerry Wollin, Tim Bottem, Jim Hallamek and Kirk Jenson all played well, said Drees.

"Wollin became a dominant pitcher in the district," Drees noted. "Bottem had a real good year, Hallamek was a steady performer when he came back (from an early-season appendectomy that forced him to miss 15 games) and Jenson was the biggest surprise."

In his first year of American Legion basebal, Jenson led the team with a .370 batting average. He had a team-high 33 hits in 89 at-bats. Wollin complemented his pitching with a .344 batting average, getting 31 hits in 90 at-bats, including a team-leading 11 doubles. Bottem finished at .293 with 32 hits in 109 at-bats while leading the club with five home runs and 29 runs batted in. Hallamek hit .277 with a 15-for-54 summer.

Drawing the tough opponents, Wollin finished 4-2 on the mound with a 2.23 earned-run-average. He gave up 39 hits and struck out 61 batters in 50 and two-thirds innings. Tim Nyland was 6-1 with a 1.70 earned-run-average and Ryan Drees was 5-0 with a 1.74 ERA in their sophomore year.

However, despite the unexpected success during the regular season when Thief River Falls went 22-6-1, Drees said he couldn't be completely pleased with the final results because of a not-so-productive Class AA Ninth District tournament showing when Thief River Falls went 12 innings to edge Crookston 8-6, lost to the eventual champion Moorhead Blues 8-1 and bottomed out when they were no-hit by last-place Fergus Falls 6-0 to exit from the six-team, double-elimination tournament.

During the regular season Thief River Falls beat Fertile 2-0; Grafton 13-4, 6-5; Warroad 7-1, 13-3; Gonvick 8-2; Bemidji 3-1, 1-0; Hallock 6-3; East Grand Forks 3-2; Karlstad 12-6; Roseau 7-1, 9-2; Grand Forks 3-2, 12-9; Fergus Falls 5-1, 4-2; and Detroit Lakes 11-6.

There were also three wins during the first Thief River Falls invitational tournament, an eight-team affair June 2-26 when the host squad won championship honors with wins over Red Lake Falls 13-5, Karlstad 10-5 and Warroad 5-1. Thief River Falls was also credited with a late-season 7-0 forfeit win over shorthanded Hallock and played to a 1-1 tie at Crookston that was called because of darkness.

Losses came at the hands of Crookston 6-2; Moorhead 12-0, 9-6; East Grand Forks 7-1; Karlstad 2-0; and Bemidji 6-2.

In the end, it was the lack of proven veterans that cost them, according to Drees. After strong regular season performances, many of the players failed to produce in the same manner in post-season play, he noted.

Still, overall, he repreated, "It was a very satisfying year. I think the future for baseball in Thief River Falls looks bright — if the kids decide they want to play baseball," Drees explained, noting that several players opted not to play this summer. If the younger players who enjoyed success in the Babe Ruth level in 1983 stay with the sport, success could follow them.

100-Mile Bike Race Planned At Park Rapids

Park Rapids' third annual Headwaters Hundred bike ride has been scheduled for Saturday, September 24. The last Saturday in September has been selected for its ideal fall colors and potentially comfortable weather as participants pedal through some of northern Minnesota's lake and pine country.

Headwaters Hundred is a 100-mile route starting and ending in Park Rapids and traversing Itasca State Park. In 1981 a group of 18 riders initiated the ride. In 1982 about 180 bikers enjoyed the ride and indications are that many more will join the 1983 event.

It's sponsored by the Itascatur Ski Bike Run Club with the cooperation of the Park Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce. The 100-mile event is timed and awards are given to both males and females in five age classes: 19-under, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49 and 50-over. T-shirts with the "Headwaters Post" emblem, that has come to symbolize the beginning of the Mississippi, are given to all who finish either distance.

Race will start promptly at 9 a.m. Those who want extra time to leisurely tour either distance may begin between 7 and 8:30 a.m.

Cost is $8 if registered before September 10, and $10 after that, including the day of the ride. The fee covers the ride, fruit-beverage stops and T-shirts for finishers. A spaghetti dinner Friday night, an awards banquet dinner Saturday night and a short bike ride to a resort for brunch and swimming Sunday morning are optional. For entry forms or information contact the Park Rapids Area Chamber of Commerce, Park Rapids, MN 56470; phone 218-732-4111.

National Wildlife Federation
News Release

When Benjamin Franklin walked into a field with a kite, a string and an iron key, he was lucky he lived to tell about what happened.

He was trying to find out everything he could about lightning, and he did, according to this month's issue of "Ranger Rick", the children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation. But he realized he could have been killed by the electricity in lightning. In fact, a person who later tried to repeat Franklin's experiment died during that recreation.

Here's a quiz of little known facts about lightning, taken from "Ranger Rick":

1. What type of lightning is most common? (a) Lightning that occurs inside a cloud; (b) Cloud-to-cloud lightning; (c) Cloud-to-ground lightning.

2. How long is a bolt of lightning? (a) A few yards; (b) 8 miles; (c) 100 miles; (d) Any of the above.

3. How hot is a bolt of lightning? (a) As hot as boiling water; (b) As hot as the surface of the sun; (c) More than twice as hot as the surface of the sun.

4. Why do you always see lightning before you hear thunder?

5. What causes thunder? (a) A lightning bolt makes the air around it very hot, very fast. When the hot air hits the cooler air surrounding it, a booming sound is heard; (b) Clouds that are charged with electricity bump together.

6. Does lightning happen when there isn't a thunderstorm?

7. Does lightning ever strike the same place more than once?

8. If you're outdoors in a thunderstorm, you should not: (a) Seek shelter under a single tree) (b) Stand in a field or on top of a hill; (c) Keep swimming or boating; (d) Do any of the above.

9. If you're indoors in a thunderstorm, you should not: (a) Stand in the door or near a window; (b) Take a bath; (c) Talk on the telephone; (d) Do any of the above.

Answers:

1. a.

2. d. Lightning flashes within a cloud may be only a few yards long. Lightning between a cloud and the earth may be as much as 8 miles long. Some lightning strokes between one cloud and another may be 100 miles long.

3. c.

4. Light travels much faster than sound. It takes five seconds for sound to travel a single mile, but light travels great distances almost instantly. To find the number of miles away from you the lightning is, count the seconds between the flash and the crash — and then divide by five.

5. a.

6. Yes. Thunderclouds cause most lightning, but lightning also happens in snowstorms, sandstroms, tornadoes, over volcanic eruptions and during nuclear explosions.

7. Yes. For example, lightning strikes the Empire State Building in New York more than a hundred times every year.

8. d. Whatever reaches highest into the air offers lightning a quick and easy path to the ground. So stay away from anything tall, and lie flat on the ground if you are the tallest thing around. Lightning can also travel through water, so make sure you're not in it during a storm.

9. d. The safest place to be is inside a closed car away from trees. Steel-framed buildings with lightning rods are also very safe.

Duck, Pheasant Stamps Have Art Contests

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has prepared contest rules for artists who wish to submit designs for the 1984 Minnesota pheasant and waterfowl stamps. An art contest is held annually to select designs for the stamps, which are required to those who wish to hunt pheasants and waterfowl in the state.

Tim Bremicker of the DNR's Wildlife Section said no artist should prepare a design without first obtaining a copy of the contest rules. Rules can be had by contacting the DNR Bureau of Information, Box 46 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; phone 612-296-3336.

Bremicker noted that the winning artists receive no financial remuneration from the DNR. He said all art work except entries which are to be displayed at the Science Museum, will be returned to the artists several days after the close of the contest.

He emphasized that the design must be the artist's own creation and neither copied nor duplicated from another person's work. Also, the designs for both the waterfowl and pheasant stamp must be horizontal: 6 inches high by 9 inches wide.

Entries for the waterfowl stamp contest will be accepted starting October 31, 1983 and must be delivered to the Bureau of Information no later than noon, Nov. 28, 1983. Judging will be held Nov. 29.

Pheasant stamp entries will be accepted beginning Dec. 1, 1983 and must be at the Bureau of Information no later than noon, Dec. 19, 1983. Judging will be conducted on Dec. 20.

An Endangered Species Seminar Is Being Held

Wildlife conservation leaders from 23 Western Hemisphere nations began a two-week seminar August 1 at the Department of State for an in depth study of ways to improve the implementation and enforcement of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES).

Delegates participate in presentations by the CITES Secretariat, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Canadian Wildlife Service, and several other government and private agencies in mutual problems and experiences in administering the 81-nation treaty that marks its tenth anniversary this year.

CITES was negotiated and signed in Washington in 1973. Its purposes are to promote international cooperation in conservation and to protect endangered wildlife and plants against overexploitation from international trade. It lists wild animals and plants under one of three catagories, depending on the degree of threat, and regulates trade through a system of permits. The Interior Department, through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, administers CITES for this country.

"This seminar is an example of the cooperative spirit among the community of nations that has made CITES a significant force for curbing the threat of species' extinction caused by trade," said G. Ray Arnett, Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks. "CITES is a dynamic, working treaty and is expanding rapidly. It is important that implementation and enforcement keep pace with that growth.".

A major obstacle to proper implementation of CITES in the Western Hemisphere, as in most of the world, is the lack of personnel in government agencies who understand the treaty. To improve this situation, the CITES Secretariat is sponsoring a series of seminars on implementation. Fish and Wildlife Service has assisted CITES Secretary-General Eugene Lapointe in planning and coordinating the sessions, which will serve as a model for future seminars. Goals are to establish direct working relationships between the CITES management authorities of the Western Hemisphere nations, strengthen the network of CITES administrators throughout the region, encourage organization of adequate government structures for CITES implementation, and increase regional cooperation in dealing with CITES-related problems.

World Wildlife Fund-U.S. and the United Nations Environmental Programme are helping fund the seminar. Western Hemisphere nations participating are: Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Bahamas, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Columbia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Guatemala, Guyana, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Santa Lucia, Suriname, Trinidad and Tobago, United States, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Fish Hatchery Loss Reported At Two Sites

A rare combination of weather factors is believed to have caused the water supply at two fish hatcheries in Michigan to become supersaturated with nitrogen, resulting in severe fish losses.

At the Pendills Creek national fish hatchery near Brimley, 1.8 million 2-3 inch fish have died during the past several weeks, or virtually the hatchery's entire supply scheduled for stocking in the Great Lakes in the spring of 1984. At the Marquette state fish hatchery, about 500,000, or 75 per cent, of the hatchery stock has been lost. The hatcheries are at different locations in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, but since stream conditions are reported to be identical at both sites, it is assumed that the cause of the losses is the same.

An exceptionally mild winter and light snow fall last year, drought conditions during most of the current summer, temperature, and other factors in combination can cause nitrogen supersaturation, which kills fish by causing internal bubbles.

Extensive investigations into the possibility of other causes — disease, food contamination, etc. — have resulted in negative findings.

Nitrogen supersaturation has never before occurred at Pendills Creek or Marquette. Both hatcheries have been producing fish for more than 30 years.

Combined losses of lake trout at both state and federal facilities will mean a severe cutback in planting stocks for both inland Michigan lakes and the Great Lakes during next year's stocking season.

DNR NEWS

Fishing Popularity

Latest figures released by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on fishing license sales show that Minnesota leads the nation in the popularity of sport angling.

While Minnesota ranked third overall in sales of fishing licenses behind California and Texas, one in three Minnesotans had a fishing license last year compared to one in 11 Californians and one in seven Texans.

Minnesota had 1,677,611 "paid fishing license holders" in 1982; California had 2,480,158, and Texas 1,909,503.

Tree Farm

Nestled on Little Sugarbush Lake near Calloway in Becker county is Minnesota's tree farm of the year for 1983. Owner of the 334 acre managed forest, Jim and Mary Richards, were honored at the annual Minnesota Forestry Association (MFA) meeting at St. Johns University August 6.

"Mapleiag" is a Norwegian term meaning "maple community". The Richards family turned these acres into an income producing forest, recreation and educational tree farm.

After DNR foresters were asked to help develop a management plan for the land, the forest was improved through selective harvest of elm, ash, oak, birch and aspen. Some of the lumber was used to build cabins and a lodge for visiting cross country skiers. In addition, old Finnish and Norwegian log cabins were restored and the Richards harvest ample sap for syrup.

The Richards have used their tree farm to host two international language camps sponsored by Concordia College. Norwegian, Swedish and Russian languages were taught in the woodland environment.

Loivola Cup cross country ski race has taken place here for seven years. The Richards have spent many hard working but enjoyable times managing and sharing their tree farm.

Also honored at the MFA meeting were the regional tree farm winners from which the state tree farmer was selected.

Lane Townsend tree farm near Esko in Carlton county was a regional winner. Lane Townsend and his family now derive their entire income from the 115 acre tree farm by cutting sawlogs and fuelwood and producing maple syrup.

Peter Harris of Grand Rapids was an honored regional tree farm winner. With the assistance of foresters from the Blandin Paper Company, his 95 acre tree farm is under multiple use forest management.

Regional winner Dean Andrews has managed his 153 acre tree farm near Emily since 1958. Planting 120,000 trees, harvesting timber and building wildlife ponds are some of his accomplishments. Central Minnesota Small Woodlands Owners Association 1982 "spring field day" was held here.

Christmas tree producer Arden F. Welte of Zumbro Falls was also a regional tree farm winner. His Cedar Crest tree farm has 35 acres of conifers including Norway, white, Jack, and Scotch pines, white spruce and Douglas fir, with about half under Christmas tree cultivation.

Ninety acres of his tree farm includes a mixed northern hardwoods type having a superior black walnut for the Minnesota Tree Improvement Program.

Landowners interested in receiving forestry assistance or becoming a certified tree farmer should contact their local DNR forestry office or private forestry consultant.

Diving Flag Rule

A recent change by the Coast Guard in the Inland Rules of the Road has caused some confusion as to which "diver's flag" should be flown by those engaged in underwater activities.

"The change in the flag was made without much warning or consulation with diving groups," said Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"State law in most states, including Minnesota, has recognized the red flag with diagonal white stripe, adopted by the Underwater Society of America," he said. "The recent change in the federal rules of the road, however, declared the blue and white 'Alpha' flag used by ocean divers as official. Both flags are used to warn boaters to stay away from the diving area."

Elverum noted that other states have experienced similar problems and that recent actions by the Coast Guard's National Boating Safety Advisory Council will probably result in a change in the federal requirements to allow the use of the red and white flag on craft 65 feet or less in length.

Until that time, he said Minnesota divers may continue to use the red and white flag recognized by state law. The diver must remain within 50 feet of the flag, which can be flown from a boat or float.

He also urged boaters to respect the diver's flag and to remember that the law requires them to remain 150 feet away.

"Divers are reporting that curious boaters and fishermen are coming dangerously close to diving operations," he cautioned.

Water Quality Study

Department of Natural Resources is looking for old wells on lands the agency has acquired in southeastern Minnesota to determine their usefulness in studying underground water levels and water quality.

Hydrologists at the DNR's Division of Waters say water quality problems exist in southeastern Minnesota and are made worse by unsealed and improperly constructed old water wells.

Department has acquired a number of these old wells as part of its land acquisition for wildlife, parks and other purposes. Wells which cannot be used for water supply or monitoring will be abandoned.

The project is part of a combined effort by the DNR, the Minnesota Geological Survey, the Department of Health, the Water Planning Board and the counties to identify and remove known sources of ground water pollution in the region.

Region is characterized by limestone with caves and fissures which allow contaminated water from the surface to penetrate into the ground water without filtration.

This means that contaminants move rapidly into drinking water sources. Old wells with holes in the casing or space alongside the well casing allow contaminants to move from the surface downward or between layers in the subsurface in the same way.

Department wants to make certain that the wells on lands it has acquired are not contributing to an already widespread problem.

Conservation Officers

Department of Natural Resources had announced the hiring of four conservation officers specifically to enforce the watercraft laws in certain high-use areas of the state during the peak boating months.

Officers, who were hired in late July, have undergone several weeks of specialized and on the job training. They will be on the water until early October and will resume their duties again next spring.

Two of the officers are to be assigned to the Twin Cities metro area, with special emphasis to be put on Lake Minnetonka and the Lower St. Croix river.

Other two officers are assigned to northeastern and north central Minnesota.

Sailboard Rules

Sailboarding has recently become one of the fastest-growing water activities in Minnesota, says the Department of Natural Resources.

Using a surfboard and a sail which is held up by the operator, the sport combines sailing and surfing. But since sailboarding is relatively new, there is some confusion as to what the requirements are for their use in Minnesota.

"State law defines a sailboard as a watercraft," according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the DNR. "It's operation is governed by the boating laws just like a regular sailboat."

Elverum noted that two areas were of particular interest to sailboarders — licensing and personal flotation devices:

+Sailboards (as defined by law) were exempted from carrying PFDs effective in 1982, although it is recommended that they be worn whenever conditions arrant. (A sailboarder recently drowned on Devil's Track Lake near Grand Marais.)

+Sailboards are required to be licensed with the DNR and display decals the same as sailboats and canoes. The majority of boards are about 12 feet long and do not qualify for the exemption from licensing which affects nonmotorized boats nine feet or less in length.

Repair Dam

Work on the Lake Byllesby Dam, located on the Cannon River near Cannon Falls, is now underway, the Department of Natural Resources reports, and is expected to be completed during the 1983 construction season.

Dam is owned by the counties of Dakota and Goodhue. DNR is providing $433,000 in funds to the counties for the repairs.

Modifications will improve the safety of the dam by providing additional spillway capacity and by repairing the concrete, embankment, and gate sections.

Grant to the counties is being administered by the Division of Waters dam safety program.

Film Requests Show Concern For Safety

Lively concer for safety is evidenced by the nearly 1.6 million Minnesota who viewed 46,000 showings of 16mm films on crime prevention, traffic safety, emergency services and police procedures last year.

Films were borrowed from the film library of the Minnesota department of public safety by schools, businesses, civic organizations and other interest groups at a nominal cost of return postage and insurance. Film library offers more than 3,500 prints of 658 films. About half of them are in color.

Last year, the library's small staff — one full-time employee, two seasonal assistants and a part-time helper — filled 28,000 requests for films.

"We may get 10 to 15 requests a day," said Janet Weber, supervisor, "but a single request may involve 250 different titles." Requests for large numbers of films usually come from schools that schedule showings throughout the academic year. The library mails out 20 to 150 films a day, postage paid. Up to 150 films are also picked up each day at the library.

To satisfy its many patrons, the film library must schedule deliveries well in advance. "We ask that borrowers please submit their requests in writing — in time to reach us at least 60 days before they want to show the film," Weber said. "While every effort is made to satisfy everyone, there are times when we just cannot provide the film desired, when desired." Borrowers are advised to suggest alternate, acceptable titles and alternate viewing dates, at least two weeks apart, she added.

While the film library can recommend appropriate film titles by telephone if the caller provides information on the subject matter of interest, the audience and the time available for showing, it cannot take orders by telephone.

For obvious reasons, certain films on crime and police procedures are not for general circulation, although organizations with a legitimate concern about shoplifting, street crimes and security may borrow them by contacting their local sheriff or police department.

New catalog describing the content of films now available will soon be for sale by the state Public Documents Division, 117 University Ave., St. Paul, MN 55155 for $4.50 plus tax and $1.50 for postage and handling.

For additional information on films, the public is invited to call the film library at (612) 297-3939.

A living ferret had not been seen since 1965 in Wyoming, reports National Wildlife magazine. But ever since September, 1981, when Lucille Hogg of Meeteetse, Wyoming walked into a local taxidermy shop with a dead "mink or something" killed by her dog, biologists have been sweeping the Wyoming prairie with spotlights, looking for the unmistakable emerald stare of perhaps the rarest mammal in North America — the black-footed ferret.

Report Given On University Improvements

University of Minnesota can improve the state's economy by raising academic standards and by becoming more accessible to newcomers and to businesses, a task force has recommended.

The panel — made up of 23 faculty, staff and students — was set up in February by university president C. Peter Magrath to determine how the university's contribution to Minnesota's economy can be improved. A report of the panel, which was chaired by David Lilly, acting finance vice president, was presented August 11 to the university board of regents.

The task force made its recommendations after conducting two surveys, one asking about 150 members of the public and private sectors for their impressions and concerns about the university, and one asking about 120 deans and department heads how their units can better contribute to the Minnesota economy.

Among the recommendations are that:

(1) Academic standards be raised for both the graduate and undergraduate programs.

"Capable, well-trained people take the lead in making the state's economy operate well within the emerging international economic order," the report says. "Obviously, well-trained graduate students affect positively the research programs of the institutions and well-being of the organizations that hire them."

(2) Recruitment of out-of-state and foreign students be intensified. The report contends that the university's "relative homogeneity of the student body" — one of the most locally based among Big Ten and private universities — makes the university less attractive to some of the state's better students.

Also, this homogeneity hurts students because local companies that seek a variety of backgrounds among their employees are forced to recruit more heavily in other states, the report says.

(3) Minnesota's higher education institutions explore ways to cooperate so that specialities are not duplicated needlessly and so that teaching and research may be shared.

"During times of retrenchment and reallocation, research and teaching programs might be enriched if the university takes the initiative in expanding cooperation with . . . other schools and institutions in the state," the report states.

(4) Access to the university and its faculty be made easier.

The report says the Minneapolis campus is "one of the most difficult in the country for a visitor or newcomer to enter and find directions . . . the manner in which the university presents itself to the public is cold and forbidding."

To remedy that, the report suggests that signs, building markers, parking directions, directory listings and posted and published maps be improved. Also an open house is needed to give businesses first-hand knowledge of how research units work and how they might be used in cooperation with business.

(5) A technology transfer council be organized in association with a vice president for external relations.

A new vice presidency would be created and would work to sponsor communication and programs for small companies in Minnesota, linking their needs to university resources. "The university should take the lead — as it now does in its agricultural programs — in providing the same kind of access for small companies that larger and more sophisticated companies now have," the report says.

The report concludes that: "Both the university and the state need to adapt to a new world with respect to high quality post-secondary education, to research and to interrelationships of government, business, agriculture and education."

The drinking driver problem creates an estimated economic cost of over $5 billion.

Basic Tools Help To Make Finances Work

If you are building a house, you need the right tools — hammer, saw, trowel — as well as the blueprint of a sound design. The same thing applies to managing your money, according to the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs). You need the right basic tools — files, calculator, spread sheet, diary of notebook.

Get organized! That's the first step. You can't account for money if you misplace bills and bank statements and your checkbook balance is a mystery. Poor record keeping exposes you to lost deductions at tax time because you can't find receipts and don't remember all your deductible expenses.

Here are some practical suggestions from PCAs, which require nothing more than a few folders, or an accordion file and a firm resolve on your part to start paying more attention to your financial affairs. It's good money mangement practice to hold onto your money as long as possible, so consider filing your bills in an accordion file or folders for each day of the month until they have to be paid. As a reminder, mark a calendar with due dates.

However, if this system requires more time than is available to you, put your bills in one folder until your monthly bill-paying session. If you do that, pick a date when most of your bills fall due, like the first or the fifteenth of the month, and pay everything at once.

Once your bills are paid, a filing system is even more important because many of these paid bills or receipts will be needed when you start on your income tax return.

You'll save time if you file paid bills in folders labeled to coincide with the individual income tax form. For instance, use one folder for medical expenses, another for work-related expenses, and another for interest paid on mortgage or charge accounts. That way, you have instant access to important records.

One of the most difficult task for many is reconciling a checkbook. Either the stubs are neglected or the balance doesn't equal the bank statement. Part of the problem could be the checkbook register itself. Pocket checkbooks allow little room for record-keeping and notations. If that's a problem, CPAs suggest switching to a business checkbook or buying a small ledger book available at stationery stores to record checking account transactions. If you pay for most things by check, this serves as your primary record-keeping tool.

Planning a budget and projecting income and expenses (forecasting case flow) is best done on a "spread sheet," a tool CPAs find practical when dealing with business clients. This simply a large sheet of ledger paper on which you map out your income and expenses over a 12-month period. At a glance, your financial picture emerges clearly.

Across the top of the sheet, label columns by month. Down the left-hand side, list income, then your expenses (leaving room for totals). Bottom line reveals the crucial difference between the two. Fill in all the "knowns" here, but leave a few lines blank for income or expenses which may occur during the year. Use pencil so you can adjust figures as necessary. Results give you a good idea of how your money will be spent in the future and where you might economize. It will help you plan for those large annual expenses, such as insurance premiums, coming down the road.

Diary or small notebook is essential for the self-employed or anyone with heavy out-of-pocket expenses. Keep track of those expenses, listing dates, places, persons entertained, and business discussed. An accurate diary is admissable as evidence if you are audited by the internal revenue service.

Diary or notebook is also useful if you are starting to live on a budget. Keeping track of what you are spending each day for the month can help you plan your spending and allocate financial priorities.

A calculator with a printout tape is another important tool, CPAs say. Having the tape will save double checking your figures.

The more affluent you are, the more intricate are your finances, and the more sophisticated financial planning tools you need. You might supplement the basic tools with a safe deposit box, a small library books on investing and taxes, a computer to displace the calculator, a direct telephone line to your broker — and professional advisors familiar with tax and estate planning.

Public Notices

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lemm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Johnnie Ruud, husband, father and grandfather, who passed away 11 years ago the 11th of Sept., 1972:

There's an open gate at the end of the road through which each must go alone.

And there in a light we cannot see our Father claims His own.

Beyond the gate our loved one finds happiness and rest.

And there is comfort in the thought that a loving God knows best.

Sadly missed by wife Vivian, children Joan, Darlene, Russ and their families. 1t70p

STRAIGHT TALK

— by —

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

"If you know that you won't catch hell for your vote, then you can vote as you know you should!"

That's what one congressman said to me when I asked why the federal budget deficit keeps rising, in spite of the new system Congress instituted to control spending and minimize deficits. Each year, under this new system, Congress passes a budget resolution indicating what is to be spent and what is to be collected in revenues. This resolution is supposed to be a controlling guide for all legislation that will be enacted in the session that costs or raises money.

Simply stated, every special interest group in the United States knows how to get a letter campaign instituted for their special legislation. Congress responds to this pressure by appropriating money and building up deficits that threaten our economy. The new system supposedly eliminates the problem by consolidating all expenditures and revenues into one resolution, and that makes it hard for the special interests to win.

Phil Gramm, a member of the House of Representatives from Texas, just happens to be an economics professor from Texas A&M. He stands for economic stability. He has ethics. He says what he believes, and he votes that way, too. In fact, when he won re-election as a Democrat and then changed political parties, he resigned and ran for that same House seat, again. He didn't have to do that, but he wanted the voters to get another chance to express themselves.

Phil fights to get the national budget balanced because he believes that government must provide a stable environment for free enterprise and freedom to survive. He spelled out for me the three functions he feels belong to government: (1) Providing internal and external security; (2) enforcing the laws; and (3) supplying a stable economic environment and structure.

To achieve this economic stability, Phil Gramm fights for a balanced budget. He knows that without a balanced budget, there is no stability and inflation is a sure thing. But his fight is not easy. There is no surplus money in the federal treasury and the debt exceeds one trillion dollars, so that every new program or expansion of old programs means a bigger deficit or higher taxes.

According to Gramm, entitlement spending, the money for social security, welfare, pensions and the like, has increased 460 per cent in the last 10 years. Our congressman keep adding what people are entitled to receive, but they don't always provide the money to pay these bills as they come due.

To show the problem confronting the typical congressman, Phil Gramm said that he supported a delay in a cost of living wage adjustment for federal employees. These employees were organized, and when they discovered he was opposing the wage adjustment, they got 900 federal employees from his congressional district to write and let him know that if he didn't support this wage adjustment, he would be labelled an enemy of federal employees and marked for extinction next time he came up for re-election. Not one of the citizens who would benefit from a balanced federal budget wrote to praise his stand.

Gramm was not opposed to proper cost of living adjustments for federal employees. He just could not see voting for something unless someone showed him where the money would come from to pay for this benefit, and no one had any answers. He points out that for 30 years special interest organization pressure has pushed up costs and contributed to rising deficits. Each program seems worthy. The problem is that no money is available to pay for any of these programs from surpluses, and no one suggests any cuts in other programs or increases in taxes.

In his battling, Gramm feels that only once has he been fully successful in fighting for savings, and the smears he took for this are still visible. He fought the "rails to trails" amendment to a bill; $20,000,000 to convert deserted railroad right of way to paths for bikers and hikers. It wasn't a bad idea; there just wasn't any available money.

If Phil Gramm has one point to make, it's that the public, you and I, have got to understand the issues when it comes to spending money. We create inflation when we make demands on a government which has no spare money. The deficits and borrowing creat the problems. When someone comes up with a spending program, he should also produce a taxing program, and publicize each equally, to determine whether the people are willing to support the program.

My impression of Phil Gramm was certainly not the one I received watching edited TV interviews and reading selected quotes in newspapers and magazines. I think that Congressman Phil Gramm makes a lot of sense.

That's Straight Talk!

AGRI-GROWTH REPORT!

by RUSS SCHWANDT

Farmer, agribusinessman, Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture in the 1960's and president of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, which was created to speak out for all groups, associations, companies in the state's agriculture industry.

It's often hard to find good news for Minnesota agriculture in today's headlines. This summer the bad news has been the lack of rainfall during the early and middle summer months, coupled with days of searing heat. The result has been lowered estimates on what our 1983 agricultural harvest will be in this state.

There is, however, extremely good news in the signing of the Russian grain agreement. According to Secretary of Agriculture John Block, the new pact should mean some $10 billion in the pockets of American agriculture, depending on the market price.

The new agreement says that the Soviets must buy at least nine million metric tons of U.S. grain in each year during the next five years. The nine million metric tons is to be equally divided between wheat and corn. However, there is an exception to allow for the purchase of soybeans.

Should the Russians wish to substitute soybeans or soybean meal, they would only be required to buy 500,000 tons of the soybean product instead of a million tons of the grain. In such an instance, they would then only have to purchase a total of eight million metric tons of wheat and corn.

The members of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council have long applauded anything our government did that would improve our agricultural export markets. It is the same reason that we have opposed, so strenuously, governmental actions—like grain embargoes—that have caused such a terrible erosion in our ability to sell our farm production freely around the globe.

I feel this recently announced grain agreement with the U.S.S.R. is something the U.S. government owes the American farmer for the 1980 Russian grain embargo that President Carter forced onto our agri-economy. At the time of that embargo, the Russians were one of our prime ag customers. The American farmer had a 70 percent share of the total Russian agricultural imports each year, and it is believed to be highly unlikely that we'll ever recover that market share once again.

Hopefully, this new agreement will show the Russians that they can depend on us as a food resource. Perhaps, if the rest of the world finds that we are a reliable supplier of grain exports to a nation like the U.S.S.R., maybe they'll also return and give us another chance at becoming their primary source of agricultural imports.

IRS Lists Ways To Reduce Taxes

Budgeting, economizing and planning are good, sensible ways to save money. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) wants taxpayers to realize that, while there are no bargains or discounts on taxes, there are legal ways to cut down on taxes, and the secret to "A penny saved" on taxes is good planning. The IRS has prepared this question and answer column to alert taxpayers to the money-saving benefits of good tax planning.

Q. If you had to sum up in just a few words how all taxpayers could get the most tax "breaks" what would you say?

A. Keep good records all year! Even if you've always filed the 1040A, or short form, and have never been required to have more than your W-2 at tax time, your circumstances could change during the year and you might want to itemize deducations.

Q. I've never had bookkeeping — I don't know how to begin to keep good records. Do I have to keep ledgers and records like that?

A. A good recordkeeping system is one that works for you. To be good, a system need not be formal or in a ledger, although for some people, that is a good system. A manila envelope or shoe box set aside in January for receipts and records, marked "Taxes" and the year, and kept for at least four years, is a good system for many.

Q. Where do I begin? I don't know the first thing about tax planning.

A. If you have large investments — stocks, bonds, real estate holdings, for example, you might want to look into a professional investment or tax counselor. In that case, be as choosey as you would in selecting a doctor or other professional.

Q. How can I figure how much tax I have to pay?

A. Tax is based on taxable income, that is, all of your income, minus such things as moving expenses, dividend exclusions, excess itemized deductions, etc. The idea is to keep your taxable income to a minimum, and do it legally, or to take advantage of allowable tax credits, which directly reduce the amount of tax owed.

Q. What are some of the tax credits available to reduce my taxes?

A. There are a number of credits, but of course, not everyone qualifies for ever credit. Among those available are child and dependent care, earned income, credit for the elderly, political contributions, residential energy, and overpaid social security tax.

Q. What are some ways to reduce my adjusted gross income?

A. The following are only some of the ways for persons in certain situations to reduce adjusted gross income: If you are married and both you and your spouse work, generally you may reduce your income by five per cent of the qualified earned income of the spouse with the lesser earnings up to $1,500. If you itemize deducations you can lower your income by the excess of $2,300 if you're single; $3,400 if you're married, filing a joint return; or $1,700 if you're married, filing separately. When in business for yourself (not an employee of someone else) trade expenses can also be subtracted from your taxable income. Travel costs such as meals and lodging are also deductible and if you are reimbursed for job-connected expenses you may deduct the amount of the expenses. Alimony payments can also be subtracted to reduce your taxable income.

Q. How can I get information on these credits and adjustments to income to see if I qualify?

A. You can write to the Internal Revenue Service and ask for free publication 910, "Taxpayer's Gude to IRS Information and Assistance." It lists the publications IRS will send you on request, and also contains an alphabetical list of topics with references to particular publications in which that information appears.

Q. Is it really legal for me to try to pay less tax?

A. Generally, yes. While there are rules about paying taxes, there are also alternatives for paying less tax. Much depends on your motives and methods. Those who are devious and set out to defraud the government are not acting legally, and the penalties for this are severe. The right idea is to pay what you owe — no more, no less.

Q. Why must I prove I'm right? Does the IRS automatically think I cheat?

A. The IRS does not automatically assume that taxpayers cheat. IRS does expect taxpayers to fulfill their legal obligation of keeping adequate records to support items on their tax returns. IRS is not the only organization that expects us to keep good records to prove our points: department stores, insurance companies, stock brokers — even the grocery store — expect the same. If you're done what is right, you have nothing to fear from IRS.

QUICK QUIZ

Are you strong on the subject of the Olympics? Taking this test can help you tell.

1. The 1984 summer Olympics will be held in Los Angeles, U.S.A. This is the first time the summer Olympics have been held here in over (a) four (b) 50 (c) 100 years?

2. Helping to support our athletes is another first. To raise money for the Olympic teams, the U.S. Mint is offering the first U.S. gold coin, in over (a) four (b) 50 (c) 100 years?

3. The earliest recorded Olympic games were played in Greece nearly (a) 3000 (b) 300 (c) 30 years ago?

ANSWERS: 1. (b) In 1932, the games were also held in Los Angeles. 2. (b) The Olympic Commemorative Coin Act passed by Congress authorized a 1983 and 1984 silver dollar and a 1984 ten dollar gold coin—the first gold coin issued by the United States in over 50 years. A surcharge of $10 on each of the silver coins and $50 on the gold coin will provide financial support for the training of young American athletes. For a free brochure on the coins and an order form you can write to the Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, CA 94175. 3. (a) The earliest recorded Olympic competition was in 776 B.C.

Vietnam Vets To Gather At Mpls. Reunion

Vietnam veterans from Minnesota will gather September 24 and 25 in Minneapolis for a reunion coordinated by the Vietnam veterans leadership program (VVLP).

"Our purpose is to gather together Minnesota Vietnam veterans to honor the dead, to share and renew old comradeships, and possibly to use the occasion to help put our experiences and losses in perspective," said Jim Main, Minnesota VVLP chairman.

Activities planned for Saturday, September 24, include unit reunions, seminars and booths to inform veterans about services and benefits still available, and a "ceremony of names" to honor Minnesotans who gave their lives in the war.

Saturday events will be held at the Curtis hotel, 10th street and Third avenue south; the reunions and seminars will run all day starting at 8 a.m. and the ceremony of names begins at 6:30 p.m.

Sunday's events, a memorial salute and welcome home picnic, will take place at Fort Snelling. Salute, which includes bands and color guards, will start at 11 a.m. at the Ft. Snelling cemetery, and the picnic starts at 12:30 p.m. at the Ft. Snelling state park.

Activities are open to all Minnesota veterans and their families.

Steve Markley, MVVLP Executive Director, said "Basically, we'd like to recreate, as much as possible, what many of us experienced in Washington, D.C. in November of last year. We also want Vietnam era veterans fully aware of the programs, services and benefits available to them."

Persons interested in attending or getting more information may contact Markley at (612) 375-0076.

Rehabilitating Older Homes Saves Taxes

If you admire old architecture and would accept a special investment challenge, you may want to join the growing number of Americans who buy and rehabiliatate old houses. These "urban homesteaders" purchase rundown houses, usually at a low price, and transform them into cozy, good-as-new living quarters.

Of course rehabiliation is neither easy, nor cheap, notes the Minnesota society of CPAs, but you may be able to take advantage of money saving tax breaks and special programs offered by the federal and local governments.

Even with government cutbacks of financial grants, many cities still receive sizeable community development block grants (CDBG), which are often used to improve private housing. Depending on your income and the location of the house you are rehabilitating, you may be eligible for low interest rehabiliation loans, say CPAs. Check with local government offices.

You may qualify for tax breaks for rehabilitating an old house, CPAs say. If the house lies within an historic district, you could get a charitable contribution tax deduction by donating the facade of the house to a local nonprofit preservation agency.

This tax break, known as a "facade easement," is granted for the appraised value of brownstone stoops, decorative cornices and trim, or masonry reliefs on doors and windows.

Depending upon the improvements you make, you can also get an energy conservation tax credit. You're allowed a maximum credit of $300, or 15 per cent of costs up to $2,000 for such energy saving improvements as new storm windows or insulation for the house you're rehabilitating.

No matter how much you spend buying and rehabilitating an old house, CPAs suggest keeping accurate records of all your expenses for capital improvements. Thus, when you sell the house, you reduce the amount of capital gain made from the sale. For instance, if the house costs $20,000 and you spend another $30,000 in rehabilitation, your total investment is $50,000. Later selling the house for $65,000, your actual gain is only $15,000.

Once you find a house you like, getting a mortgage is a major hurdle. It may be easier if you apply at the bank holding the current mortgage, CPAs say. Or look for banks that specialize in rehabilitation mortgages, or that have liberal lending policies if you buy in targeted neighborhoods. Check your local housing office or preservation society for suggestions.

Another possibility is the secondary mortgage market. The federal national mortgage association, has a special mortgage financing program designed specifically for rehabilitation projects.

Under the program, the association recognizes both the "as is" value of the property, and the "as completed" value. So you may get, for example, a $60,000 mortgage for a house with a current market value of $30,000.

A buyer can get a mortgage for 95 per cent of a house's completed value. Mortgage association backs the mortgage from a conventional lender. In our example, $30,000 goes to the seller administered by the lender to pay for the rehabilitation.

When it comes time to rehabilitate the house, you will need to do some more financial homework, CPAs say. Start with a thorough inspection of the property. Such a complete inspection may forestall later surprises that could unsettle your budget.

First Day at State

Going to college has been part of their plans and their families' for a long time. So this is a time of realization . . . the fulfillment of a cherished hope.

Yet there are moments of wondering what the future holds. Are they ready for the immediate challenges . . . and for those further down the future.

Preparation for secular education should begin with religious education. It should begin early. It should continue faithfully every week.

Our churches and synagogues provide the spiritual and moral training our youth need as they get ready for their opportunities and responsibilities in tomorrow's world.

Steroids At The Games

Following editorial is from the Hibbing Daily Tribune:

It's truly an embarassment for the United States to have nearly its entire weight team, along with a handful of runners, depart in a cloud of dust and controversy from the Pan American Games in Venezuela.

It's not like the use of steroids, a potentially harmful drug that builds muscle tissue, has suddenly become illegal. It's been illegal for some time, as has the use of any drug that enhances athletic performance.

The only thing that has changed is that the people who check for the use of steroids have a better method for detecting them in the body, even long after they have been administered. The new detection methods caused the mass exodus of athletes, and left the United States with but one competitor in the discus and shotput events this week at the games.

Over the years the United States has had one of the proudest records of any nation in keeping amateur sports pure and honest. We don't have government support for training athletes year-round. We don't have government programs that cull promising athletes from kindergarten classes and send them to cloistered swimming or gymnastics schools for the remainder of their youth.

Yet it appears that the use of drugs among our young athletes has become totally acceptable to the young people involved.

There are good reasons to ban such drugs. Primarily they violate the very spirit of amateur training. It could lead to a situation where the nation that can create the best drugs will win the most medals.

It can also cause serious health problems for the athletes involved.

We kind of doubt that Al Oerter had to use any drugs to win four straight gold medals in the Olympics throwing the discus. His success can be attributed to more old-fashioned reasons, like personal determination, stamina, dedication and pride in representing his nation.

Not that we doubt the 13 athletes who withdrew from the Pan Am games last week are short on those qualities. It's just that they felt they need that little extra something to put them over the top. They cheated.

The Pan Am games are an excellent early warning for American athletes, and for athletes all over the world. The use of steroids, and other drugs, will absolutely not be allowed in the Olympics in 1984.

There's still time to get ready using the old-fashioned methods.

Dealing With Acid Rain

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Debate over acid rain has slowly advanced from searching for a cause to searching for a solution. Because of the size and potential depth of the problem, U.S. officials should make certain the solution is both fair and workable.

The U.S. House is considering a proposal, sponsored by Minnesota's Sixth District Democratic representative, Gerry Sikorski, that calls for both a tax on electricity output and a 12-million-ton annual reduction in sulfur dioxide emissions over a 31-state area.

Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., is working on legislation that would tax power plant and automobile emissions. Pooled tax monies would be used by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to help the dirtiest utilities purchase pollution abatement equipment.

EPA chief William Ruckelshaus, meantime, is seriously considering implementing a limited, less costly acid rain control program that would trim sulfur dioxide emissions by two to four million tons annually over a four-state area in the northeast.

Since sulfur dioxide emissions are not affected by state borders, and since the problem is becoming acute in a number of areas, including Minnesota, Mr. Ruckelshaus' limited program would be a mistake.

Mr. Sikorski's bill, on the other hand, is on the right road but in the wrong lane. By basing the tax on electricity production, his bill would treat all comparable utilities equally. This is an unfair taxing method because it fails to consider a utility's previous investments in pollution control equipment.

For instance, under the Sikorski bill, a 500-megawatt plant in Minnesota would be taxed the same as a 500-megawatt plant in Ohio even though the Minnesota plant may have spent millions on scrubbers and burns expensive low-sulfur coal while the Ohio plant is without scrubbers and is fueled with high-sulfur coal.

Furthermore, by limiting his bill to 31 states, Mr. Sikorski is overlooking most fast-growing western states and their future contributions to the nation's acid rain problem.

Although many key details have yet to be worked out, Mr. Durenberger's proposal, which wisely includes all 50 states, appears to be the fairest, most sensible plan to date.

By taxing emissions rather than electricity, Mr. Durenberger's plan would automatically include other industrial sources and also take into account previous pollution abatement efforts. In Minnesota, where utilities have made substantial investments in scrubbers and other anti-pollution technology, that's a vitally important feature.

Because the nitrogen oxide emissions from mobile sources (trucks, trains, buses, airplanes and automobiles) also contribute to acid rain, Mr. Durenberger plans to tax them on a proportional basis. While dollar amounts and taxing methods have yet to be finalized, he intends to place a lighter tax burden on automobiles. (A spokesman in Mr. Durenberger's Washington office told us that the tax, perhaps $100, would be on the purchase of new cars only.)

Again, Mr. Durenberger's reasoning is sound: trucks, trains, airplanes etc. contribute 75 per cent of the nitrogen oxide emission, while autos produce only 25 per cent.

Under the Durenberger plan, tax monies from the stationary and mobile sources would be pooled and turned over to the EPA, to be used to help the nation's dirtiest utilities purchase pollution abatement equipment.

While Mr. Durenberger's plan would give the EPA some spending discretion, it would also wisely direct the agency to make sure that it obtains the biggest effect possible out of each tax dollar it spends.

Neutralizing the nation's acid rain threat will be an expensive but absolutely necessary undertaking. Congress and the EPA should make certain that the job is done correctly and that each American carries a fair share of the burden. At the moment, the Durenberger proposal seems to come closest to fitting the bill.

Violators Stealing From Us

"One of the nicest developments in the highly effective Turn in Poachers (TIP) program," points out editor Ken Hickman of the Grand Rapids Herald-Review, "is that two-thirds of the callers are refusing rewards."

Minnesota department of natural resources noted in a recent news release that many tips from members of the public had resulted in apprehension of people deliberately breaking state game and fish laws.

"Nobody suspected that there would be so many people cooperating but turning down the money offered for information leading to the arrest of fish and wildlife violators," Hickman said.

"TIP officials report that a known poacher even supplied information on a person who had killed a big game animal illegally. The informer was incensed because the violator had not used the hide or the meat from the kill."

We can accept the idea of poaching to some extent when the animals, birds or fish taken are used by needy people for their own families. It isn't right, but we can understand it. What we can't condone is the taking and selling of wildlife, wanton killing of birds or animals which are not used for food, or the taking of fish far in excess of legal limits imposed to protect the resource and spread the harvest.

There is perhaps in all of us a bit of reservation about "squealing" on somebody. Being an informer, sometimes betraying a confidence, seems to be distasteful to many. What must be recognized, of course, is that laws are being broken when poaching is being done. Hickman is on the right track when he points out:

"Maybe we're all finally catching on that the people who break game and fish laws are stealing from us. The number for calling TIP is 800-652-9093."

Interesting Opinions:

"That which the wisest and best parent wants for his own children — that must the community want for all children. Any other idea destroys our democracy." —John Dewey.

"A peculiar virtue in wildlife ethics is that the hunter ordinarily has no gallery to applaud or disapprove of his conduct. Whatever his acts, they are dictated by his own conscience, rather than by a mob of onlookers. It is difficult to exaggerate the importance of this fact." —Aldo Leopold

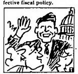
WINNERS &LOSERS

Americans are real winners when it comes to inflation, lately. As measured by the Consumer Price Index, it was only 3.9 percent for 1982. Many experts attribute this to our having a strong President with an effective fiscal policy.



Americans were losers to inflation under the last administration. In fact, the rate reached 13.3 percent in 1979. Many Americans want to keep winning the fight against inflation.

FACTS & FIGURES

One simple statistic underscores how much America relies on asphalt. According to the National Asphalt Pavement Association, 96 percent of all roads and highways in the country are paved with asphalt. The transportation industry uses those roadways to deliver the majority of American goods to our shops and stores.

Hot Mix Asphalt has become an important ingredient in many other areas of transportation. As an airport runway, a loading dock, or a railroad track bed, asphalt has earned a reputation as the least expensive and most durable alternative.

Asphalt, it seems, is the foundation of our transportation system. More than ever, America is on the go—on asphalt. It's good for our transportation system...and it's good for America.

Stumpf Calls For Release Of Federal Funds

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has joined with other state officials in urging U.S. secretary of agriculture John Block to release $600 million in federal economic emergency loans to revive the farm economy of northwestern Minnesota which has been hit by extremely bad weather for five straight years.

Recently, stumpf and Senate majority leader Roger Moe of Ada both urged Governor Rudy Perpich to contact Secretary Block in Washington D.C., asking him to release the emergency assistance approved by Congress in 1981 but never utilized for this purpose.

"Our area of the state has been hit especially hard by this unusual spite of bad weather," Stumpf said, "and we all know only too well the benefit that would be gained in heading off many unfortunate foreclosure sales and business bankruptcies. Many of our people desperately need this assistance if they are to maintain good credit standings."

Governor Perpich has asked for the assistance from Washington D.C., and he is sending Minnesota agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols to Chicago. Senator Stumpf and Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls have been invited to join the commissioner where they will speak with Block about this and other serious problems facing the state and region's farm economy.

Stumpf said that the failure of the government to act quickly, coupled with the continuing harsh weather conditions in the region, "could irretrievably damage our farm economy, our small businesses in many local communities and our economy at large. Something must be done soon to avert complete disaster," he added.

The Minnesota Farmers Home administration director could, if ordered to by Washington, increase its field staff in the affected counties and could facilitate applications for emergency help to those affected.

"I am glad that the governor, Senator Moe, and other responsible state leaders have recognized this problem in our state and are beginning to do something about it," Stumpf said. "We cannot just sit on our hands and wait for the crop yield reports. We need help right now."

Perpich has personally scheduled a meeting with Secretary Block in September to discuss his request and to urge immediate federal assistance to the area, Stumpf noted.

Senior Citizen Honors Given At State Fair

Addie M. Larson of Hoffman and Vernard E. Lundin of Mankato were named Minnesota's outstanding senior citizens during recognition ceremonies Thursday at the Minnesota state fair.

One hundred thirty-six seniors from 70 counties were recognized for their contributions to their communities. Larson and Lundin were selected to represent Minnesota's over-70 residents based on their activities since age 65. The ceremonies were held at the Schmidt bandshell. Pennington county honorees were Mrs. Gunder (Ruth) Legvold and Morris Howick.

Larson was a teacher in the Kensington public school system from 1929 until her retirement in 1974. During her years as a teacher, she pioneered special education in Kensington. She is currently president of the Hoffman senior citizens club and is active in a variety of organizations including the Grant county committee on aging and Hoffman's community education committee.

Lundin was employed by the Mankato Free Press from 1928 through 1941, then worked for the George M. Palmer Foundation until his retirment in 1974. He was also mayor of Mankato from 1971 through 1974 and today continues his life-long involvement with the Boy Scouts of America and is also active with the Mankato area senior citizens, Mankato state university foundation and Sister Cities International.

The outstanding senior citizens program is cosponsored by the Minnesota state fair, the Minnesota board on aging and the Minnesota federation of county fairs.

Avoid These Two Arthritis Mistakes

When it comes to arthritis, there are two mistakes you can avoid, says the Arthritis Foundation.

The first mistake is to believe that arthritis is not serious. This is just not true. Arthritis is a term that refers to 100 related diseases. Although some kinds of arthritis may start with "minor aches and pains" in the joints, they can end up making you seriously ill. People with arthritis suffer pain and crippling. They also lose the ability to do many things, to be independent, and to enjoy a certain quality of life.

Principal

The second mistake you can make is to believe that nothing much can be done for arthritis. This is also not true. With proper treatment, a great deal can be done, says the Arthritis Foundation. Most of the time crippling can be prevented. Pain can be controlled. The person who receives proper medical care early, before irreversible damage to joints has taken place, can usually expect to be spared from the worst effects of the disease.

According to actress Victoria Principal, who is now national campaign chairman of the Arthritis Foundation, one in seven Americans is going to get arthritis. In fact, her mother has lupus, a particularly baffling type of arthritis, and her father has osteoarthritis. "I have seen firsthand what a serious problem arthritis is," said Ms. Principal. "It can be a living death. I want to end that kind of suffering."

Arthritis affects 36 million Americans, including 250,000 children. There are few cures, but the Arthritis Foundation is finding answers. It is the only national voluntary health agency supporting research, patient services and public education on behalf of all the arthritis diseases.

For more information, consult the telephone directory for the office nearest you, or write The Arthritis Foundation, P.O. Box 19000, Atlanta, Georgia 30326.

AMPI Offers Taste Test On Fortified Milk

Visitors to the Minnesota state fair in St. Paul will have the opportunity to participate in a unique taste test. They'll be invited to compare milk at current solids-not-fat standards with milk fortified to the higher standards being proposed by the dairy industry.

The project is being sponsored by the North Central region of Associated Milk Producers, Inc. AMPI supports raising the solids-not-fat standards of milk as a constructive step to (1) provide consumers with a higher quality and even more nutritious product for a few pennies more in cost; (2) increase U.S. milk consumption with a better-tasting beverage; and (3) reduce federal expenditures nearly $200 million annually for the milk price support program.

During the test, participants will sample servings of a two per cent lowfat milk and a fortified two per cent lowfat milk. Every person will be asked to identify taste preferance, and whether they would be willing to spend a few more pennies per gallon for the fortified product. AMPI's booth will be located in the dairy building. It's expected that hundreds of people will participate in the taste test. The project will be coordinated by AMPI staff and young dairy farmer couples. Times for the test are 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. daily.

The proposed standards would raise the solids-not-fat level for whole milk from 8.25 to 8.75 per cent, for two per cent lowfat milk from 8.25 to 10 per cent, for one lowfat milk from 8.25 to 10 per cent and for skim milk from 8.25 to nine per cent.

The project will be administered according to carefully designed testing conditions. Testing will be conducted in a concealed area so that participants are not influenced by seeing or hearing others; the identity of the two beverages will be depicted only by symbols and not revealed; and the sequence in which the two beverages are tested will be rotated every half hour.

Raising product standards would significantly increase the nutritional value of milk. For example, in lowfat milk, there would be a 27 per cent increase in iron, 21 per cent in calcium, protein, riboflavin and phosphorus and a 19 per cent in increase in magnesium.

It is estimated that the proposed higher standards would increase the cost of lowfat milk by a few cents per half gallon and whole and skim milk by less than a penny per half gallon. Based on average consumption figures, the estimated annual increase per person would be $1.20. When the $200 million savings in the milk price support program is factored in, the net annual cost increase per capita would be 29 cents.

Upper Midwest Abounds with Public Lands

Sportsmen are indeed fortunate in this part of the country to have vast areas available for hunting.

For examples, Minnesota has a total area of 84,000 square miles made up of 80,000 square miles of land area and 4,000 square miles of water and marsh areas.

In addition to the vast water area — practically all of which is open to sportsmen, vast areas of wetlands have been purchased to provide for hunting and trapping as well as the person who just loves the out-of-doors.

Well over 100,000 acres of wetlands have been purchased by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. This is in addition to over 450,000 acres of land purchased by the State of Minnesota under the Department of Natural Resources Wetlands Program.

Add to this 11 million acres of public hunting available in state-owned forest lands. Compare this to a recent report of Texas deer hunters paying private land owners $50 to $100 per day for hunting privileges.

We are most fortunate. Don't abuse the public lands and respect the private land owners privileges when afforded to you.

Don't Forget Your Knife When it Comes to Safety

While most hunters are well versed on the various aspects of hunting safety, all too often they overlook the basic safety do's and don'ts when it comes to handling a hunting knive. Here they are:

1. Keep knives sharp. A sharp knife is safer than a dull one because it requires less pressure when cutting. The knife will not slip as easily and your hand will not tire as quickly when you use it.
2. Use the correct size and type of knife for the job. Don't use the same type or kind of knife to clean birds that you would to dress a deer or moose.
3. Don't use a knife to lift bottle caps, jar lids or tacks, to cut string or tear open packages. There are many occasions when you're in the field, to use a knife for everything from a screw driver to an ax; don't, you are just asking for trouble.
4. When using your hunting or, for that matter, any knife, always be sure to cut away from, not towards, the body.

A Variable Scope Equips Your Rifle for any Game

Scopes have several basic advantages (1) you can see better, even in dim lights, (2) the magnification of your target, and (3) focus only on the target. The scope serves an excellent substitute for binoculars.

The variable scope has even more advantages. These scopes, which can be changed in power from a low of 2 or 3 power to a high of 9 or 10 power, allow you to use the same rifle for more types of game without the disadvantage of changing sights.

Take for instance, a 243 rifle with scope turned to 9 power is ideal for shooting chucks or small game. Twist the scope to 4 power and your 243, using heavier bullets, becomes a good deer rifle. Equally adaptable on a 284 Winchester with your scope at 3 power is almost perfect for running deer in open country. Set that power to 6 and you have a good chance at that buck 400 yards away, that's watching you, but cannot be approached any closer.

South Dakota Pheasant Hunting

The largest number of hunters who come to South Dakota participate in the fall pheasant season, opening this year on October 15.

Over one million pheasants were harvested in South Dakota during the 1982 hunting season, and 1983 is expected to be even better.

Ringneck pheasants can be found throughout eastern South Dakota and the south central portion of the state. Hunters who haven't secured a place to hunt, particularly during the first 10 days of the season, will find the odds of obtaining permission from landowners much easier to come by later in the season.

Hunters should take note: In order to hunt on any private land in South Dakota (with the exception of that portion of the Black Hills Fire Protection district south of Interstate 90) one MUST HAVE PERMISSION OF THE LANDOWNER.

Fees for non-resident pheasant hunting in South Dakota are as follows:

General Hunting License	$ 2.00
Small Game Stamp	50.00
Pheasant Restoration Stamp	5.00
Total	$57.00

A non-resident small game stamp is valid for a period of 10 consecutive days. A non-resident wishing to extend their hunting days, or make more than one trip to South Dakota during the season may purchase an additional small game stamp for $50.00 which will entitle that person to hunt for an additional 10 day period.

Limits for 1983 will be three cock birds per day, with a five day possession limit of 15 birds.

There is a vast amount of both state and federal land open to public hunting. To obtain a South Dakota "Sportsman's Atlas" send $2.00 to:

Sighting In Your Rifle Is a Must!

Before heading into the field, it is imperative to make sure you have your rifle "sighted in".

Select the average yardage you will be shooting and place a fixed target with an approximate two inch bullseye. Rest your rifle and fire until you have established a group. To correct your sighting, simply MOVE THE REAR SIGHT IN THE DIRECTION YOU WANT THE BULLET TO MOVE. For example, if your bullet keeps hitting the target too far to the left, move the rear sight to the right; if hitting the target too high, lower the rear sight, etc. Rifle scopes are marked up and down as well as right and left.

Farmers Can Help Make Hunting Great

Looking for a place to hunt can be a real problem. Each year more and more land is posted, and trespassing laws make it more difficult to find a place to hunt.

Often overlooked is the fact that most local chambers of commerce keep an up-to-date list of farm families that will take in hunters during the fall season. Arrangements can be made for a place to stay, as well as a place to hunt.

Having a good place to hunt is a real find, and there is no better way than to have the opportunity to get to know the local residents.

For more information, drop a note to the chamber of commerce in the area you would like to hunt; or better yet, make a quick phone call. It's the first step toward what might be the best hunting season you've had yet.

New Rules Go Into Effect This Year in Wisconsin

Several new rules will go into effect this year in Wisconsin, so be sure to obtain a copy of the regulations pamphlet when you purchase your 1983 hunting license.

The new rules include:

1) Ruffed grouse hunting opens two weeks earlier: September 17 in both zones.
2) Quail, Hungarian partridge, Jackrabbit and gun bear seasons open statewide instead of in special zones.
3) The Sharp-Tailed grouse season is closed in Langlade, Marinette and Florence counties.
4) "Enclosed within a carrying case" for firearms means a firearm must be completely contained in a gun case expressly made for that purpose. The case must be fully closed by being zipped, buckled, tied or otherwise fastened, with no portion of the firearm exposed.

If Your Feet or Hands Are Cold Check Your Head Gear

Loss of body heat causes one to become cold and that cold is normally most noticeable in the hands and feet. If your hands are cold, the first thing that comes to mind is a warmer pair of gloves or mittens. It is far more important, however, to make sure that your head and body's core are properly insulated. Body heat is lost most rapidly through the head and then the body's core (the crotch area up through the center of the body).

A good warm hat is the single most essential item when it comes to staying warm.

Layering, which is selecting garments that can be added or taken off, is the most practical way to select cold weather attire.

THE OUTER LAYER — This layer of clothing should be a material that is primarily wind resistant and water proof. Nylon is the most common material and is even more effective when treated with a water repellent material.

INSULATION LAYER — The most effective way to keep the body warm is to trap air between the body and the outer shell. Material with fibers that trap air between the fibers forming so-called dead air space, is an ideal insulator. Various synthetic insulating materials, or goose down, act as excellent insulators. When selecting an insulator, whether it be part of the outer layer or a separate garment, remember that the key is the body's core. A good vest-type garment with sufficient length, is a good selection if you are selecting a separate layer. If you are combining the outer and insulating layer such as a jacket or parka, length, waterproofing and comfort are the main considerations.

MIDDLE LAYER — The best selection here is a wool or chamois shirt. Along with providing good warmth, either of the above choices will provide good warmth and comfort during the middle of the day when you are most likely to experience warmer temperatures.

INSIDE LAYER — The primary function of good long underwear is to take the moisture vapor produced by the body and get it away from the skin area. Fishnet or cotton underwear is a good choice, but don't forget the body's torso. Tops are, in most cases, even more important than bottoms.

HANDS AND FEET — Good wool socks are most important, and of course, waterproof footwear. Remember that loose fitting boots will be far warmer than tight ones.

When it comes to warm hands, mittens will normally be warmer than gloves, and once again loose fitting gloves and mittens will be your best selection.

Safe Boating a Must For Waterfowlers

Waterfowl hunters using boats can avoid falling overboard or capsizing their craft by remaining low in the boat and never overloading it with hunters, dogs or equipment and avoiding open water as much as possible.

When moving from place to place in your craft, it's always good advice to wear a flotation device. Models are now available in camouflage colors and full-sleeved coats. If you happen to fall in, they will not only float you, but will retain body heat and increase your survival time.

If you do fall overboard, even with heavy hunting clothes and chest waders, you are not necessarily doomed to become an anchor. Warm clothing is an asset in cold water. Those layers of clothing and the waders contain pockets of air that can increase your buoyancy. Also, the water trapped between the clothing and your skin is warmed by your body heat and acts as an insulator.

After capsizing or falling overboard, of course you should attempt to get back into the boat. If you can't climb back in and you're wearing a flotation device, curl your body by tucking your knees and keeping your arms close to your sides for maximum heat conservation. If you're not wearing a flotation device, items such as gas cans, coolers, decoys, vacuum jugs, etc. can be used to keep you afloat. Swimming should be done only if the shore is less than a mile away, since it will increase the heat loss from the body and shorten your survival time.

Deer Hunting Is Big Business In Wisconsin

Deer hunting licenses provided over nine million dollars in revenue to the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in 1980.

Along with license fees, the department benefited from state and federal excise taxes on hunting equipment. Estimated revenue from deer hunting accounted for an additional revenue source of $1,300,000.

The average deer hunter is estimated to spend over $230 annually, bringing the State's revenue to approximately $150 million per year.

Staying Warm Can be a Challenge

Sorting through your closet to take along the perfect clothing for a fall hunting trip can be complicated.

While the warm days are easy. The challenge comes when you decide how to select the right clothing for those days the temperature gets down around freezing.

For best results at comfort and staying warm try the layered approach. Start out with a pair of lightweight long underwear, then your favorite hunting pants. Next, on top a t-shirt, flannel or chamois shirt, down vest, and a good warm jacket. A smart investment is a good quality rainsuit. Not only will you need something to keep you dry, but more importantly, that rainsuit can be used as the outer layer of clothing to keep you warm. Today's rainsuits are excellent against the wind, and of course can be taken off as the weather warms throughout the day.

Your Rubber Boots Will Last Almost Forever, If:

Almost every person who has ever hunted has learned the advantage and necessity of a good pair of rubber boots. Whether hip boots, waders, or plain old rubber packs or overshoes, here are some things you should know.

The two greatest enemies of rubber boots are ozone and oil.

Ozone will eventually cause cracking, and the rubber will look rotted if your boots are not properly cared for.

Although some rubber compounds are highly resistant, no rubber is totally immune from ozone damage. To prevent this from happening, try storing your hunting boots in plastic bags. Also when storing them, for best results, choose a cool, dry and dark place.

Waders and hip boots should also be kept in a cool, dry and dark place, but instead of using the plastic bags, hang them by the soles in a place where there will be no movement of air.

Never store your hunting boots near any equipment that produces an electrical arc, as this will cause a concentration of ozone.

Oil damage may result in different ways. Oil, gas or any aromatic solvent can cause the rubber to become just like chewing gum. Getting oil on your boots while cleaning fish can also result in damage, therefore it is important to wash your boots with a little soap and water before putting them away.

If by chance the rubber becomes punctured, try mending the hole with a patching kit. Heat 'n Fix, Magic Patch, or Hot Melt are just a few kits that will do the job.

All in all, if you take extra care of your boots by following these tips, they should be in great shape and ready to go when you are.

Many veteran hunters know that a long day of hunting can be quite tiring. This is especially true when you're loaded down with heavy boots, shotgun, and a vest full of shells. During the course of a day you may encounter rough terrain such as thick underbrush, muddy corn fields, maybe even a knee-deep mudhole or two. It's important that you take a break. You'll feel refreshed, relaxed and you'll enjoy a full day of hunting.

Live and Let Live

When you pick up young wild animals, you are, in most cases reducing the animal's chances for survival in the wild and you are also in violation of state game regulations.

Many people think that the young wild animals and birds have been abandoned by their mothers and will make good pets. You will most likely be wrong on both counts. The mother is usually nearby waiting for you to leave so that she may return to tend to her offspring. It is also true that young wild animals seldom make good pets.

To some, young wild animals being adopted by humans who know little about the special requirements of these animals, means an early and agonizing death. Less specialized animals which live in spite of their captivity can grow out of their cuddly stage to become vicious and even dangerous to humans.

If you believe that you can keep animals for a time and then return them to the wild, then think again. They develop a dependence on you that prevents them from surviving on their own when turned loose to fend for themselves.

Wisconsin's New Shining Law

THE LAW BY DEFINITION STATES:

"Shining means casting rays of light on a field, forest or other area for the purpose of illuminating, locating, or attempting to illuminate or locate wild animals. A person casting rays of light on a field, forest or other area which is frequented by wild animals, is presumed to be shining."

Here are some Do's and Don'ts about shining that you should be aware of:

DO'S

As long as you do not have a firearm, bow and arrow, or crossbow in your possession, you may locate game which you were unable to retrieve during good light after legal hunting hours.

You can use a flashlight in finding your way in and out of a hunting area as long as you don't shine the surrounding areas.

Hunters on foot may use a flashlight at the point of kill for raccoon, fox, or other unprotected animals during the open season. You can wear a light on your headgear for finding your way when hunting these animals.

DON'TS

If you possess a firearm, bow and arrow, or crossbow, you cannot shine a light from a vehicle.

You cannot shine an open field or wooded area while on foot and in possession of a firearm, bow and arrow or crossbow.

No one can shine wildlife, with the exceptions already stated, between Sept. 15 thru Dec. 30 during the hours of 10:00 PM and 7:00 AM.

IT IS BEST TO CHECK WITH THE LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS FOR ORDINANCES THAT MAY BE MORE RESTRICTIVE.

Computers Keep an Eye on Cheaters in Wisconsin

Residents who apply for a hunter's choice (either sex) permit in Wisconsin unsuccessfully one year are eligible for first-draw "preference" the following year. To make sure everyone is abiding by the rules, the Wisconsin DNR has enlisted the aid of a complex computer program to monitor all either sex applicants.

Some $25,000 in fines were collected in 1982 from violators who falsely applied for either sex permits.

In Spite Of Best Spring Conditions Waterfowl Down in '83

The experts have all agreed that the spring of 1983 was going to be a perfect breeding season for all species of waterfowl. Abundant water supplies, in some areas up as much as fifty percent, promised to bring off a banner year in waterfowl production.

When the birds began to return to the prime Canadian breeding areas however the picture darkened. Fewer pairs of breeding birds appeared than had been expected which was followed by a late spring snow storm in the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan which prompted large numbers of waterfowl to abandon their nesting sights.

While 1983 will not be a banner year, hunters can still expect a fair to good season. Here is a breakdown by specific area:

Manitoba: One of Canada's prime breeding areas, water conditions were vastly improved in prime breeding areas in 1983. The "pond index" which measures the prime breeding area was up to 710,000 versus just 359,000 in 1982.

Ducks are expected to be down throughout the province with the exclusion of ringnecks and pintails which both showed a moderate increase.

The brightest picture in Manitoba was in the production of Canadian Geese which were up a whopping 141 percent from 1982.

Saskatchewan: Good habitat conditions with a better than average return of breeding pairs combined to make the production forecast for Saskatchewan good to excellent. In all areas production should be equal to or exceed last year.

Alberta: Poor water conditions took their toll in Alberta resulting in poor spring production of waterfowl. Mallards did show a slight increase over 1982 as did Canadian Geese.

South Dakota: The highest return of breeding birds in recent years should result in good waterfowling in South Dakota. The highest breed pair count in 11 years, however, was somewhat dampened by near-drought conditions in the southeast and south central areas of the state. In spite of poor water conditions, South Dakota should have the best waterfowling of the northern states in 1983.

Minnesota: Minnesotan's continue to have trouble with waterfowl populations. A decline of somewhere in the area of 200,000 birds makes the outlook not very favorable for 1983. There have been some bright spots in production of mallards and canvasbacks. However, those increases are not sufficient to paint a very bright picture. Minnesotans can expect a fair season at best.

North Dakota: Predators and intensive land use combined to greatly hamper nesting success in North Dakota during the spring of 1983. A decrease from four to three million birds pretty well tells the story for North Dakota hunters.

While forecasts for a moderate production of mallards and pintails seem valid, overall prospects for waterfowl production are fair to poor in North Dakota.

How to "Fit" Your Shotgun

To test how well you "fit" your shotgun, set up a wrapping paper target with a black spot in a 30 inch circle. Stand off 40 yards, bring your gun up as quickly as you would at a bird and fire. Try this several times. If the pattern or shot consistently hits the target too high, your stock is probably too straight. If it's too low, there is probably too much drop in the stock. If shooting consistently too far left or right, any one of several problems may be troubling you and it would be best to consult a competent gunsmith.

Make the Proper Choice for your Shotgun!

CHOKE — The amount of constriction in a gun's muzzle is known as the choke. The more narrow the barrel's bore is, the more constriction there is, and the tighter the concentration of shot will be in flight. If there is no choke, the shot will spread in a broad and loosely held mass. A gun with a full choke, on the other hand, will provide the greatest concentration of shot in flight.

To determine the degree of choke a gun has, shoot the gun at a target of 40 yards. Then draw a 30" circle around the pattern's center. Count the pellet holes within the circle. The pattern and percentage will vary according to shot size, the speed of the shot, and the amount and brand of shot used.

Patterns will vary depending upon the kind of shot and the relative hardness of the pellet. Soft shots, as a result of being forced through the bore and choke, has adverse effects on the gun's pattern. Even though a harder steel shot would be expected to pattern better than a soft lead, it is not necessarily so, since steel shots are still somewhat experimental.

PELLETS WITHIN 30-INCH CIRCLE AT 40 YARDS

FULL	65-75%	AVG. PERCENTAGE 30" CIRCLE at 40 YDS.*
IMPROVED MODIFIED	55-65%
MODIFIED	45-55%
IMPROVED CYLINDER	35-45%
SKEET	30-35%
CYLINDER	25-35%

*Comparable percentages may be expected from the 410 bore at about 25 yds.

GAUGE — The gauge is the inside bore diameter of the barrel. The largest gauge is 10. A 12 gauge is very versatile and has great popularity. It can offer loads close to a 10 gauge with a lot less recoil. The 16 gauge is ideal for upland game. Many shotgunners, from the skilled to the beginner, enjoy the 20 gauge because of its fast handling and pointing qualities. Also excelling in handling, are the 28 and 410 gauge. Each use 25% less pellets than the 20 gauge and are used most by highly skilled bird hunter or skeet shooters. Depending on the type of shooting you do will determine which gauge is suitable for you.

Ruffed Grouse Behavior

The ruffed grouse or partridge is an exciting upland game bird in our woodlands. Most male and female grouse spend their entire life within a small area of 100 acres. Many grouse spend all their life within a mile from where they were hatched. Consequently, you should expect to find more than one grouse in any one area.

Ruffed Grouse Habitat

Cedar swamps adjacent to aspen forests are often ideal ruffed grouse habitats. The leaves and berries of ground plants and male aspen buds provide food for feeding grouse. The cedars are often used by grouse at night for roosting and safety from predators.

Wear waterproof boots in these areas, for it is wet for walking. Spend time walking logging trails and road areas with extensive strawberry and clover patches. Grouse will feed most often on these strawberry and clover patches early morning and late afternoon.

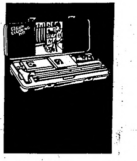
Ruffed Grouse Hunting Tips

Small aspen tracts of different size trees located adjacent to each other are ideal grouse habitat. Walk these areas slowly, stopping frequently to note any sign or movement of grouse, both on the ground and in aspen and conifer thickets.

Look for large, fallen logs laying close to the floor of the forest. These logs are often grouse "activity centers" associated with drumming, courtship, feeding, nesting and other ruffed grouse behavior. Usually there are grouse in the vicinity of those fallen logs.

Where there is one grouse, look for another. Most of the time, there is more than one grouse in an area. Listen for a "clucking," chicken-like sound when you surprise a grouse. At this point, it is getting ready to fly. Usually, grouse are on the ground, under the forest canopy striding slowly away from you.

When hunting grouse, hunt slowly, taking time to look closely at the forest and the ground cover. Walking too fast or hunting in a hurry is a common mistake most inexperienced hunter's make. Relax and set your own pace. You'll enjoy the outdoors more and see more grouse.



The 410 Gauge – Friend or Foe

There is nothing quite like the look on the face of a ten year old when dad takes his new hunting companion out to get his first shotgun. Once they arrive home, that brand new 410 single shot becomes the cleanest, most looked after firearm in the entire county, but did dad really do that youngster a favor?

The answer is probably no. How many adults do you know that would hunt ducks or pheasants with a 410? Odds are not too many, the reason being that it just isn't enough gun to do the job. Put yourself in the place of that youngster who has gotten up at 4 AM to put out the decoys then sat quietly waiting for the morning's first flight, to finally spot a flock of the biggest mallards in the world headed toward the decoys. He carefully pulls up his prized 410, pulls the trigger, and looks up to see those same ducks headed across the morning skyline. If you think about it, that is a discouraging experience.

When selecting that "first gun", keep in mind that if a youngster is capable of handling a 410, he can in all probability handle a 20 gauge with the same proficiency. The primary difference is that today's broad selection of 20 gauge loads, including the 3 inch magnums, will prove to be every bit as effective as dad's 12 gauge. That means success, and success means wanting to go along the next time dad says, "Son, let's go hunting."

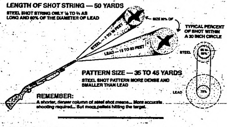
Steel Shot Vs. Lead Shot... Some Comparisons You May Want to Know!

LENGTH OF SHOT STRING — 50 YARDS

STEEL SHOT STRING ONLY ½ TO ⅔ AS LONG AND 80% OF THE DIAMETER OF LEAD



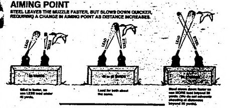
PATTERN SIZE — 35 TO 45 YARDS

STEEL SHOT PATTERN MORE DENSE AND SMALLER THAN LEAD

REMEMBER:
A shorter, denser column of steel shot means... More accurate shooting required... But more pellets hitting the target.

AIMING POINT

STEEL LEAVES THE MUZZLE FASTER, BUT SLOWS DOWN QUICKER, REQUIRING A CHANGE IN AIMING POINT AS DISTANCE INCREASES.

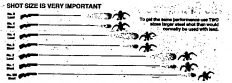


Steel is faster, so use LESS lead under 40 yards.

Lead for both about the same.

Steel slows down faster so use MORE lead beyond 50 yards. (We do not advocate shooting at distances beyond 50 yards.)

SHOT SIZE IS VERY IMPORTANT



To get the same performance use TWO sizes larger steel shot than would normally be used with lead.

Michigan's Spring Turkey Season Booming

Wild turkey hunting in Michigan has become a big-time sport. Hunting this elusive all-American bird is very popular and is not for the take-it-easy hunter. You need a lot of savvy, a lot of patience and some very well thought-out planning.

Being aware of the fact that a mere 30 years ago there was not one single wild turkey in Michigan, the State's turkey management units are a remarkable example of how wildlife management can succeed. Concentrated on large forested public land areas specifically selected for prime habitat, the big birds have been re-established and are thriving.

The management units now open for hunting are Allegan, Baldwin, Mio and Menominee, and there is a possibility of more units being opened in the future. The newest area, the Menominee Unit, is located in Michigan's Upper Penninsula covering 150 square miles of forested area in west central Menominee County.

Hunting wild turkey in Michigan is done under a permit system. The permits are not as tough to get as they once were, but it is still a problem hunters must face every spring. Hunters must fill out an application card with dates and units they wish to hunt and mail it in by February to get their permits. If there are more applications than permits, a drawing will be held. The lucky ones will receive a permit; all others will get their money back. Application cards and information becomes available in January at selected license dealers, DNR district offices or by writing to the Stevens T. Mason Building, Department of Natural Resources, Dept. FS, Lansing, Michigan 48909. Remember, weekday permits are easier to get than the popular weekend permits, so keep it in mind when planning your hunting trip.

Conservation officials hope that in the future all hunters that want a permit can get one. And with the continuing increase in turkey population and the stocking of new areas, the future looks bright.

The Hunter's Side of the Hunting Vs. No Hunting Controversy

There are individuals and organizations who believe that hunting has no place in today's society. On the other side there are over 30 million hunters and many organizations who believe that hunting is part of man's heritage. These are the people who are willing to pay for wildlife management and to assure abundant wildlife in the midst of an industrial and technological age in which we live.

The controversy of wildlife management versus allowing nature to handle the job must be analyzed by accepting the facts that are so valid in today's modern age. No longer is America a vast, uninhabited area of land controlled completely by nature.

Man has, of course, caused the near extinction of some wildlife species. Nature too has taken her toll of some species, causing complete extinction of other species. The difference is that man, through proper management can restore a nearly extinct species of wildlife while nature's history has been to cause complete demise of life and then go on to other items on the agenda.

While hunting pressure has in the past taken its toll of wildlife such as the buffalo and the passenger pigeon, hunting pressure has not been the main villian. The real cause of wildlife's population decrease has been the destruction of habitat caused by the increased population of man. Since the population can no longer exist as small wandering tribes, living off the land, we must manage wildlife as well as our own needs in order to gain the most from both species.

Wildlife management has, in just a few years, increased in great numbers the populations of many forms of animal life. For example, at the turn of the century, the white tail deer herd in America numbered only a few hundred thousand. Today there are upwards of 10 million spread all across the nation. The Canadian goose, through wetland management, and controlled hunting has made a sensational comeback in the last 3 or 4 decades.

Forest management has come under much criticism of late, yet a mature forest, managed by nature alone, is detrimental to most wildlife. The mature forest does not provide enough food to sustain much wildlife. Left to nature, the forest would probably have burned completely. Thus nature's method of control would have been to start all over again, and the young forest, would have provided enough food for the wildlife cycle to begin again. Today's forest management by man is more consistent providing both forest products and food for the existence of wildlife.

Nature's habit of periodic droughts can completely destroy the wetland habitats of migration waterfowl. Through proper management these same wetlands can, to some degree, be controlled by man, thus providing a larger population of ducks and geese. Again, the destruction of wetlands by agricultural expansion has reduced the population of waterfowl much, much more than hunting ever could.

Not too long ago, there lived a man named Theodore Roosevelt, who had the vision to forsee the rapid demise of wildlife, and who fought to combine the best of man and nature and control the weaknesses of both. Today, in the highly commercialized era of mankind, there are thousands of dedicated people working at managing our wildlife. They have done a great job. Backing them up are millions of hunters who by their support will enable the wildlife management to continue to keep man and nature co-existent.

Forecast Excellent for Upland Game Hunting in South Dakota

One of the mildest winters in South Dakota's history, along with an exceptional spring growing season makes the outlook excellent for upland game hunting in 1983.

When it comes to fall hunting season, it's hard to match the superb game populations in South Dakota. Partridge, prairie chicken and, of course, pheasant populations have all shown a marked increase over 1982, which was an excellent season.

Ducks Unlimited Arrives In the U.S.

For a stranger wandering into the Ducks Unlimited annual convention last May in Williamsburg, Virginia, there was little clue that a momentous event would soon occur.

After 46 years of concentrating its efforts strictly in Canada & Mexico, DU was about to go U.S.

The proceedings were quite businesslike, and when it came time to approve Ducks Unlimited's plans to develop waterfowl habitat in the States, a simple voice vote did the job.

Though the U.S. challenge has been accepted, an attempt to answer many questions about the program would be premature, largely because the nation's wetlands are still being inventoried by Landsat 4, under an agreement DU made with NASA last spring. This much we do know: The vast majority of waterfowl produced in the U.S. are hatched in the states of Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Alaska, and that is where DU will do its work.

Critics have wondered why we have not attempted any habitat work in the U.S. to date, and the only answer we have offered is the truth. There was far too much habitat work (and far too little money) that needed doing in Canada, where over 70% of North America's waterfowl nest. The need in Canada is still great, and only now that DU has grown into the most effective conservation organization in the world ((1) a record $34.7 million was raised in 1982) does it seem wise to offer the organization's services to the U.S. waterfowl production habitat needs.

As we begin interpreting data from Landsat 4 to determine priority areas, we will be mindful that no other conservation organization has attempted such an effort on behalf of a resource. DU will not take this new responsibility lightly. Nor will DU misplace your trust, or that of the nearly half million other members concerned about waterfowl & wetlands.

Just don't expect us to blow our horn about it. We'll be saving our wind for the wetlands work. Except for an occasional toot on a duck call, of course.

South Dakota Waterfowl

Some of the finest waterfowl hunting in the entire United States can be done in South Dakota. Because South Dakota contains a large number of state and federal managed waterfowl areas, this attracts avid hunters every fall.

Along with all species of duck, South Dakota has long been known for some of the best goose hunting, both of Canadian and white geese.

A non-resident is required to purchase a General Hunting License, Pheasant Restoration Stamp, Waterfowl Stamp and a Federal Waterfowl Stamp.

Licenses to non-residents are allocated on a limited quantity basis; however, in most cases licenses are available for purchase throughout the season.

A non-resident Waterfowl Stamp is valid for a period of ten consecutive days. Limits are allocated on a point system basis, with the possession limits being twice the daily limit. Incidentally, the 1982 harvest on geese was close to 100,000.

For more information on South Dakota Waterfowling, call toll free: 1-800-843-1930.

Michigan Offers Unique Geography With Great Hunting

Michigan is 36 million acres in size and offers more than seven million acres of public land. Because of Michigan's unique geography and for resource management reasons, the state is divided into three zones. For easy identification, the Upper Peninsula is called Zone I, the northern half of the Lower Peninsula is Zone II, and the southern half of the Lower Peninsula is Zone III.

ZONE I

If you want to hunt in the Upper Peninsula, it's advisable to plan ahead. Distances between towns are longer and some motels close after Labor Day. An accommodations directory for the U.P. is available from the Upper Michigan Tourist Association, Box 1188, Iron Mountain 49801. Most of the U.P. was logged off between 1880 and 1910; then it was hit continually by big fires until the mid-1930's when good fire control was established. Since that time, the forest has been growing steadily and so what you see north of the Straits is a wide sweep of young forest mixed with occasional stretches of stump lands or openings. There is not much farming in the U.P., except in certain parts of the east and south portions. Generally, the west end is more hilly and in some cases even mountainous, while the east is rolling or tableland. By far, most of the land is wild and open to hunting, either owned publicly or owned by paper, timber, or mining companies. When using any of these public or company lands, work hard at keeping campsites clean and fires under control.

ZONE II

This area is heavily hunted, being easily accessible to southern Michigan urban centers. Forests here were logged off earlier than those in the U.P., but fires weren't controlled any sooner, so the forest isn't much older than that above the Straits. Extensive farming in the northern Lower Peninsula is along the northwest shore which is largely fruit-raising country. There are many large areas of public land in Zone II, including two national forests, and 15 state forests. Within the boundaries of each state or federal forest, some land is privately owned. The northeast part of this zone, particularly Montmorency, Oscoda, Alcona, and Alpena counties, is known as "The Club County" and is largely fenced, privately-owned land held by hunting clubs.

ZONE III

Much of the southern Lower Peninsula is private farm land, although there are a number of fair-sized blocks of public land, mainly in state game areas. Except for these public lands, however, you should ask farmers for permission to use their lands. A great many landowners do allow hunting, but you can bet that those who do will always want to know who is hunting on their land and where and when. Remember to close gates, don't disturb cattle or chickens, and don't shoot near buildings. Ask the land owner about his land boundaries, so you don't stray onto another farm by mistake.

Whitetail Deer. Michigan hunters can look forward to a good deer season in 1983. Last year's mild winter, combined with a good crop of spring fawns make the outlook for this year's season extremely bright. HUNTERS ARE REMINDED THAT APPLICATION FOR HUNTERS CHOICE DEER LICENSES MUST BE SUBMITTED BY OCTOBER 1, 1983.

Upland Game. All species of upland game should be abundant for the 1983 season. Squirrels, cotton tail rabbits as well as ruffed grouse and wood cocks should show a substantial to moderate increase over 1982.

In addition to the game birds and animals, Michigan provides interesting hunting for raccoons, mink, crows, woodchuck and a few others. For detailed information contact the Department of Natural Resources, Lansing, Michigan 48926.

Safety Depends On You Not Your Firearm

Don't rely on your gun's safety mechanism. Regardless of where your gun is... In your hand, leaning against a tree or wall (which in itself is very unsafe and should be avoided), or even in a gun rack... Treat every gun as if it were fully loaded and ready to fire.

The safety on any gun is a mechanical device that serves as only a part of the complete system of safe gun handling. It is not intended to substitute common sense. Your gun never thinks... you do.

Never pull the trigger when the safety is in the "Safe" position. The gun could fire anyway, and it is also possible the gun could fire later when you release the safety without even touching the trigger.

Always place the safety completely in the "Fire" or "Safe" positions. Never in between... Half safe is un-safe. Don't play with safety — putting it on and off. Leave it in the "Safe" position until you are absolutely ready to fire.

To repeat: Never rely on a mechanical device. Use it safely using common sense.

Iowa Pheasants — Non Residents Best Buy

Pheasant hunters choosing to visit the state of Iowa this fall can expect a substantial increase in the number of ringnecks found in 1982.

Ideal winter conditions which resulted in virtually no loss of the pheasant population accounted for the optimism of the experts.

An extremely late spring season however did delay nesting. That fact combined with unusually dry summer weather has made getting good breed counts extremely difficult.

The bottom line is that hunters throughout the state can expect a harvest of well over one million roosters this fall.

Non resident hunters may hunt for the entire season with the purchase of a non-resident small game license ($35.00), a habitat stamp ($3.00), and a non-resident pheasant stamp ($5.00).

The non-resident pheasant stamp comes with twelve individual tags. However, hunters are reminded that they may only have six birds in possession. In other words, a hunter must first dispose of his possession limit before he can set about using the balance of the tags provided. In the event a non-resident should use all of his or her tags, an additional pheasant stamp complete with tags can be purchased for an added $5.00 fee.

Iowa's trespass law clearly states that you must have permission from the landowner before entering any private land. A hunter may however retrieve shot game from private land without permission, but may not carry a firearm when doing so.

Iowa officials expect in excess of 30,000 non-resident hunters during the 1983 season. A non-resident license can be purchased at any license outlet throughout the state.

North Dakota Waterfowling

Waterfowlers by the thousands take advantage of some of the best hunting in the entire U.S. during the annual duck and goose seasons in North Dakota.

Non-resident hunters must pre-select not only the dates they wish to hunt, but the particular zone they wish to hunt in prior to the purchase of a non-resident hunting license.

Non-resident licenses are allocated per zone and then made available on a first come, first serve basis.

A non-resident can hunt for a maximum period of fourteen days per year and the hunter can choose either 14 consecutive days or two, seven day periods.

Along with vast Federal and State public hunting areas, a large number of hunters choose to hunt on private land. North Dakota's trespass law states that you must have permission from the land owner to hunt any land which has been properly posted or holds unharvested crops of cereal grains or sunflowers.

The fees for non-resident waterfowling are as follows:

General hunting license	$ 3.00
Small game and habitat stamp	53.00
Waterfowl license	8.00
Federal waterfowl stamp	7.50

Non-resident licenses can be purchased at any county office or applied for by mail from:

North Dakota Game and Fish Department
2121 Lovett Avenue
Bismarck, North Dakota 58505

Along with waterfowl, the hunter can also expect to find good numbers of sharptail grouse and hungarian partridge throughout the state.

Deer Hunting Results

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) recently released the results of the 1982 Firearms Deer Hunters Survey.

The survey showed that the average deer hunter spent 4.5 days hunting deer during the 1982 season. The average success rate was 29 percent for the 356,400 hunters who responded.

If you were fortunate enough to be the holder of a doe permit, your chances of success were much greater. Those hunters holding "antlerless" permits showed a success rate of 56 percent, while hunters with "bucks only" licenses were lagging at just 20 percent.

It's also interesting to note that while the average hunter spent 4.5 days in the field, those hunters who were successful at bagging a deer averaged less — just 2.34 days of hunting.

A total of 103,436 whitetails were harvested during the 1982 season, almost identical to the harvest for 1981.

The extremely mild winter should mean that this year's deer hunter can expect an even better season than last year. The only possible exception to this is the Arrowhead region of the state where populations are expected to be down slightly from 1982.

Because of the forecast for an excellent deer season, DNR officials have increased the number of antlerless permits substantially for the upcoming season.

Hunting Squirrel... the "Forgotten" Game

If you are a hunter that likes to combine hunting and enjoying nature at the same time, then take to the woods to hunt the Grey and Fox squirrels.

The squirrel can be very illusive at times, yet at other times they seem to throw caution to the winds, popping out all over the place.

Squirrel hunting is a very relaxed sport. Slow-paced enough for you to also enjoy the sights and sounds of the woods. You will also most likely be alone, since squirrel hunters are few and far between in this area.

Going after squirrels doesn't mean being loaded down with equipment. No boats, motors, decoys, heavy shells or a magnum shotgun. All you really need is a .22 rifle or a .410 gauge shotgun.

You'll find most squirrels in patches of woods near farming country. They tend to congregate in woods that are bordered by corn fields. Squirrels do not live on nuts alone, except in the dead of winter when they rely on a stored supply. When corn is available they will go for it. Squirrels must also have a water supply. In other words, a patch of woods, containing nut bearing trees, next to a corn field, and with a stream nearby, is a sure bet for squirrel hunting.

When hunting, move very slowly through the woods looking for nests and any squirrel movement. If you are not being too noisy, a squirrel will run along the branches, stopping at intervals to see what you are up to. When he stops, you stop until you are within shooting range.

The real lazy method of squirrel hunting is to locate a "Squirrel Tree." Look for a large tree with some holes, or collection of nests. Look for signs around the base — empty nut shells, tracks, and other signs of feeding activity. If you can locate a "Squirrel Tree" then find a place where you can easily view the whole tree, sit down and wait. If the squirrels are there and you remain quiet enough, they will venture out. When you bag one, do not leave. There are usually more that will venture out after the noise has subsided.

If you hunt with a buddy you have some advantages. A squirrel, upon seeing or hearing you coming through the woods will invariably scamper around to the other side of the tree trunk. When you spot him, send your partner to the far side of the tree, and you stay on the other side. Then by slight movements on the part of both hunters you can work the squirrel back and forth until he is in either you or your buddy's sights.

Obtaining Hunting Licenses For Minor Children

Taking a youngster on an out-of-state hunting trip can be a truly exciting experience, but all too often a well-planned trip is met with disappointment when Dad finds out he can't get his young companion a hunting license.

Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa require that a child under the age of 16 present certification of having completed a "hunter education course" in order to purchase a resident or non-resident hunting license.

Hunter education certificates are also required in all of the Canadian provinces for minors under the age of 16 wishing to obtain a hunting license.

Hunters... Help Yourself to Better Hunting!

Hunters can no longer be concerned with wildlife only during hunting season. We must all become more involved with the total program of conserving and increasing wildlife. This entails saving and creating wildlife habitat as well as controlling hunting pressure.

When agriculture, mining, lumbering and other modern day essentials of life crowd out wildlife, it is most necessary that hunters and wildlife organizations work with industry to maintain compromises concerning use of our nation's lands.

Don't wait for Joe or the government to do it. Get involved yourself. Support those organizations dedicated to the conservation of wildlife and the acquisition of wildlife and the acquisition of more suitable habitat. Take notice of the political decisions being made concerning wildlife. Study those decisions. Many may be more political than practical. Political decisions may buy a lot of votes, but since wildlife is not registered to vote, it is up to you, the hunter, to protect your own interests as well as the future wildlife.

Camp Storage of Firearms

Extremes of temperature causes trouble with guns. Never take a very cold gun inside a heated room or tent. This causes condensations and the rusting process begins.

If you take your gun into an unheated tent or shelter, then build a fire for the night, you will not have a condensation problem as the gun warms gradually with the gradual warming of this shelter.

South Dakota Offers More Than Pheasants To The Upland Game Hunter

Prairie Chicken & Sharptail Grouse

South Dakota offers one of the best areas in the United States to hunt prairie chicken. The main hunting area includes those counties near the Missouri River from Nebraska to the North Dakota border, and much of western South Dakota. A combination bag of prairie chicken and sharptail grouse is available, with a limit of three per day and 15 in possession. Main hunting areas will open on September 17, 1983, with daily shooting hours from sunrise to sunset for the entire 66-day season.

Dove

If you like your fall shooting fast and furious, try your hand at dove hunting in South Dakota. During 1982, hunters harvested of these sporty birds, and the 1983 season should be just as good. The 30-day season opens on September 1, 1983, with a limit of 15 birds daily and 30 in possession. Shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset daily.

Gray Partridge

Once considered a bonus bird in South Dakota, the gray partridge is gaining in popularity each year with very liberal seasons. Bag limits have been set at five birds per day and 15 in possession for the 66-day season.

In many areas pheasant, grouse, prairie chickens and gray partridge cannot all be hunted at the same time.

1982 Changes Remain In Effect For The 1983 Minnesota Deer Season

The following changes made last year will remain in effect during 1983:

- It is illegal for bow hunters to occupy tree stands after sundown.
- Deer hunters may not use snowmobiles or all-terrain vehicles during legal shooting hours except between 11:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m.
- Shooting hours for all big game begin at one-half hour before sunrise.

As previously announced, the moose season will open on October 8, 1983, in all zones except Zone 2 (Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge) which will open on December 3, 1983. A total of 5,184 hunters will be allowed to participate in Minnesota's 1983 moose season. Successful applicants will be selected by a drawing.

How and Where to Aim

A true sportsman takes pride in taking his game cleanly and quickly. He will do everything possible to prevent crippling game that could later be lost. Knowing how and where to aim are two important skills every big game hunter must learn. When aiming, it is a good habit to keep both eyes open. Closing one eye restricts vision and greatly reduces your ability to judge distance. With iron sights, always focus your eye on the front sight. This will cause the rear sight and the target to blur slightly, but good sight and target definition are still easily maintained. Above all, practice to relax. Where is the best place to aim? There are several lethal areas on all game: lungs, heart, brain, neck or spine. Probably the easiest to hit, most vital area, is the lung cavity. Even though an animal may not drop immediately when hit here, it seldom moves far when the proper bullet is used. Most hunters prefer this area because shots here will not damage much meat and there is room for error. If the shot is forward from the lung, it will likely hit the shoulder. Bear and other dangerous game are a possible exception to the lung-heart theory. When a bear is struck in the lungs or heart, it may be inclined to charge, and could still cover enough ground to reach you. The safest shot is in the shoulder. Even if it doesn't kill the animal, a shattered shoulder won't allow him to go far. Neck and spine shots are also effective, if they can be made. Keep these vital areas in mind before game is encountered. There is little time afterward!

Wisconsin Tags Deer

This season in Wisconsin, Tyvac (no-tear paper) carcass tags will replace metal tags for deer licenses.

This new material was used experimentally by archery deer hunters the past three years and has tested very satisfactorily. Improvements to the carcass tag system are explained below:

The new carcass tag is combined with the back tag and then printed at the same time by the same manufacturer of the back tag. This helps to reduce costs and improve the quality control of the tagging system.

The manufacturer, Department license outlets and hunters will no longer need to handle a separate carcass tag along with the license and back tag. This not only speeds up the handling process, it also reduces the number of parts subject to loss.

Metal tags are made of several parts which may become defective if poorly manufactured, and the locking mechanism is not totally fraud-proof. Quality control for Tyvac is easier and the material enables the use of validation marking which minimizes fraud opportunities.

The use of Tyvac carcass tags offers future license improvements that are not possible with the metal tags. For example, the deer registration stub could be eliminated if rules were modified to allow collection of the carcass tag at the registration station. Also, a new system using one license for all hunting, trapping, and fishing privileges becomes more likely when separate metal tags aren't used.

Another advantage to the new Tyvac carcass tag becomes evident when it's used in the field. The hunter is not as likely to lose the Tyvac tag as he is the metal tag. One reason is that the Tyvac Carcass tag is much wider than the metal tag. Second, the Tyvac tag is colored a bright color (yellow in 1983) which is easily seen, even among the leaves. Third, the carcass tag is attached at a perforated line to the back tag; one piece less to worry about losing. Finally, new rule changes have been added to allow attachment of the Tyvac tag to the antler or ear instead of the rear leg gambrel.

Pheasant, Ruffed Grouse Forecast For Minnesota

Because of the mild winter, the forecast for the 1983 pheasant season in Minnesota looks good. Overall, pheasant hunters can expect a better season than last year, even though certain areas of the state had questionable reproduction due to cool, wet spring conditions.

While pheasant hunters should have a good season, ruffed grouse hunters, unfortunately, can expect poor results in Minnesota this fall. Wildlife managers reported that spring drumming counts and spring reproduction were low because of unfavorably conditions.

The pheasant season will open on October 22, 1983, and run through December 4, 1983. The limit is two cock birds per day with four in possession. Shooting hours are from 9:00 a.m. to sunset each day.

Ruffed grouse season opens September 17, 1983, and runs through December 31, 1983, with a daily limit of five birds and 10 in possession. Daily shooting hours for grouse are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Whitetail Deer Hunting Tips

It is best to scout a hunting area over previous to deer hunting season. Familiarize yourself with the heavily used trails marked by fresh deer tracks located at the forest edge adjacent to an opening or clearing. "Buck rubs" where male deer have worn off the velvet from their antlers are a good sign. Usually, a smaller tree or sapling about 1 to 4 inches in diameter is used by the buck. Also, look for "buck scrapes" on the ground. A buck in "rut" or "heat" will make scrape marks within his territory that he patrols daily.

Deer generally bed down in the fields at night, leaving before sunrise to the forest. Early morning or late evening are the most likely times to see the whitetail deer moving between the forest edge and open fields. These forest edges are ideal locations to build tree stands.

Basics on Deer Habitat

Trying to find a sure fire area to get your deer this year? Come on now . . . you say . . . is there such a thing as a sure fire deer hunting area? Well, consider this — find an area with the following types of plant communities located adjacent to each other: 1) an open field, farmland, grassland, prairie or forest clearing, 2) a forest with young abundant aspen or acorn-laden oak trees, 3) a cedar-bog swamp for winter cover and browze, 4) a river bed, channel, pond or marsh, and 5) a raised land penninsula extending into a lowland area. All of these plant communities provide ideal food and cover and tend to concentrate numerous whitetail during the hunting season. Walk slowly through these communities and look for deer tracks, gnawed twigs and branches, deer droppings, bedding down (resting) areas, "buck scrapes", "buck rubs" and fresh, permanently established trails. Move slowly, look closely, stop and listen. Patience and close observation are extremely important to your success in locating the whitetail.

In the Deer Stand

OK. You've been in your deer stand for hours. Your legs and lower back are like stiff boards and seem near paralysis. You have done it all the way it's supposed to be done — the right clothing, bathing, no foreign odors, early to the stand, quiet, practiced, pre-scouted the area and noted deer sign, wind direction, the right habitat, super blind and location. Where are those deer! . . . Now, remember, you've got to be ready at all times. Stay alert. OK . . . Look for a part of a deer. The antlers, legs, head, white tail, anything. Ah! There he is! Peeking through the aspen thicket! You take the shot . . . He's gone? Wait! Stay in your tree stand . . . even though your feet are running underneath you! Listen. Look. Tell your heart to quiet down, you're trying to concentrate. That's it. Now, Concentrate on the deer's escape route before you go after him. Wait a half hour . . . a long half hour. Now, go slowly. Look for any sign of a hit and find the tracks. Effective tracking, patience and perserverance may bring home the venison.

Get in That Deer Stand Early

Just about every time I get to my tree stand in late afternoon, I wish I would have arrived earlier. Ever experienced that heart-jabbing crash in the thickets as you spook a deer going into your stand? Oh, if I would have just reached that stand a half hour earlier! . . . You say to yourself. Generally, you should be in the stand by midafternoon to increase your chances of having the deer come to you, rather than you approaching the deer. Get to that deer stand early! It's really worth the extra effort.

Whitetail Sense of Smell

Skip the scented deodorant, soap and aftershave lotion. The whitetail's sense of smell is really beyond our comprehension. Cedar bows and buck scents can be useful, however, they will not totally mask human odor and scents. Your best bet is to wear clothes that have been washed weeks earlier and have been stored in cedar and pine bows.

The direction of wind can have a beneficial or disastrous effect on your hunting success. It is always best to hunt downwind from the most likely areas that deer will be coming to your stand. By scouting the area out ahead of time, you can usually build your stand to eleviate the wind direction problem.

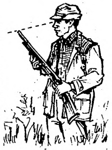
How to Zero-In on Game . . . Fast!



Many of your best shots on a hunting trip in the field come out of nowhere — an animal will often set tight and jump up only when you are right on top of it. Game often appears suddenly running across a clearing. A bird flushes unexpectedly — as most do.

To get your sights on the game as fast as possible is made easier by carrying your gun in the position of always having the front sight or the end of the barrel within your sight. As illustrated, this gun position affords watching for the game and at the same time knowing where your gun sight is. It is seen at the same time as the game is seen and you will need less time to aim and fire. It may only be out of the corner of your eye, but you will have both game and gun sight in your sight simultaneously.

An added advantage of carrying your gun in this position is the extra safety factor.

Placement of Decoys Is Important!

In general, waterfowl will decoy to large numbers of their own kind. For this reason, the more decoys you have, the better chance of pulling in birds. Pool your decoys with other hunters and you will pull in more birds than if you shoot alone in separate blinds.

One exception to this is shallow water or "puddle" ducks feeding in small sloughs or pot holes. You might need only a half dozen decoys in a pothole for the reason that this is the natural way live birds would react to the spot.

Each species will decoy to their own kind. Mixing diving duck and shallow water duck decoys just won't work. Again, this is not just the way different species feed and rest.

As usual, there are some exceptions. Mallards will often decoy into a set up containing Canadian honkers decoys.

Decoys for diving ducks may be set closer together than those for puddle ducks. Mallards spread out into small groups when feeding and bunch up only when getting ready for take off or when resting along shoreline during bitterly foul weather.

Study the live bird habits and try to make your decoys look as inviting as possible. For instance, when placing decoys in a feeding environment, some should have their heads down as if feeding. When all decoys are bunched and heads are up the flock would get the message that they are ready to take off and probably would not suggest security to the over head flight.

Seek Out the "New" Duck Waters

Depending on the August and September rainfall in your favorite small and other puddle duck hunting areas, rising water can affect the feeding ducks.

Do some preliminary leg work and check your areas for flooded fields of crops. Find them and you may be in for a hunting bonanza. Flooded wheat, barley and millet are extremely irresistible to hungry waterfowl. Also, don't pass up flooded fields of standing crops such as corn and soybeans. These crops provide both food and cover.

Observe from a high point, if possible, the movement of the ducks and you may be able to establish a pattern of where they will congregate.

Ducks will probably leave normal haunts and seek these flooded areas — bunching up in sizeable numbers. They may spend the night in your old reliable marshes but will feed all day in the newly flooded areas. Hunting pressure in the usual habitat will also help drive them to the "newly created" habitat and many of them will change their habits and remain. You may need less than a dozen decoys in these spots and often hip boots can replace a boat.

Streams leaving their banks and flooding into low brushy areas, woody areas and low land crops are often real "hot spots."

Don't just go to last year's blind and wait ... look around!

A Tip on Saving Your Life

It can happen easily — you're retrieving a bird, setting or picking up decoys, and you reach or lean a little too far over the side of your duck boat and it tips. Suddenly you find yourself in the water.

You are in big trouble. Even though you may be a strong swimmer, you are probably loaded down with heavy boots, heavy clothing and probably a pocket full of shells. Depending on how fast the boat drifts away from you can mean the difference between life and death.

Duck boats, being light and shallow can easily and rapidly drift away from you due to the wind or just the shove made by your body going over the side.

A good suggestion is to carry some lengths of nylon cord in the boat and when you go out on the water, tie one end to the boat and the other end around your waist. Make sure the cord is just long enough to allow free action to pull the boat to within your reach. Remember, little things can mean a lot.

Get Your Dog Ready For Fall Hunting

Hunting season means hard work for your hunting dog. If old Rover has spent the year laying around the kennel, you can bet come opening day, he is going to get tired fast.

Now is the time to take ten or fifteen minutes a day to get him in shape. Along with some touch up on basic obedience, a good run or maybe a swim will do wonders when it comes to stamina on opening day.

If you're going to be hunting waterfowl, it is a good idea to feed your dog a little something extra first thing in the morning. That cold water requires a lot of energy and a little extra chow helps get through a long, cold day.

If you're hunting upland game, particularly on a warm day, your dog can quickly use up the electrolytes in his system. A great idea is to bring along a product such as Gatorade™ and offer it rather than water. This will quickly replace the electrolytes in the dog's system making for better endurance.

Wisconsin's Season 1983 Deer Should be Best Ever

Last year Wisconsin hunters took home more deer than in any season since the DNR started keeping records in the 50's. The 1983 season should be even better!

A very mild winter throughout the entire deer range has made prospects extremely bright for the best deer season ever in Wisconsin.

The 1982 harvest of whitetails exceeded 200,000 deer and produced a hunter success ratio of 28% while those hunters lucky enough to hold an either sex permit had a whopping success ratio of 57%.

Over 640,000 hunters will take to the fields this fall in pursuit of whitetail deer in Wisconsin. Resident hunters must purchase their license prior to October 7 in order to be eligible for the drawing of either sex permits. Hunters will receive either sex applications when purchasing their 1983 license. The applications are then submitted to the DNR for the random drawing. Approximately 170,000 either sex permits will be awarded for the 1983 season.

Non-resident hunters can purchase a 1983 deer license, however those non-residents holding current gun licenses will be restricted to taking bucks only. The cost of a 1983 Non-resident Firearm Deer license is $80.50.

Difficult to See, But Lots of Sport

The Minnesota Snowshoe Hare, cyclical in population, are literally hopping all over the place one year and then tend to be not-so-plentiful the next. However, there is never a year when the population could be considered bad. This is mostly due to the fact that the Snowshoe Hare has very little hunting pressure.

The Snowshoe's habitat is the woodlands of the northern half of Minnesota, and are plentiful in just about any stand of trees. Some areas, of course, being better than others. One of the better areas is the Chippewa National Forest.

Showshoe Hares, on the average, are about one and a half times larger than cottontails. In addition, they are much smarter, and with their white winter coat (changing to brown at other times of the year) are very elusive. Tracking them in the snow is relatively easy. Those big overgrown feet (hence the name snowshoe) leave a trail that is readily distinguishable

Snowshoes are canny. They may run in a circular route of escape, sit perfectly still, or leave the area far ahead of you. Some groups of hunters will drive through a given area with blockers at the far end, much the same as a pheasant drive through a cornfield. If a Snowshoe decides to simply sit and let you pass by, he is tough to spot. That pure white fur blends into the snow so well that about the only thing you can see are the small black eyes.

Cedar or spruce swamps are one of the Snowshoe's favorite cover. They also like to spread out to thickets of second-growth Aspens that have been logged over or burned. They like heavy dense cover and the best hunting time is late in the season when there is a heavy snow cover and swamps are frozen over. Walking onto an unfrozen swamp is perilous at the least.

Because of the "sitting" habit of the Snowshoe, your best choice of a gun is a scope-mounted .22 rifle. Some hunters also like to use small bore shotguns like the .410 or 20 gauge. Depending on how close you think you can stalk them, you decide.

Their lack of popularity as a game animal is largely due to the fact that their meat is generally tough for eating. That can be overcome. Parboil the meat as you would any tough meat. Then cut into slices, and fry, stew or prepare the meat any way you like.

Wildlife Artist Paints Subjects That Move Her

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Despite the pressures to attempt to produce what the public will buy, artist Marian Anderson of Mankato has been able to maintain her practice of painting what she wants to paint when she wants to paint it. She talked about her work during a showing at the Pine to Prairie gallery here Saturday.

"I have to have the feeling for 'what I'm doing,'" she explained. "There has to be an inner urge telling me that I have to paint a particular subject and I believe I have to be very familiar with that subject. Once the mood moves me, I really get into painting."

She produced her first limited edition print about five years ago and now has had 16 of her paintings reproduced for the print market. Her specialty tends toward wildlife and early American frontier characters and situations. Her publisher is Brass Langern Publishing company of Winnebago.

"I have been doing quite a bit of this sort of thing lately," she said of her visit to Thief River Falls. "It is one of the things that seems to be necessary to promote your product. And while I really enjoy meeting people and talking with them about art, I guess I'm really most comfortable when I'm tied up in a painting.

"I have made it a rule that once I start on a painting I can't be interrupted or distracted," the artist noted. "The first day usually goes sort of slow, the second day is better and by the third day I'm really into it!"

Anderson said when she is in the process of creating a painting she will frequently work at it for 12 to 16 hours a day. And once she gets deeply into her work, she no longer consciously thinks of color or mood.

"I don't look at the painting and think to myself 'I want to put red here' or 'now I'll use some blue'," she said. "It's something like typing, in a way. First you learn the letters, then words, then sentences. Pretty soon you think what you want to write and the thoughts are transferred into words on the paper. I have that kind of flow in my painting — it just comes without my really thinking about it."

The "flow" is already well in mind before the work begins, however. Marian researches her subjects as completly as she possibly can and she makes sketches and pencilled lay-outs to determine what she wants to include in her scenes. She belives this

United Way Training Set

Thief River Falls area United Way board is sponsoring a volunteer training seminar at Redeemer Lutheran church at 7 p.m. on Tuesday. Ron Voltan of the United Way of America will conduct the training and all 1983 United Way volunteers are urged to attend.

City Seeks To Find New User For $97,000

City of Thief River Falls has approximately $97,000 available for low interest loans to local industries contemplating expansion, construction of facilities or acquisition of equipment.

That money was made available last week, when Hydra-Mac Inc. announced that they intended to withdraw from the city's community development block grant program. Under that program, four industries were scheduled to receive low interest loans totalling $493,226 from the city, which received a grant for that amount from the state department of energy, planning and development. Designed as a revolving fund, the money would be made available for loan as it was repaid.

Hydra-Mac's share of the loan request was for $97,000 at six per cent interest for seven years. Balanced by a private commitment of $50,000, the money was intended to create 11 new jobs and retain 30 existing jobs by allowing building rehabilitation, equipment purchases and relocation of a subsidiary company, D and E Machining, from Wahpeton, ND to Thief River Falls.

Doug Steiger, Hydra-Mac president, stated that the primary reason for withdrawing from the loan program was that "out of pocket" costs, above and beyond the loan, were more than they were prepared to spend at this time. He added that while they would like to be able to make the changes, they would probably leave things as they are for a year or two.

City Planner Jack Quinlivan stated that if no suitable applicants can be found to utilize the funds, the city may have to return the money to the state.

Hospital To Ask Full Subsidy For Ambulance

Pennington county commissioners will be faced with another funding request Tuesday when Northwestern hospital services presents a proposal for a substantial increase in ambulance service subsidy.

Richard Spyhalski and Robert Stevens of the administrative staff at the hospital will request an annual subsidy of $56,000 for the ambulance service to cover the full expense of the service beyond fee reimbursement. Present subsidy is $12,132 and at a previous meeting the commissioners agreed to an increase to $16,000.

Stevens said there are two potential buyers for the service which has been maintained by the hospital on a 24-hour basis with full-time or on-call personnel for a number of years. Both of these operators would rely heavily on volunteers to provide service, thus reducing operational costs, but would likely still require a county subsidy.

Lacking a full operational cost subsidy, the hospital would give serious consideration to divesting itself of the service, Stevens said.

Newfolden Site For Meet About Hazardous Waste

Minnesota residents will have special opportunities, during September and October, to discuss long-term solutions to the state's hazardous waste problem and to participate in the development of Minnesota's hazardous waste management policies, at a series of more than 20 public meetings to be conducted by the Minnesota waste management board on locations throughout the state.

Among the meetings if one scheduled September 26 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Newfolden community center. It is one of four meetings listed on the schedule at which a majority of the permanent waste management board must be in attendance. Others are at the Hill City high school auditorium in Aitkin county September 27, Norwood-Young America central high school commons in Carver county October 4 and New Prague city hall in Scott county October 6.

Entitled "Hazardous Waste: Finding the Solutions," the meetings are being conducted to enable residents to help develop the state's hazardous waste management plan, a waste management board policy document that could lead to state programs instituting new taxes or other measures, affect the activities of business and industry or institute new regulations to protect the environent and public safety.

At a September 6 news conference at the State Capitol in St. Paul, board chairman Robert Dunn emphasized that the issuance of the hazardous waste management plan is the board's most important responsibility, and that the plan could have far-reaching impacts on all Minnesotans.

"The board's first duty is not the siting of any hazardous waste facilities, but the development of a comprehensive state hazardous waste management plan, the state's long-term hazardous waste policy," Dunn said. "The standards and guiding policies in the plan will determine the establishment of new hazardous waste facilities in Minnesota.

"More importantly, the plan will affect all residents by recommending new measures for hazardous waste management in Minnesota — and defining who should bear the responsibility and costs for those measures — in the future," Dunn added.

The hazardous waste management plan — which is required under Minnesota state law — will outline the extent and nature of Minnesota's hazardous waste problem and recommend to the Minnesota legislature the measures and facilities needed to deal with hazardous wastes. The board will submit the plan in draft form to the legislature in November.

The upcoming public meetings also meet a legislative mandate which requires the board to enable residents to review potential state hazardous waste policies and participate in their development.

The meetings, for the most part, are being conducted in communities with areas that

STACKS OF LUMBER nearly fill the Thief River Falls occupational development center as handicapped people working there are involved in crate construction for Arctco, Inc., local snowmobile manufacturer. Most of the wood was purchased from a mill in the Bemidji area and is of a number of hardwood varieties including poplar, birch and oak. Since it requires 57 pieces to make one crate, the workers will have assembled 153,900 parts when the order for 2,700 crates is completed by the end of October. Crate sides are being assembled at right and ends are being put together on the table where staples are being applied. When the crate project is done, the center will return to its lawn furniture manufacture. It hopes to get the crate order for next season when Arctco plans to double its production.

Ann Burger-Roger Olimb Marriage Vows Spoken

Ann Marie Burger and Roger Alan Olimb exchanged marriage vows at a 2:30 p.m., ceremony on July 16, at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Burger of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Olimb, Warroad.

Rev. Stanley Bourassa officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mary Amundson, organist, played "Processional" from "The Sound of Music," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. Flute accompaniment was provided by Renae Olimb, sister of the groom. During the ceremony Dave Morken sang "Wherever You Go," "Wedding Song," "Wedding Prayer," "Edelweiss" and "Gift of Love."

The bride was attired in a floor-length lace over satin gown made by her mother. The gown was fashioned with a sheer yoke, outlined by a wide lace ruffle, a high neckline, long sleeves and a satin cummerbund. At the neckline, she wore the pearl teardrop necklace worn by her grandmother at her wedding 55 years ago. Her headpiece was a wreath of stephanotis with flowing streamers. She carried a cascade of pink roses and white stephanotis, centered with a large orchid.

Maid of honor was Julie Easton, a friend of the couple. Bridesmaids were Beth Nichols, Minot, N.D., Sue Thomas, Grand Forks, N.D., friends of the bride; Renae Olimb, Warroad, sister of the groom; and Melodee Ruprecht, Galveston, Tex., a friend of the bride. Their floor-length gowns of a soft pink linen-look fabric featured puffy sleeves, ruffled V-necklines and cummerbunds. They carried two orchids accented with ivy and ferns.

Conway Marvin, Warroad, a friend of the couple, was best man. Groomsmen were Gary Valtalo, Laurium, Mich.; a friend of the groom; Darin Olimb, Warroad, a brother of the groom; Tom Burger, Minneapolis, a brother of the bride; and Jerry Winans, a friend of the couple. Serving as ushers were Larry Olimb, Warroad, brother of the groom; David Lansing, Park River, N.D., and Mike Schmitt, Minot, N.D., friends of the groom. The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails, white wing-tipped shirt, bow tie and a pink rose boutonniere. His attendants wore gray tuxedos with pink carnations pinned on their lapels.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua street-length dress complemented by an orchid corsage. A matching corsage accented the rose street-length dress worn by the groom's mother.

Mental Health Advocacy Plan Gets Underway

Advocacy program for mental health patients in northwestern Minnesota was presented in the Thief River Falls community Wednesday by Marilyn Spensley, field advocate for the mental health association of Minnesota. Her field office is located in Bemidji.

Spensley met with Gary Erickson, director of the Pennington county social services department, and staff members of the day-night psyciatric unit of Northwestern hospital services. She represents the state association in 18 northwestern Minnesota counties north of Highway 210 and west of Cass Lake.

Her goal is to have at least one trained volunteer mental health advocate in each county, she said. The role of the advocate is to provide people with information so that they are prepared to cope if the situation arises again. In some instances, the advocate may also provide third party assistance if it is believed best for the client.

Spensley reinforces what Bill Johnson says as manager of the lay advocates network: "When psychiatric patients complain, the system doesn't always listen. The new statewide network of advocates hopes to change that. It's a unique effort to give mental health consumers in Minnesota a voice in what happens to them while they're in treatment settings."

Funded by the McKnight foundation, the network is a special project of the mental health association of Minnesota. The association is supported by United Way contributions and contributions and is not connected with the state department of health or any other public agency.

"We saw a need for such a service," says association executive director George Carr, "and since advocacy is at the core of our organizational mission, we're excited to be providing this type of direct service."

The network will make advocates available to any current or former psychiatric consumer who needs help with a complaint. Complaints may fall under a variety of headings, including treatment rights, public benefits rights and employment and housing discrimination issues. The project includes four staff field advocates — Spensley in Bemidji and one each in Duluth, St. Cloud and Rochester.

The name of the project tells what it is, says Johnson. "The field advocates do the networking. They also take the advocacy cases, but they are really out there to establish a network of advocates who will be ordinary citizens trained in advocacy techniques."

Johnson believes the most feasible way to reach clients who are spread out all over Minnesota is to use volunteers. By 1985 the network hopes to have at least 200 trained advocate volunteers throughout Minnesota. Not just anyone, however, can become a volunteer advocate. Prospective volunteers will have to fill out an application just as they would for any job.

"We have high standards," says Johnson, "because we think our clients deserve dedicated people to advocate for them." Johnson also notes that volunteers will be paid a small stipend to help defray personal expenses during their activities with the network, but the payment is not intended to do more than cover expenses.

Many of the client complaints are received on a tollfree number at the mental health association office in Bloomington. Some calls are referrals from other agencies, and in those cases the network staff must contact the prospective client for permission to be involved. But most calls are from individual clients. "Our clients tell us what the problem is, and once we substantiate the complaint, one of our advocates represents the client," Johnson says.

When a client needs an advocate, network staff locates one who lives near the client. "At least that's the ideal situation," Johnson says. Until volunteers are trained and available in all areas, the staff advocates will take most cases.

"Our first priority is to speak in behalf of our clients," Johnson adds, "but we hope that linking clients with volunteers from communities will also make people more aware of some of the issues mental health consumers face. Many of the issues are directly related to the isolation and alienation that seem to be so common among our clients."

Johnson believes patients and ex-patients need a statewide advocacy program. Each state hospital has an advocate on staff, and there is an ombudsman program for nusing home residents, but until now there were no advocates to represent patients of other public treatment centers and private psychiatric hospitals. Johnson thinks the mental health association is an appropriate organization to provide advocacy services because it is not a governmental agency.

"If you have a grievance with the same system you work for, then ultimately your loyalty is to your job and not your client," he said. "The bottom line of the Network is that we can advocate for reasonableness and fairness for our clients without fear of losing our jobs in the process. We are really accountable to the clients we serve."

Newfolden Site For Hazardous Waste Meeting

have been selected by the board as "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, or in counties with candidate hazardous waste disposal sites. An additional meeting has been scheduled in Slayton, in southwest Minnesota, to help provide a regional distribution around the state for the meetings.

Additional meetings will be scheduled for late October for those areas selected by the board, in late September, as "study areas" for a possible crystalline bedrock hazardous waste disposal facilities. The board is currently considering nine preliminary study areas in eight Minnesota counties.

At the meetings, citizens will view slide presentations on the hazardous waste problem and the history and responsibilities of the waste management board, and on the board's recently-released hazardous waste management report.

The 400-page report, issued August 3, represents the most extensive and thorough picture to date of the state's hazardous waste problem, and will provide the basis for the hazardous waste management plan. The report provides detailed information on the types of amounts of hazardous wastes generated in Minnesota, and estimates that the state produces 174,000 tons of hazardous wastes each year.

The report also notes that approximately 70 per cent of the state's hazardous wastes are generated in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, and that Hennepin, Ramsey, Washington, St. Louis and Dakota Counties — in that order — rank as the top generating counties in the state.

Also included in the report are the board's preliminary hazardous waste policies. The board has stated, for example, that hazardous waste management should be primarily a function of private enterprise; that improved enforcement of hazardous waste regulations is needed; that waste reduction recycling and treatment are favored by the board over the land-disposal of hazardous wastes; and that environmental protection is the board's top priority.

Residents attending the meetings will also participate in small-group discussions in policies and issues confronting the waste management board, and will provide their conclusions in group presentations as well as an individual questionnaries.

Residents are encouraged to reivew the hazardous waste management report prior to the meetings. Copies of the report have been distributed to local libraries. Residents may also contact the board at 1-800-652-9747 for a free copy of the report's summary.

Results and summaries of the meetings will be available to residents after the series of meetings has concluded.

Wildlife Artist Paints Objects That Move Her advance preparation is extremely important to put reality into the finished work.

And she welcomes well-intentioned criticism of her work and comments from people who are familiar with her subject matter. Sometimes she is able to learn a great deal from such comments, she said, and that is a help for future works. In addition, she gains insight into what the buying public likes and wants.

Anderson was born on a farm at Swan Lake where her father was a hunter and trapper. She gained a good deal of first hand knowledge of birds and animals from her early surroundings. Recently she has become intensely interested in frontier type activities, to the extent that she has begun black powder shooting and hatchet throwing.

Following her showing at the gallery here, she paid a visit to the Dan Needham Chippewa craft show on the Red Lake Indian reservation. She greatly enjoyed her visit with this 87-year-old craftsman and inspecting some of the many peacepipes he and his son Ed have carved. She hopes in the future to use Needham as a subject for a painting.

"I have to paint," she said. "I couldn't get along without it. If there is any one subject I do best, perhaps it's water. People seem to like the way I use water and ice in my paintings. And when people like my work, it makes the effort all the more rewarding. I don't want people to take my prints home and stash them away under the bed. I want them to hang them up and enjoy looking at them. Art is something that has to be enjoyed."

Use Of Credit Card Requires Care, Say CPAs

Few financial tools are as useful as your credit card. That simple plastic plate identifies you, provides accurate records of transactions, lets you snatch up bargains even when you're short on cash, and gives you access you might not otherwise have at a car rental office.

Credit cards can also be the instrument of financial chaos if used irresponsibly. Before using a credit card, according to the Minnesota society of certified public accountants (CPAs), you should have a clear idea of how finance charges are computed; how long it will take to pay off the charged expense; how monthly payments will affect your budget; and your financial liability if your card is lost or stolen. Also, consider the cost of late payment charges.

Many bank credit cards include an annual fee of $10 to $50. If you have several cards with annual fees, it may be economical to drop one or more of them unless you need the extra line of credit an additional card provides.

To determine how interest charges are calculated, keep in mind that an 18 per cent annual interest rate from one card issuer could actually cost you more than another card at the same rate. It depends on how interest is calculated, CPAs say. Three methods may be used: the "adjusted balance method," the "Average daily balance method," and the "Previous balance method." Difference in the costs could be substantial.

To demonstrate, let's say your finance charge is 18 per cent a year (or a 1.5 per cent monthly charge) on outstanding amounts. For this example, your balance at the end of August was $500 and during September you pay $400 but charge an additional $100.

Using the "adjusted balance method," the finance charge for September is $1.50. Using the "average daily balance method," your charge is $3, and using the "previous balance method," it is $7.50. So, you could be paying anywhere from $1.50 to $7.50 for the same amount of credit at the same annual percentage rate.

Interest, CPAs remind you, is tax-deductible, although annual fees or service charges are not. Ideally, you should pay off your charges by the due date each month. That gives you free use of money for a month or more — depending upon the billing date.

If you plan to use a credit card for a big ticket item, such as an appliance, compare the cost of a bank loan. It might be cheaper to borrow from a bank because interest is computed up front, while credit card interest is "compounded."

If you want to buy an item and you suspect the price will go up while you wait until you have the cash, do some quick calculating before you decide. Weigh the possible increase in price against the cost of the interest (less any possible tax deduction). As a general rule, CPAs say, if an item will increase 10 per cent in a year, it's better to charge it now.

Don't use credit cards for consumable purchases that will wear out or be used up before you finish paying for them. But credit cards can be beneficial to acquire appreciating assets at a good price.

For business purposes, a credit card can be better than cash. It provides accurate records of travel and entertainment expenses, which are important for tax purposes.

Did you know that when you use your credit card to buy airline or rail tickets, you are protected in case your travel agent goes bankrupt? Credit card companies are insured against such losses. However, if your credit card is stolen and used by unauthorized people before you report the loss, you may be liable for up to $50 in charges.

Another thing to keep in mind is actions open to the bank issuing the credit card if you fail to pay on time. If your credit card account is in the same bank where you have a savings or checking account, the bank might withdraw the late payment from one of these accounts.

It's a good idea to read the fine print on your credit agreements so you understand your liability. Your credit card should make life easier, not more burdensome.

TRF Friends Of Library Group To Form Thurs.

Northwest regional library will host an organizational meeting for a Thief River Falls friends of the library group at 2 p.m. Thursday, in the library meeting room. All interested parties are welcome to attend.

4-H Can Help Young People Learn By Doing

Projects in 4-H can help young people learn how to take care of a dog, how to sew a new shirt for school, how to make a cake for their mom's birthday, how to ride a horse, how to grow a garden or how to start their own lawn care business.

"The best part," according to Alice Colby of the Marshall county extension staff, "is that while you're learning all those things, you'll be meeting new people, making new friends, and having a ball! And 4-H is something your whole family can get involved in. . . working on projects, going on field trips and camping, and just being together. No matter what you want to learn about, you can find it in 4-H." Call the extension service office in Warren at 745-5232 for more information.

REFLECTIONS
If youth is a fault . . . one soon gets rid of it. As children we yearn to grow up . . . little realizing the awesome responsibility that comes with age. Youth is fleeting . . . if you doubt this, look in your mirror. Forgive the faults of the young . . . they'll soon outgrow them and become much like us . . . mature, serious and responsible . . . and, I fear, a bit dull.

Prairie Public TV Tops Goal In Fund Drive

Prairie Public Television's annual August membership drive which ran from August 19 through August 28 raised $121,590 for the six-station noncommercial network. There were 1,715 callers who phoned in pledges, that averaged $70.90.

That $70.90 average was the highest average pledge reported by any of the 83 public television stations who conducted similar membership drives. This is the first time Prairie Public Television has led the network in the average pledge category. Syracuse, New York followed Prairie Public Television's average with a $69.94 figure.

Last year Prairie Public Television raised $105,000 during a 12-day membership drive. Prairie Public Television general manager Dennis Falk, encouraged by the final pledge figures, noted "We raised more money in fewer days of pledging — that shows how strong our program schedule has been."

Viewers in the Minot area were not able to view the special programs offered by Prairie Public Television during this membership drive. Viewers in that area have been without PPTV's signal since the ice storm of March 5 topped the KSRE Channel 6 tower. Falk noted "We missed the viewers in the Minot area, but they should be receiving a signal from us in November." The KSRE Channel 6 tower is being reconstructed this fall.

This membership drive was the first to be televised by PPTV's newest station, KWSE Channel 4 in Williston. Numerous calls were taken from viewers in the Channel 4 coverage area, including calls from viewers in northeastern Montana.

Prairie Public Television is a non-profit, non-commercial broadcast operation that programs six stations in North Dakota — KFME (13) Fargo, KGFE (2) Grand Forks, KBME (3) Bismarck, KSRE (6) Minot, KDSE (9) Dickinson and KWSE (4) Williston. Viewers across Manotiba and Saskatchewan receive PPTV via cable.

Pioneer Farm Fest In Roseau

Pioneer Farm festival will be held Saturday and Sunday, September 17 and 18, at the Pioneer Farm Village in Roseau.

Pancake breakfasts will be held both days from 8 to 11 a.m. Dedication of the Pioneer Church will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, followed by an auction of donated items at 2 p.m. Other activities will include demonstrations of antique equipment for grinding flour, sawing wood and making shingles. Many other antiques will be on display, and old time music will be provided both days.

Legislators Expect Help From Congress

Although disappointed by U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block's continued refusal to unlock $600 million in economic emergency funds to aid disaster impacted farmers, Minnesota's delegation returned home from a disaster summit meeting with optimism that Congress will respond to the financial crisis facing many farmers, according to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

Minnesota agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols, Senator Stumpf and Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, who expressed Governor Rudy Perpich's and their own concerns for the northwestern Minnesota farmers hit with four to five straight years of disaster, said they are impressed by the pressure being mounted by governors and members of Congress from 26 states represented at the Friday meeting in Chicago.

They urge local county USDA committees to update 1983 crop disaster assessments. They are particularly encouraged by the recognition of the farm financial problems voiced at the Chicago meeting by Tenessee Congressman Ed Jones, who chairs the powerful House of Representatives agriculture subcommittee on conservation, credit and rural development. Jones was particularly vocal on the heavy 26-state counter attack on the federal administration's failure to implement the farm disaster relief it has available.

Congressman Jones announced that he has scheduled a special hearing of his subcommittee in Washington, D.C., for September 14 to give Congress a chance to determine the extent of the 1983 drought damage and to determine whether new legislation is needed to adequately respond to the farm financial distress. He invited Senator Stumpf and Representative Sparby to testify at the September 14 hearing.

Commissioner Nichols said that Congressman Jones pointed out that Secretary Block has more than enough discretionary authority to provide at least six available forms of federal disaster assistance: (1) Direct payments to farmers for their losses; (2) low interest loans for the amount of disaster loss in addition to utilizing the economic emergency loan program; (3) providing emergency livestock feed to livestock farmers in disaster areas; (4) opening up acreage reserve and payment in kind (PIK) acres for grazing and haying; (5) making advance deficiency payments; and (6) provoding cost sharing for emergency soil conservation practices.

Fund Drive For UND Provides New Records

University of North Dakota alumni association's sustaining fund drive for 1982-83 surpassed goals and broke records for total dollars and number of givers, UND foundation president James Seifert of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has announced.

Seifert, a 1956 UND graduate, served as chairman of the 36th consecutive annual drive.

"These results are especially impressive because a separate but parallel effort is underway to raise $25 million as part of the university's centennial," he said.

This year's contributions of $600,895 exceeded last year's record total by 41 per cent, while the number of contributors grew by 30 per cent to 8,271, he said. The goals of $500,000 from 7,500 contributors were exceeded at a level of 120 and 110 per cent, respectively.

When major "one-time" gifts from 56 individuals, couples and organizations are included, a total of $3.8 million was entered onto the books of the foundation in 1982-83. Major gifts include outright gifts, life income agreements, land gifts, bequests and gifts in kind. No included in these figures are bequests still in probate and Centennial gifts and pledges still in process.

For the fourth straight year, the class of 1924 had the highest rate of participation — 50 per cent — in the fund drive.

For the fifth year in a row, the class of 1970 had the most members contribute to the fund, with 207 contributions, up from 161 last year.

SAWING BOARDS for crate manufacture is one of the workers at the occupational development center in Thief River Falls. The center has been working on the crate project for Arctco, Inc., since mid-June and expects to complete the order for 2,700 crates by the end of October. There is a goal of 200 crates per week and the center has been operating two six-hour shifts to keep ahead of the demand. About 25 people work on the 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. shift and about 18 from the 2:30 to 9 p.m. shift. So far the center has received 12 semi-truck loads of lumber and will require about eight more. Completed crates are hauled to Arctco by trailer several times a day.

Once Military Personnel To Hold Seminar

For the ninth consecutive year, retired personnel from all branches of military service and their spouses are being invited by the navy to attend the retired personnel seminar October 15 at the Carlton Dinner Theatre in Bloomington.

Jointly sponsored by the naval reserve readiness command, Minneapolis, and the Viking branch of the Fleet Reserve association, this year's seminar will cover such topics as military benefits, health care, rights and benefits under social security, and any pending legislation which may affect retired members and their families.

Speakers from governmental agencies at the nationa, state and local levels will present updates in their field of expertise and will answer questions from the floor. Presentations will be from representatives of the Minnesota department of revenue, social security, job services, veterans affairs, and the civilian health and medical program of the uniformed services (CHAMPUS).

Since the seminars began in 1975, more than 2,000 military retirees representing the navy, marines, coast guard, army and air force retired communities in a five state area have participated.

Registration for this year's program costs $5 per person for registration and coffee, or $10 per person for registration, coffee and luncheon. Reservations should be sent to Commander, Naval Reserve Readiness Command, Region Sixteen, Building 715, Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55428, Attention: Master Chief Turner.

Further information on the seminar is available by calling Master Chief Tarry Turner at (612) 725-5700. Space is limited and reservations must be received by October 12.

Fingerprints Could Lead To Missing Child

Programs recently started to voluntarily fingerprint children can increase chances of identifying missing youngsters, according to Commissioner Paul Tschida of the Minnesota department of public safety.

One such program is kids identification system (KIDS), an effort by the Austin police department to fingerprint children, said Tschida. Under the KIDS program, parents give police permission to fingerprint their children. A card containing the fingerprints and other information about the child is given to parents. Police do not keep a copy of the card. However, if a fingerprinted child disappears, the card may be returned to authorities for use in helping find the child.

"Returned cards are given to the FBI, who then record information on the missing child into their computers," said Lt. Tom Steininger, Austin police officer and KIDS coordinator. "This information is then available to law enforcement agencies across the country."

Special missing person cards are used to fingerprint children, and Steininger. The completed card also contains a child's name, address, height, weight and color of eyes and hair.

"Rather than fingerprinting children individually at the police station, it is quicker to handle groups where sizeable numbers of parents and children are present," said Steininger. "We'll send out officers to any interested group to fingerprint 30 to 100 kids at one time."

Only officers who have volunteered to help with the KIDS program do the fingerprinting. These officers understand the importance of positive contact between youngsters and police. To emphasize the low key approach of the program, officers have the option of not wearing a gun while fingerprinting.

Steininger receives at least two calls a day from parents who want their children fingerprinted. "I can't believe the favorable response to KIDS from parents in the community," said Steininger. "I'm surprised at the numbers of mothers who fear their children may run away or be kidnapped."

Over 1,000 youngsters were fingerprinted by the end of June. Steininger estimates that most children in Austin will be fingerprinted by December 1.

According to Tschida, other police and sheriff's departments in Minnesota are providing similar services to their communities. He advises concerned parents to contact their local police agency if interested in this service.

IBAM Head Knocks Session Of Legislature

"This is the worst legislature ever for small business in Minnesota," according to John A. Herman, president of the Independent Business Association of Minnesota (IBAM).

"Minnesota has a bad business and jobs climate and this legislature only made things worse," he said.

Herman, a former Cottage Grove newspaper publisher, added that anyone or any organization that would say anything different is living in a "dream world". "We asked for workers' comp reform and got a pat on the head," he said.

Some small business owners in Minnesota pay up to four and five times more in workers' compensation premium dollars than neighboring states. The average is two to three times more.

Herman stated that even a reduction of 10 to 20 per cent in workers' comp premiums would not be enough to make Minnesota small business owners competitive.

Herman cited several other areas of concern to small business owners in Minnesota.

"We asked for tax relief to make our small businesses competitive and save Minnesota jobs. We got over one billion dollars in personal tax increases, nearly 50 million dollars in business tax increases, a sales tax increase and a gas tax increase. These taxes add to our cost of doing business in Minnesota. It puts us even further back with the competition in surrounding states," he said.

"And even though we got a 'sleight of hand' tax adjustment on the first $50,000 of market value on commercial property, what one hand gives the other takes," he said. Herman added that major property tax increases are coming at a time when Minnesota's commercial property taxes are often more than double that of other states' in the five state area.

"We asked for unemployment compensation reform and got a 10 per cent surcharge for employers. This is a tax on jobs," he said.

Herman pointed out that the system as it is gives a highly paid seasonal worker and a part-time student equal status with an unemployed worker who needs to feed a family.

Minnesota currently faces a $376.6 million deficit in the unemployment compensation trust fund. Minnesota business owners are also required to pay approximately $28 million per year in interest accrued on the loan to the federal government.

The IBAM president took issue with the talk of a balanced budget. "The idea of a balanced budget is a farce when the state is nearly $400 million in debt to the federal treasury," he said.

"And worst of all," Herman said, "this legislature placed a gun of liability to the heads of many business owners. Under the guise of cleaning up the environment, which no one could object to, they created a retroactive liability. This may be a trial lawyer's dream, but it is a nightmare for our business community. This piece of legislation has cast a dark cloud over the jobs of many Minnesota workers," Herman said.

According to Herman, Minnesota has lost 82,190 jobs since 1967.

"It is not wage rates or labor costs that are driving jobs out of Minnesota. Wisconsin and Iowa actually have a higher annual average hourly manufacturing wage rate. It is government induced costs that make our businesses uncompetitive," stated Herman.

"The state government is the problem! A nearly 20 per cent state spending increase is the problem! High taxes are the problem! Workers' comp and unemployment comp costs are still a problem! A totally unresponsive legislature is the problem!" Herman declared.

"Small business has its back to the wall and must become militant," he said.

BBB Resolved Challenges To 53 Ads In Aug.

Advertising review division of the Better Business Bureau (BBB) of Minnesota resolved 53 formal advertising challenges during the past month.

Forty-two challenges were the result of the BBB's own monitoring efforts and 11 were initiated by consumer complaints.

In 15 cases the bureau concluded advertisers had a basis for their claims. Twenty-eight advertisers voluntarily agreed to modify claims to comply with the BBB code of advertising. Remaining 10 advertisers discontinued making claims in question.

One claim previously referred to the national advertising division was closed when the advertiser substantiated its claim.

Local challenges resolved by the bureau during the past month involved the following: pricing claims - 24 cases; insufficient quantity of merchandise and nondisclosure - three cases; false or misleading claims - six cases; underselling or puffery claims - nine cases; rebate claims - three cases; use of word "free" - one case; and warranties-guarantees claims - seven cases.

Advertising division of the BBB handles investigative work for the advertising industry's self-regulatory mechanism. It reviews and evaluates challenges to the truth and accuracy of advertising brought by outside sources or initiated by the BBB as a result of its own monitoring of print and broadcast advertising.

Following its investigation BBB will either dismiss the challenge, or request modification, or withdrawal of the advertising. Where efforts by the bureau are unsuccessful, or where the advertiser or complainant disagrees with the findings of the staff, BBB may request the Minnesota advertising review committee (MARC) to review the matter. MARC functions as an appeals body on advertising matters investigated originally by BBB. Panel findings and opinions are publicly disclosed.

Urges Farmers To Apply For Disaster Loans

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls is encouraging farmers in Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties to apply for disaster emergency loans at their local Farmers Home administration office (FmHA) to cover actual crop losses caused by adverse weather during the 1982 crop year.

"Recurring disasters have been devastating to many area farmers who have had to contend with severe weather, low grain prices and high interest rates," said Sparby. "For those reasons, we expect many farmers to be eligible for these emergency loans."

Sparby also encouraged small businesses who were affected by decreased farm income due to adverse weather conditions in 1982 to apply for economic injury disaster loans with the U.S. Small Business Adminstration (SBA). Those seeking further information on the SBA loans may contact the SBA Disaster Assistance Office at 75 Spring St. S.W., Suite 822, Atlanta, Ga. 30303, telephone (404) 221-5854.

The deadline date for filing and application for both the FmHA and SBA loans is October 5 in Pennington and Red Lake counties, and Feb. 12, 1984 in Marshall county. Farmers who farm in both Marshall and Pennington counties must file by the October 5 deadline for their Pennington county farmland.

Meeting The Challenges

Following open letter to the membership of the Minnesota Education association was written by the new MEA president Martha Lee (Marti) Zins and published in the official MEA publication:

Thus begins another school year — the challenge is clearly before us. The task is identified. Our response is clear and unbending, we will be the consumer advocates for the public school system. We will continue to fight for students, for the poor, for women, for minorities, for the have-nots, for teachers. We have staked out our mission. We will protect that very special educational relationship between student and teacher. This will be our highest priority for, indeed, all else pivots around that central point.

If we allow an intrusion on the learning process the public education we know will be gone. The very promise of America to a free public education, the ability to reach each of our maximum potentials, will be irreplaceably lost forever. You can never go back. What indeed is at stake is America's future.

Don't let the illusionistic motions of the magician fool you. Merit pay plans are unethical; they destroy that very special educational relationship between student and teacher by distorting and pressurizing the learning process in nonproductive ways. They are smoke screens for failing to address the real problems and issues of public education: lack of funding, failure of the federal government to accept its share of funding, poor salaries so other career choices have higher priority than teaching, poor compensation for those already teaching, lack of adequate control of the teacher preparation process, and rollbacks of curriculum offerings so succeeding generations are educationally shortchanged, to mention a few. Keep in mind that in 1983 the collective salary average of the national teachers of the year was just over $21,000.

Technology and its place in public education must receive a comprehensive review. Technology is not an end all and cure all (in and of itself) but is a tool in the educational process. Clearly schools need to educate for a future world, and technology is a part of that, but we must humanize technology and exercise care that it's not used to discriminate so that females and minorities have less access than males and majority persons.

We must address the issues of censorship, mind control, ownership and implementation of technological curriculum. Rather than increasing class sizes and laying off teachers to fund technology in the classroom, new money must be channeled into public schools. English, art, music, phy ed, industrial arts, home economics are as vital components as are math, science and foreign language for the youth to function in the future.

Political action is an integral ingredient in the survival of public education, which encompasses pre-K, K-12, vocational, colleges, universities and adult education. All educational decisions are political decisions. Our active involvement in the political process, our support of IMPACE-MEA, and our own education in the political process is essential. The Political Education Fund (PEF) is an important step in that direction. Education must continue to be our voting priority.

We recognize that our best defense as a nation is a well educated populace. We do our students, our nation, and ourselves no favor if we roll over and let someone else define the role of public education. We must be firm and committed for equity, cultural diversity, affirmative action, higher pay, increased benefits, comparable worth, job security, statewide fringes and bargaining. Concern for women and minorities aren't empty slogans with us but deeply held philosophical beliefs that we will continue to translate into action.

Join with me and together we'll meet the challenges.

Probing Legal Aid

Following editorial is from the Phoenix (AZ) Gazette:

The Legal Aid Services Corporation, created by Congress in 1974 to provide free legal aid to needy persons, is the largest law firm in the United States. It has a budget of $241 million, the bulk of which is disbursed to some 324 projects throughout the country, employing 4,800 full-time poverty lawyers and 6,700 paralegals and support staff.

Almost since its inception, the LSC has been accused by its critics of diverting a considerable part of its resources from legal aid for poor individuals and families to promoting sweeping changes in the nation's social, economic and political structure.

In hearings by the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said the corporation has misued legal aid funds to finance lobbying and to publish manuals that offered advice that was improper, unethical and, in some instances, illegal. Hatch said that allegations have been made that, after the 1980 elections, "orders were given to destroy documents considered to be too sensitive or which revealed improper activities."

These and other allegations of improper activity deserve to be given far more public scrutiny than they have received thus far, at least as much attention as has been given to the far less serious "debate-gate" matter.

Study The Study

Following editorial appeared recently in the Grand Forks Herald:

A puzzling report was released in time for Labor Day by the Public Agenda Foundation, a private, non-profit New York research organization.

The study was tentitled, "Putting the Work Ethic to Work: A Public Agenda Report on Restoring America's Competitive Vitality." It said the fault for declining worker efficiency lies largely with managers who "have done little to tap the potential energy and commitment," and that workers are unhappy that pay isn't tied to productivity. These conclusions came after 845 interviews with working Americans. These are some of the statistics cited:

+ Only 23 per cent of job holders said they were working as hard as they could.

+ 73 per cent of those interviewed said their job effort declined because people often got the same pay increases regardless of how hard they worked.

+ 52 per cent indicated an inner need to do the best job possible, regardless of pay.

If 52 per cent feel that inner need to do the best job, regardless of pay, why are only 23 per cent working as hard as they can? If the overwhelming majority of workers are irritated by uniform pay increases instead of pay based on performance, why are so many unions fighting against merit pay? The antipathy of teachers toward merit increases is the most obvious recent example.

The big push for uniformity in pay has come from workers, not management. Yet according to the survey, 61 per cent of the workers interviewed said they want a closer link between performance and pay. At the least, the survey contradicts what is actually going on at the negotiating tables. It seems unlikely that union negotiators are that out of touch with their members.

The report's conclusion that most people want to do the best they can sounds accurate. There is more pleasure in doing a good job than a bad one. A lot depends, however, on whether people like the kind of work they do. Typically in newsrooms, people apply for jobs because they like the work, not because they are wowed by the pay scales; and the problem in newsrooms is not in getting people to work, but in reining them in. There are other union jobs that are better paid, but which seem to breed absenteeism and minimal effort. Money is nice, but it patently, isn't all.

In the real world, which the survey doesn't seem to reflect, worker participation committees are involved in company decision-making; "quality circles" of management and labor are thrashing out problems and ideas; labor contracts are building in quality-of-life aspects as well as wages. If productivity is declining, it is not because workers have less opportunity to influence their workplaces or because managers have wrestled workers away from merit pay.

Someone should do a study of that study.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A visitor in a small Vermont town joined a group of men on the porch of the general store but was unable to generate a conversation. "Is there a law against talking in this town?" he asked sarcastically.

"No law," one of the men replied evenly, "just an understanding. Nobody talks unless he can improve on the silence."

She: "Enough about me; let's talk about you."
He: "Okay."
She: "So what do you like about me the most?"

458 Miles Of MN Railroad Abandoned

Another 458 miles of rail lines are expected to be abandoned by railroad companies operating in the state during the next three years, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

This is a 3.5 per cent increase over the 443 miles of rail lines listed for abandonment status last August, said Commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Railroads also have identified one 43-mile line as potentially subject to abandonment. Another 112 miles on four lines are listed in abandonment applications pending before the interstate commerce commission (ICC), he said. Minnesota has about 5,646 miles of rail line.

Although Mn-DOT has the responsibility of responding to the ICC concerning rail abandonments in Minnesota, it is the ICC that determines whether an abandonment should be granted or not. When a railroad notifies Mn-DOT it is filing an abandonment application, the transportation department conducts an analysis, prepares written comments and submits them to the ICC, Braun explained.

In addition, Mn-DOT requests information from interested persons and conducts public information meetings to explain and discuss the abandonment process. It also administers the Minnesota rail service improvement program to help shippers and communities to continue to have service on potentially financially viable rail lines that are in the process of being abandoned or subject to abandonment.

Currently, Mn-DOT is investigating the possibility of developing projects on about 200 miles of lines subject to abandonment, Braun said. "However, because of limited funds available, Mn-DOT is able to consider rehabilitation of only a small percentage of these miles," he added. "We are also looking into rail banking which is a fairly new state program where railroad right of way is acquired for future transportation of transmission uses."

Steffens Joins Green Funeral Home In TRF

Kathryn Steffens

Kathryn Steffens, a native of the Fargo community, has joined the Green Funeral home in Thief River Falls on a nine-month internship. She is a graduate of Fargo South high school, and holds a BA degree in psychology from the University of Wisconsin at Madison and a BS degree in mortuary science from the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

After graduating from the University of Wisconsin, she worked for a year as a social worker in a treatment facility for the chronically mentally ill and developmentally disabled. Her father died in March of 1982 and her close association with questions of death and dying led her to the conclusion that she would be of help to people in providing funeral service.

"It may be easier for some people to deal with a woman in arranging for a funeral service," she said. "There have been women in this field for some time, but usually as part of a husband and wife team, with the wife handling arrangements and the husband doing the physical work and embalming. I am qualified for all aspects of the profession, including the body preparation."

Steffens indicated she has received positive comments about having a female involved in the funeral service setting. Her class at the University of Minnesota included 43 members. She completed the normal two-year program in one year by carrying 17 to 20 credits per quarter and attending summer school.

Her hobbies include walking, bicycle riding, skiing, tennis, swimming, dancing and reading. Although no arrangements have been made for the time following her internship, she indicated she would probably like to continue on with her profession here.

Sow Sell-Off Pushed To Cut Market Hogs

In an attempt to change long-term market hog prices, the National Farmers organization (NFO) has announced a sow sell-off program.

In announcing the sell-off, NFO president DeVon Woodland noted the current market price of hogs is hovering at the producer's cost of production and is expected to drop even lower during the next few months.

Merle Suntken, NFO hog division director, said the USDA hog and pig crop report issued in March is depressing the market at the present time. That report put the March-May pig crop on the farm at 108 per cent of the 1982 total and the June-August total at 109 per cent of 1982.

NFO experts put the total even higher, pegging the June through November total at 109 to 111 per cent of 1982.

"We're trying to prevent a long-term drastic decline in the market hog price," Suntken said. "There is no way to stop the short-term decline but a sow sell-off now will put upward pressure on the market nine to 10 months from now.

"Our goal is to sell off eight per cent of the current sow population or about 920,000 head," Suntken explained, "reducing the population to approximately the 1982 level. That would reduce the pig crop by about 6.7 million head and result in about 1.47 billion less pounds of pork reaching the market in 1984 (live weight at 220 pounds average)."

He said producers can have some short-term effect by selling their hogs at lighter weights. Taking just 10 pounds off each animal would result in taking three million pounds of pork off the national market each day and that alone would affect the short-term market price, he said.

"The producer must take his own action to improve his situation," Suntken said. "All we can do at NFO is provide the momentum. The March report has kicked the devil out of market price and someone has to help the producers recover over the next few months. Our program can do that."

LHS Football Losing Streak

Finally, Thief River Falls has finally won a football game after being saddled with 21 consecutive losses over all or parts of four seasons.

A sense of relief was probably felt by the players and coaches who have had the dark cloud hanging over their heads since 1980. There's cause for celebration because the people connected with the program know this isn't a bad football team. The potential and the opportunity is there to have a winning season. The victory over Detroit Lakes was the start, and the Prowlers hope to use it as a stepping stone toward their climb to the top.

It's not like the Prowlers were ever a doormat. Despite the losses and schedules filled with playoff contenders, not many teams could afford to take them lightly. More often than not the Prowlers played hard, competitive football. In fact, the losing streak was dotted with numerous close games that could have easily gone either way.

During the 21 losses, three of them were 2-0 forfeits as ruled by the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) during the 1981 teacher's strike in School District 564. Of the 18 losses that did occur on the playing field, nine of them — exactly half of the losses — were decided by one touchdown or less. Two of them were one-point losses. Twice the Prowlers lost while giving up just one touchdown and once they lost even though they did not give up a touchdown and held the opposition scoreless through four full quarters.

Those kind of figures became more and more frustrating as the losses continued to mount.

Losing streak started at the end of the 1980 season. The Prowlers were 5-2, which included a big 33-21 win over Moorhead, and were eyeing an MSHSL post-season playoff berth. But they lost their final two games to start the streak — a 7-6 decision to East Grand Forks and a 46-0 rout at the hands of an unbeaten Crookston team that went on to win the Class A state championship trophy.

There were six more losses in 1981, plus the three forfeits (including a double forfeit in the finale since Crookston teachers were also on strike at the time), then an 0-9 finish last fall. A 21-12 defeat at the hands of Grand Forks Red River in the 1983 season opener extended the streak.

A number of times the streak could have ended, including the very first loss — that 7-6 decision to East Grand Forks on a snowy, wind-swept Prowler Field when Thief River Falls twice failed to pick up first downs on fourth down snaps deep in East Grand Forks territory during the fourth quarter.

In 1981 the Prowlers lost 13-8 to Detroit Lakes when the Lakers' Todd Jorgenson came up with a pass interception with 3:59 left to clinch it; lost 13-6 to No. 5-rated Class AA power Grand Rapids when the Indians' Tony Kellin and Ron Renner connected on back-to-back touchdowns passes just 48 seconds apart in the final two minutes of the first half; fell 15-14 at Staples when the Cardinals came up with a touchdown pass on the final play of the first half — a play that started with just one second showing on the clock — and then produced the winning touchdown with just 2:49 left in the game; and dropped a tough 3-0 decision to unbeaten Bemidji when a 17-yard field goal by the Lumberjacks' Daryl Strunk on the final snap of an eight-play overtime session ended a scoreless struggle in the mud and rain here.

More of the same in 1982 as Thief River Falls lost 14-7 to Detroit Lakes when the Lakers blocked a punt and recovered the ball in the end zone with just 26 seconds left in the game; fell 6-0 to state Class B runner-up Mahnomen on a 73-yard Ken Muckenhirn first quarter punt return; dropped a 12-6 game to Bemidji on Jason Gangeness' fourth down plunge from inside the 1-yard line with 7:18 left; and came up short in a 15-8 game against Crookston when the Prowlers were stopped on a fourth-and-one play from the Pirates' 24-yard line with 9:27 remaining.

It's been tough. The Prowlers have had just one winning football season — that 5-4 finish in 1980 — over the last eight years and have had only two winning campaigns over the past decade. One victory obviously doesn't make them instant winners. But it's a start.

TRF Ends Losing Streak By Beating Lakers 20-0

A visitor leaving Friday's Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes high school football game remarked, "Boy, that sure didn't look like a team that had lost 21 straight games. They looked good."

They were right. Thief River Falls finally ended that prolonged winning drought with strong performances both offensively and defensively that netted the Prowlers a much-appreciated 20-0 victory over the visiting Lakers.

It was Thief River Falls' first victory since Oct. 10, 1980 when the Prowlers beat Fergus Falls 21-6.

"It's about time," smiled relieved Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz afterwards. "The kids wanted it. They deserved it."

Sparked by hard-running ball carriers Tim Bottem and Ryan Drees, plus the highly-effective last-second option pitches by quarterback Mitch Semanko, a Thief River Falls offense that has been dormant during the length of the losing streak finally jelled. After netting just 13 yards on 31 rushing attempts in a season-opening 21-12 loss at Grand Forks Red River the week before, the Prowlers averaged 5.5 yards per carry in gaining 298 yards on 54 rushing attempts vs. the Lakers.

Bottem, a 5-10, 166-pound senior, racked up 167 yards on 15 carries Friday, including a 74-yard fourth quarter touchdown run that put the game out of reach. Drees, a 5-5, 169-pound junior, worked loose for 82 yards on only eight carries — all but one yard and one carry coming in the first half.

Meanwhile, Semanko, a 5-10, 157-pound senior, helped spring the backs loose around the ends with his option pitches that came more than once while he was being wrapped up by Detroit Lakes defenders who figured they had stopped the play for a loss. Semanko was sacked a couple of times passing to end up with a minus-22 yards in the rushing category, but he contributed there, too, by gaining three first downs on quarterback sneaks. He also threw a pair of touchdown passes to Steve Wiskow and Rick Spong in the first half.

Defensively, with 5-11, 170-pound senior linebacker Todd Ortloff leading the way, the Prowlers recorded their first shutout since Sept. 31, 1979 when they blanked Staples 37-0. Detroit Lakes, shut out for the second straight week after losing to Fergus Falls 28-0 in the 1983 opener, netted just 39 yards on the ground against the Prowlers, averaging only 1.9 yards per carry.

Thief River Falls' defense forced six Detroit Lakes turnovers — four interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Junior conerback Mark Bondy had a pair of interceptions, senior safety Scott Jorstad had one and junior linebacker Scott Fowler picked off a pass. Ortloff and senior defensive end Jeff Langan came up with fumble recoveries.

"We came up with the big plays when we had to," acknowledged Schmitz. "The backs ran hard, the line made the blocks and the defense played well. Ortloff had just an outstanding game."

It was Drees' tackle-breaking runs that set up Thief River Falls' first touchdown. Receiving a punt at their own 32-yard line on the final play of the first quarter, the Prowlers promptly covered those 68 yards in seven plays to take a 7-0 lead on a 9-yard Semanko touchdown pass to Steve Wiskow. Drees carried the ball four times on the drive, bouncing off a hit behind the line of scrimmage to start it with a 28-yard run down the right side on the first play of the second quarter. Two plays later he snuck through the right side on a 32-yard burst to the Detroit Lakes 3-yard line.

An offside penalty moved them back, but on third-and-goal from the Lakers' 9-yard line, Semanko hit Wiskow, a wide receiver who had beaten Detroit Lakes linebacker Tom Johnson to the left corner of the end zone with 9:37 remaining in the half. Gary Cornell added the extra point kick.

Detroit Lakes' third turnover in the Lakers' first four possessions — an interception by Jorstad near midfield — set up the second Thief River Falls touchdown. It took the Prowlers 15 plays and nearly six minutes to get there. A pass interference penalty in the end zone gave the Prowlers a first-and-goal opportunity from the Detroit Lakes 9-yard line, but they made it harder on themselves by picking up a 15-yard holding penalty that put them back to the 29.

However, on the very next play Spong was wide open out of the backfield on the left side. He caught Semanko's pass at the 15 and broke away from a diving tackle attempt by Detroit Lakes defensive back Dave Douglas to dive into the end zone with 2:21 on the clock. Cornell again added the placement for a 14-0 cushion.

Detroit Lakes threatened to make a game of it when Johnson intercepted Semanko near midfield and returned the ball to the Thief River Falls 20 on the first play of the fourth quarter. But the Lakers ran out of downs at the 17, and moments later Bottem nailed the lid on the coffin, when, as a man-in-motion from a wingback spot on the left side, he took a handoff from Semanko around the right side, ran out of the grasp of a tackle at the Thief River Falls 30-yard line and out-ran the defense the rest of the way for his 74-yard touchdown sprint. This time the extra point snap was not handled cleanly and Cornell never had a chance to add his third conversion kick. But it was 20-0 with 9:04 remaining.

Thief River Falls will be at home again Friday when the Prowlers host Mahnomen.

BEATING LINEBACKER Tom Johnson of Detroit Lakes to the left corner of the end zone, Thief River Falls wide receiver Steve Wiskow hauled in a 9-yard second quarter touchdown pass from quarterback Mitch Semanko Friday to start the scoring in the Prowlers' 20-0 high school football win over the visiting Lakers.

MCC Drops Conference Opener To Rabbits 29-14

Marshall County Central surrendered 21 second quarter points Friday in a 29-14 Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football loss to Tri-County at Karlstad.

"We came out pretty flat in the first half," said Marshall County Central assistant coach Jim Pederson. "The second half was much better, but that's the second week in a row we've started poorly."

Marshall County Central got on the scoreboard first when Brent Magner threw an 11-yard first quarter touchdown pass to Bret Hanson.

But Tri-County then rattled off 29 unanswered points to take command. Kevin Larson threw a pair of touchdown passes for the Rabbits, Mark Chwialkowski scored on a short touchdown run and Darin Grandstrand returned a pass interception 22 yards for a score during that blitz.

Only second half touchdown came on a 13-yard fourth quarter run by the Nordics' Hanson.

Statistically the game was a near stand-off. Tri-County had only a 253-237 edge in total yards and Marshall County Central had a 14-12 edge in first downs. The Nordics gained 119 yards on the ground — 61 by Jay Nelson — and added 118 yards passing. The Rabbits ran for 118 yards and passed for 135.

Defensively, nose guard-tackle Grant Nelson "had an outstanding game," according to Pederson, who also cited the play of linebacker Ken Krohn.

Marshall County Central, 0-2, tackles Argyle Friday in a 7:30 p.m. game at Newfolden. The Eagles and Nordics shared the Top of the State Conference title last fall.

McIntosh-Winger 30
Oklee 12

Oklee watched a 12-0 lead disappear Friday in a 30-12 North Tri-County Conference loss at McIntosh-Winger.

A pair of Kevin Enerson touchdown passes to Loring Mercil covering 20 and 25 yards provided the Bobcats with that two-touchdown headstart, but the Scots answered with 30 straight points, including a go-ahead 4-yard touchdown run by Gerry Syverson late in the first half.

"That was the turning point," said Oklee coach Dale Svaren. "If we could have held them there, I think we would have won."

As it was, Oklee ran just six offensive plays in the third quarter as McIntosh-Winger wore the Bobcats down. "We just got beat up physically," said Svaren.

Oklee netted just 16 yards rushing for the night. The Bobcats mustered 126 yards passing as Enerson went 6-for-22 in the air. Gary Parenteau (54 yards), Mercil (45) and Tom Olson (27) each caught two passes.

On defense, linebackers Tom Dulka was credited with 23 tackles, Enerson had 20 at safety and Darrin Tougas had 18 in the secondary.

Middle River 14

Playing two games in five days this early in the season proved to be too much for Middle River Friday as the Skippers lost a 17-14 non-conference game at Gary.

With their season opener postponed from Friday to Monday because of the heat, Middle River had little preparation time for the Bulldogs, and it showed, said coach Eldon Sparby of the Skippers.

"It was not good," is the way he described his team's performance. "We should have won. We had a horrible week of practice after playing that Monday game. We just didn't execute. Monday we hardly made any mistakes. This one was a nightmare."

Gary had a 3-0 lead at halftime on a 25-yard first quarter Steve Book field goal. The two teams traded third quarter touchdowns before the Bulldogs recovered a fumble at the Skippers' 1-yard line and punched the ball across the goal line on a run by Scott Moen to take a 17-6 edge.

"We were in the game to that point," noted Sparby.

A 35-yard Kevin McKeever to Sheldon Peterson touchdown pass with about five minutes remaining pulled Middle River to within 17-14, but they weren't able to mount another serious scoring threat.

Middle River collected 155 yards rushing as Brian Cwikla carried 12 times for 73 yards and Mike Coltom carried 13 times for 60 yards. McKeever was 3-for-6 passing for 57 yards.

John Scheff at linebacker and McKeever at safety were the leaders on defense for the Skippers with nine tackles each. "Scheff had an excellent game," mentioned Sparby. "McKeever played another good defensive game, and I can't complain about his quarterbacking, either."

Middle River, 1-1, will be at Oklee Friday for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Tennis Team Plays At Brainerd Meet

Members of the Lincoln high school tennis team competed in a seven-team Brainerd high school invitational tournament over the weekend where the Prowlers fared much better than a year ago.

Staples won the meet with 33 points, followed by Hibbing with 32 and White Bear Lake with 29 in a close threey-way first place battle. There was a three-way fourth place tie as Thief River Falls, Blue Earth and St. Paul Hill-Murray all collected 15 points. Brainerd finished with 8.

"Overall, we were really pleased," reported Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "It was excellent competition; some different competition."

By contrast, a year ago the Prowlers were sixth in the meet with just six points.

Top Thief River Falls finish was turned in by junior Michelle Olson at No. 1 singles where she split six decisions and wound up in a three-way tie for second place. In a tie-breaking procedure based on head-to-head competition, Olson received the third place ribbon in a field that included Ann Gorde, the winner, who was ranked No. 3 in the Class AA ratings and Shallo Patterson of White Bear Lake, who was ranked No. 19. A trophy went to the winner in each event, with ribbons going to second and third place finishers.

Also winning a third place ribbon was the Prowlers' No. 2 doubles team - eighth graders Vickie Grovum and Kelly Cornell.

Thief River Falls will be at Crookston Tuesday for a 2 p.m. triangular with the Pirates and Moorhead.

ON SEVERAL occasions Friday, Thief River Falls quarterback Mitch Semanko (16) appeared to be wrapped up by Detroit Lakes defenders on the option play, only to get off a last-second pitch to one of the Prowlers' runningbacks. It happened again here as Detroit Lakes defensive back Dave Douglas got his hands on the ball-carrying quarterback only to have him pitch it to Tim Bottem (not pictured) for a 10-yard gain to the Detroit Lakes 21-yard line in the third quarter of the nonconference high school football game played in Thief River Falls. Others identifiable in the photo are the Lakers' Tom Campion (89) and the Prowlers' Todd Ortloff (58). Thief River Falls won the game 20-0, snapping a 21-game losing streak.

Cardinals Edge Blue Devils 14-8 In Early North Tri-County Showdown

Round one in a series of early-season showdowns between North Tri-County Conference favorites was won by Plummer Friday with an emotional come-from-behind 14-8 Nine-Man high school football win over visiting Grygla-Goodridge.

Plummer won it by scoring 14 fourth quarter points, getting the game-winner with just 32 seconds remaining.

"It was a great game, a beautiful football game," said Plummer coach Gary Brantl. "It was well-played by both teams. It's too bad there had to be a loser in a game like this."

Grygla-Goodridge coach Rick Nelson echoed similar thoughts. "I have never been to a better North Tri-County Conference game as a player, coach, referee or fan," he said. "I don't think you would find a better Nine-Man high school football game."

It was a game that lived up to expectations as an evenly-matched showdown between conference pre-season favorites. "The fans were great, the officials did a super job and the players played a clean, hard game," explained Nelson. There was just one penalty called in the entire game, and that came in the dying moments.

When it was over, Plummer had a 2-0 North Tri-County Conference record with an open date this week. Grygla-Goodridge went home 1-1, 0-1 in the conference, with yet another key showdown Friday when the Blue Devils host Erskine-Mentor in a 3 p.m. game at Grygla. The Cougars were the third team mentioned in the preseason conference favorite triumvirate. Erskine-Mentor will be at Plummer the following week to continue the string of confrontations.

After a scoreless first half, Grygla-Goodridge struck in sudden fashion midway through the third quarter when quarterback Tony Wiseth and receiver Scott Groven connected on a nifty 50-yard touchdown pass. Doug Schulz added the two-point conversion for an 8-0 edge.

A key turn of events tied the game early in the fourth quarter. Facing a fourth-and-one from their own 20-yard line late in the third quarter, the Blue Devils elected to go for the first down and runningback Rick Mosher was stopped for no gain.

That set up a 1-yard Tim Gagner touchdown run for the Cardinals with 11:58 remaining and a Gagner two-point conversion pass to Duane Franklund to tie the game 8-8. A third down Gagner to Troy Gustafson pass play for a first down put Plummer in scoring position.

"We believed we could make it," explained Nelson in defense of the call to disdane the punt, "and if we didn't make it, we had confidence in our defense to hold them."

Neither happened.

Plummer looked like a certain bet to go ahead midway through the fourth quarter only to be stopped by a Grygla-Goodridge goal line stand after having a third-and-goal situation from the Blue Devils' 1-yard line. Ron Kiesow broke through to stop the fourth down play.

But Plummer kept Grygla-Goodridge pinned down, received a punt and set up by a 16-yard Mike Konickson run, got into position to score the game-winning touchdown.

It came on a second down try from the Grygla-Goodridge 5-yard line by Troy Gustafson in the final minute of play. Plummer had no time-outs left, and if Gustafson would have been stopped it would have made for a frantic finish.

Gustafson then intercepted a final Grygla-Goodridge pass to seal the victory.

"It was good team defense," reported Brantl as Plummer held Grygla-Goodridge to 90 yards rushing and 72 yards passing. Schultz was held to 58 yards on 13 carries and Wiseth was 3-for-8 passing. Sophomore tackle Gary Torkelson led the winners with 12 tackles, a fumble recovery and a quarterback sack.

"Gary did a super job both offensively and defensively," mentioned Brantl.

Linebacker Russ Fisher had six unassisted tackles and was in on eight other stops for the Cardinals.

Nelson was equally impressed with his defense. "I think you really have to praise our defense holding them to 14 points after they scored 40 the week before (a 40-14 Plummer win over McIntosh-Winger)." Mosher was credited with 24 tackles and Dale Verbout had 19.

Plummer did net 198 yards with a balanced running attack that found Konickson and Gustafson both rushing for 68 yards on 13 and 12 carries, respectively, while Gagner had 50 on a dozen tries. The Cardinals were 6-for-9 in the air for 40 yards.

"I'm really proud of the way they played in a situation where we haven't been before," said Brantl in reference to the Cardinals' non title-contending status in recent years.

"Our kids took it real tough," admitted Nelson, "but I don't think they have to hang their heads. They played well. Plummer is definitely in the driver's seat now, but the big thing for us is that we can't let down. We've got another tough one this week."

NUMBER ONE singles player for the Lincoln high school tennis team this fall is junior Michelle Olson, daughter of Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. Michelle reached for this shot against Moorhead's Vicki Gunhus during Thursday's dual meet competition on the Northland community college courts. She won 6-0, 6-0 as the Prowlers rolled to an easy 5-0 match triumph.

Swimmers Host Bemidji In Home Opener Tuesday

First home meet of the 1983 season for the Lincoln high school girls swimming team will be held Tuesday when the Prowlers host Bemidji in a 5 p.m. dual at the Franklin middle school pool.

Thief River Falls opened its schedule Saturday at the Fargo Shanley Relays where Minot was the winner with 316 points, followed by Jamestown with 270, Fergus Falls 214, Mandan 204, Park Rapids 202, Thief River Falls 194, West Fargo 144, Grand Forks Central 140, Bismarck Century 138, Fargo Shanley 128, Fargo North 120, Fargo South 114, Bismarck 110 and Grand Forks Red River 90.

Top Thief River Falls finishes were seconds in the 200 medley and 200 freestyle relays.

In the 200 medley, Michelle Puetz, Jill Lusignan, Connie Geatz and Brenda Russell swam a 2:08.79. In the 200 freestyle, Russell, Tammy Gunderson, Pete Kuyath and Janelle Smidt turned in a 1:57.31.

Divers Teri Klopp and Rochelle Sandstrom were seventh place finishers, but individually their scores already qualified them for post-season Minnesota Section 3 meet berths.

"The girls turned in excellent times for our first meet. We had a fine showing," said Thief River Falls assistant coach Jody Dallmann.

DETROIT LAKES' Chad Meyhoff wanted to throw the ball on a halfback option, but Thief River Falls defensive end Jeff Langan instead sacked him for a five-yard loss in the first half of the Prowlers' 20-0 victory over the Lakers Friday.

Area Volleyball . . .

Nordics Defeat Rival Skippers

Marshall County Central controlled play Thursday in an 18-6, 18-8 high school volleyball win over rival Middle River at Newfolden.

"We were up for the match. We set the ball up for the hitters real well," explained coach Julie Tunheim of the Norjdcs, who played poorly in a season-opening loss to Stephen earlier in the week.

Top hitter for the winners was junior Jodi Nelson, who had five ace spikes. Sophomore Becky Knutson and senior Nancy Nelson had three each, and Nelson was the team leader with eight assists off her sets.

Senior Stacey Gonshorowski was the top scorer for the Nordics with 13 service points, including three aces. Senior Shelly Anderson served nine points and had five aces.

Marshall County Central will host Grygla Tuesday and visit Roseau Thursday in a pair of key North Border Conference matches. Middle River, also 1-1 for the year after a season-opening win over Goodridge last Tuesday, will be at Grygla tonight (Monday), then host Badger Tuesday and entertain Lake of the Woods Thursday.

Grygla — Roseau

Grygla outlasted Roseau 18-15 in the first game and then used the momentum en route to an easy 18-5 second game victory Thursday in a 2-0 win over the visiting Rams.

It was the Eagles' 1983 home opener and boosted their record to 2-0.

"We played well," mentioned Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer. "Our serving came through in the pressure situations."

First game was close throughout, with Roseau owning a 15-14 lead before Grygla scored the final four points for the win.

Senior setter Kim Sistad was credited with 10 assists for the winners, who tackle a pair of top-rated North Border Conference opponents in back-to-back assignments this week, hosting Middle River tonight (Monday) and playing Marshall County Central at Newfolden Tuesday.

Plummer — Goodridge

Plummer opened its 1983 season with an 18-11, 18-1 home court victory over Goodridge Thursday.

Junior Lori Braaten had 11 service points for the Cardinals, with senior Jodi Malwitz serving eight. Junior Jody Pahlen racked up eight kill spikes.

Sophomore Jennie Boutain had four service points for Goodridge, 0-2 for the year.

Both teams will be in action Tuesday when Plummer hosts Climax and Goodridge visits East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

Prowlers Play At Alvarado On Tuesday Night

Lincoln high school volleyball team, 1-1 for the season after beating Detroit Lakes and losing to Warren in a pair of home matches, will be on the road for the first time Tuesday when the Prowlers play a 7:30 p.m. match at Alvarado.

Competition starts with C squad action at 5:30, followed by the junior varsity match at 6:30.

Thief River Falls returns home to host Fosston Thursday in another 7:30 p.m. start for the varsity.

A roster change that wasn't reflected on the program resulted in a mistaken identity during Tuesday's Thief River Falls vs. Warren match. Game story and photograph appearing in The Times on Wednesday identified the Prowlers' No. 5 as Jackie Kramer, a senior who was sidelined with an injury. Wearing No. 5 and playing well for the Prowlers was actually sophomore Pauline Lindberg.

Cross Country Race Canceled At Grand Forks

Thursday's scheduled Grand Forks invitational high school cross country meet was canceled by race officials, leaving Thief River Falls with an open date on the schedule.

Next race for the Prowlers, who opened the 1983 season last Tuesday at Roseau, will be at the Crookston invitational Thursday beginning at 4:30 p.m.

LEGAL NOTICE

September 12
October 10, 1983
Notice of Public Hearing
Pursuant to the provisions of Title 23 United States Code, Section 128, notice is hereby given that the Minnesota Department of Transportation/ Operations Division, is affording a public hearing to discuss the location and design features of improvements to Trunk Highway 59 between Atlantic Ave. and First St. in Thief River Falls.
The public hearing will be held at the Thief River Falls City Auditorium on October 17 at 7:30 p.m. and is sponsored by the City of Thief River Falls.
The project will involve complete reconstruction of the roadway with the same basic design as the existing roadway. Changes to the existing design will be as follows:
1. Four lanes of traffic will be carried from Atlantic Ave. to the divided roadway section. The roadway width will be about 52 feet compared to the 32 foot width at the present bridge.
2. The roadways along the divided section will be four feet wider than the existing roadways.
3. The intersection with Davis Ave. and Red Lake Boulevard will be modified.
4. Intersections at Pine Ave., Spruce Ave., and Mussey St. will be modified.
5. Sidewalks will be preserved and extended to First St.
A bridge repair project will be tied to this project and involves replacing the superstructure of the bridge over the Red Lake River and widening the deck to accommodate four lanes of traffic and two sidewalks.
The Department of Transportation and the City of Thief River Falls will share the cost to replace the storm sewer system beneath the roadway as part of this project.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — I have a 10 per cent service-connected disability on my knee. I recently applied for Veterans administration vocational rehabilitation and was turned down. I thought everyone with a service-connected disability was eligible for 48 months of training from the VA?

A — VA vocational rehabilitation is to assist a veteran in overcoming an employment handicap caused by his service-connected disability. If it is determined that your service-connected disability is not a handicap to gainful employment, you are not guaranteed this benefit.

Q — What is the current Veterans administration work-study program and what is the current hourly rate?

A — Work-study is a program available to full-time students enrolled in school under either the Vietnam GI bill or the vocational rehabilitation program. The work is performed in VA-related activities at an hourly rate of $3.35. A veteran may work up to a maximum of 750 hours per year.

Q — My father who is a World War I veteran had to go into a nursing home due to a stroke. Since the cost of his care is so expensive, is there some way for the Veterans administration to increase his pension?

A — If your father is receiving intermediate or skilled nursing care, he can be eligible for additional monetary benefits called "aid and attendance." Additionally, his medical expenses can be used as a deduction to reduce his countable income which can, in turn, raise his VA pension. A letter from the nursing home should be submitted to the VA explaining the level of care, date of admission, and per day charges for his care.

Not all flowers attract bees and butterflies, in hopes of being pollinated, with the allure of sweet smelling scents, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. The skunk cabbage attracts flies with the help of its foul smelling odor like that of rotten meat mixed with skunk spray and garlic.

Typical city dweller, without even thinking about it, is breathing millions of dust particles each day. Every cubic inch of air in a large city, says National Wildlife magazine, can be contaminated with as many as three million dust particles.

State Football Coaching Mark Changes Hands

Fairmont's Tom Mahoney was in position to tie a Minnesota's all-time record for most wins by a high school head football coach if his Cardinals beat Worthington Friday night in Fairmont.

Mahoney, who is in his 28th year as head coach at Fairmont after five seasons at Lake City, was in position to tie the late Kenneth "Red" Wilson's record of 212 wins achieved during a span of 38 years at Fosston, Little Falls and the last 34 at Bemidji high school before he retired in the late 60's.

During his 32-year career Mahoney had compiled a 211-70-8 record going into Friday's game while Wilson's mark was 212-83-8. Only two other men in Minnesota football coaching history — at the high school, college or pro level — have won more games than Wilson. St. John's University coach John Gagliardi won 218 and Vikings coach Bud Grant won 276 coming into last week's schedule.

Mahoney's team opened its season with a 19-0 victory over St. Anthony and were favored to win vs. Worthington and again this week when they play host to Blue Earth.

No other Minnesota prep football coach other than Wilson and Mahoney has won as many as 200 games, but one coach, LeSueur's Bruce Frank is closing in on that figure. Frank, now in his 36th year of coaching and 29th at LeSueur, had compiled a 197-96-12 record through the first week of the 1983 season.

All five of the state's defending state football champions opened seasons with victories. Class AA titlist Stillwater blanked South St. Paul 48-0; Class A winner Brooklyn Center beat St. Agnes 34-22; Class B victor LeCenter shutout Fairbault Bethlehem Academy 34-0; Class C champion Truman stopped Sleepy Eye St. Mary's 7-0; and Westbrook, No. 1 in the Nine-Man division last year, recorded a 40-0 triumph over Sioux Valley-Round Lake for its 14th straight win, the longest winning streak in the state.

Brooklyn Center's Kermit Klefsaas, who holds Prep Bowl rushing and passing records, scored all of his team's 34 points in that win over St. Agnes. A senior halfback, the 6-for-2, 195-pound Klefsaas scored n runs of 3, 19, 1, 55 and 45 yards and kicked four extra points. He ran for 153 yards, four more than his Prep Bowl record, in 13 carries. Last season he rushed for 1,500 yards and 22 touchdowns.

Longest opening week game was four overtimes as Houston beat Lewiston 18-12. State record is five overtimes — occured six times. There 232 games scheduled last week, four on Thursday, 223 on Friday and five more Saturday.

Those were all race sponsors.

LHS Football Freshmen Are Beaten 30-14

East Grand Forks built a 22-0 first half lead en route to a 30-14 freshman high school football win over visiting Thief River Falls Thursday.

It was the 1983 season opener for the visitors who trailed at the quarter breaks 8-0, 22-0 and 24-8.

Thief River Falls scored in the third quarter on a 55-yard Grif Newland to Rod Heinrichs touchdown pass and scored in the fourth quarter on a 50-yard Newland touchdown pass to Nathan Dalager. Newland added the two-point conversion after the first touchdown.

Next start for Thief River Falls will be on Thursday when Crookston will be here for a 4:15 p.m. game.

Hunting And Fishing Day Display Noted

Thief River Falls regional library is the site of a display and film check out service established in support of national hunting and fishing day which is Saturday, September 24. The display, which was set up by area U.S. fish and wildlife service and Minnesota department of natural resources personnel, includes an assortment of brochures, posters and animal mounts.

Also available are two films for check out through the library. One is a 20-minute slide-tape film titled "The Unendangered Species". This film presents facts about the role of sport hunting in today's wildlife management. It is considered highly educational and recommended for teachers, sportsmen's clubs and group leaders.

The other film is on waterfowl identification and titled "Ducks on the Wing". This 57-minute film will increase the serious waterfowler's ability to recognize major species of ducks. The film uses a technique of stopping action of the birds in flight to pinpoint distinguishing characteristics. Viewers can examine their abilities to identify waterfowl by means of a quiz format.

The display and films will be maintained at the library through September 26. The public is invited to use the films and view the display.

Food Shortage Predicted As Result Of CO2

by Deane Morrison
U M News Service

Carbon dioxide (CO2) won't poison you directly, but a scientist at the University of Minnesota warns that if increases in atmospheric carbon dioxide are not curtailed soon, the world could face a food shortage of unprecedented severity in the next century.

This and other dire environmental consequences could occur because of the greenhouse effect, a predicted warming of the earth caused by increases in atmospheric carbon dioxide, which absorbs heat escaping from the earth's surface and radiates it back downward. Peter Ciborowski, a graduate student researcher in the university's Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs, studies the greenhouse effect and he's more than a little concerned.

"It's frightening," Ciborowski said. "When the air warms and precipitation does not significantly increase, soils dry out. If CO2 levels continue increasing at their present rate, soils in the major grain belts will eventually dry until they can no longer support their present crops. Favorable temperatures and soil moisture conditions for those crops will shift to more northern areas, where the soils are unsuitable for their cultivation. Result could be major losses of farmland.

"Global climatic models predict a severe intensification of the dry season, especially January to April, in subtropical regions where much of the world's population lives," he said. "Many subtropical nations, for example, Ethiopia, probably would have great difficulty adapting to such a change."

Major signal from nature of the potential environmental impact — a significant warming or polar ice melting — could help mobilize worldwide action in time to prevent such effects, but such a signal has yet to appear. Sensitive measurements taken from the top of Mauna Loa colcano in Hawaii, however, show that atmospheric carbon dioxide levels have already risen 17 to 21 per cent over pre-industrial 1880 levels, and some scientists have detected a very slight warming of about one-half degree Fahrenheit, Cibrowski said.

Increasing rate at which fossil fuels (primarily coal, oil and natural gas) are being burned is the major cause of the rise in CO2 levels, he said. If this acceleration continues, the amount of CO2 in the atmosphere could double by the year 2050, causing the average global temperature to rise seven degrees Fahrenheit. Thermal effects of increases in other, rarer greenhouse gases, such as nitrous oxide, methane and tropospheric ozone, may push the rise to 12 degrees, he said.

Large-scale clearing of forests, particularly rain forests, also contributes to the problem. During photosynthesis trees remove CO2 from the atmosphere and incorporate it into materials that make up most of the trees' mass. When trees are cut and burned, CO2 is released. If mature trees are regularly harvested for burning and new trees are allowed to mature and replace them, there will be no net change in atmospheric CO2 levels. But, when forests are permanently cleared and burned, release of the CO2 locked up in the wood produces a net increase in atmospheric CO2.

Most investigators agree that some upper limit should be placed on atmospheric CO2 levels, but have yet to agree on what that limit should be. The lower the limit, the sooner nations must initiate policies to slow the increase in fossil fuel consumption.

Scientists at the institute for energy analysis in Oak Ridge, TN, have speculated that 600 parts per million (ppm), slightly less than twice the current level of approximately 340 ppm, may be the lowest feasible ceiling. To maintain such a ceiling, annual increases in the global consumption of fossil fuels would have to be slowed starting around the year 2000.

Ciborowski, and others at the Humphrey Institute think the ceiling should be about 450 ppm, which still might cause as much as five to seven degree rise in temperature, with a long-term polar ice melt and a shift in crop zones. Two researchers at Oak Ridge have calculated that a ceiling of 500 ppm would make it necessary to implement control measures by 1990. In that case, nations have only six years to reach a consensus on allocating the burdens reducing CO2 emissions. A longer wait would mean sharper reductions and less time to implement them.

Figures from 1974 show that industrialized countires of the West, the Soviet bloc and Japan are responsible for 75 per cent of CO2 emissions, Cibrorowski said. But Oak Ridge projections of total fossil fuel emissions give a different picture for the year 2025. Those figures indicate that the share contributed by developing countries, including China and other Asian nations, will rise to 50 per cent by 2025 if they continue their current five to six per cent annual growth in fossil fuel consumption. They will suffer most if CO2 production is not curtailed, so perhaps they will have to take measures to control it, even if it means slower development, he said.

Initiative for change must come from industrialized countries, particularly the United States, Western Europe and Japan, which have the best research and development capabilicies. Unfortunately, there is presently no economically feasible technical fix for this problem. Carbon dioxide is an unavoidable product of fossil fuel combustion, and cost to remove it from smokestacks could be prohibitive. And, Ciborowski said, it may take 50 years for another energy source to capture 50 per cent of the world energy market.

"Only feasible means to hold CO2 below a ceiling are to decrease the rate of growth in fossil fuel consumption and to begin a net decrease in the use of fossil fuels," he said.

If coal use is to be reduced, synthetic fuels and oil shale consumption should not increase, because that would offset the gains from conservation in other areas. For a given energy production, coal and synfuels made from coal emit much more carbon dioxide when burned than do oil and natural gas.

Library Buying Video-Discs, Seeks Input

Northwest regional library in Thief River Falps is purchasing a video-disc recorder and 30 video-discs for check-out. Public input is sought in disc selection.

Video-disc catalog and selection voting sheets will be available at the circulation (front) desk. Patrons who wish to vote may do so by marking down their selections and leaving them at the circulation desk. Patron voting will be held September 12 to 16.

The Times — A Great Gift!

POWER STAPLERS are used at the occupational development center in Thief River Falls where workers are assembling shipping crates for Arctco, Inc. The center has a contract to supply 2,700 crates and has been operating two shifts for the past three weeks to stay ahead of the demand. The crates are assembled in three areas — one each for sides, tops and ends.

Volks March Set Sept. 24 Near Vergas

Red River Volkssport association and the Lake Agassiz Camp Fire Council will be sponsoring a volks march on Saturday, September 24, at Camp Trowbridge, near Vergas.

This non-competitive walk is designed to promote fellowship and healthful outdoor exercise, and families are encouraged to participate. The marked 10 kilometer trail will start and end at Camp Trowbridge, and is in a beautiful wooded area. Patricipants may start any time between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., but must finish by 3 p.m. Those desiring to walk 20 kilometers may walk the trail twice. Event will be held regardless of the weather.

Open to the public, the event is free, but those who pay a registration fee and complete the walk will receive an embroidered patch which uses symbols to tell the story of volksmarching. Participants registering by September 16 will receive the patch at a discount.

Round trip bus transportation between Moorhead and Camp Trowbridge will be furnished if paid reservations are made by September 16. Brochures with registration forms and detailed information are available in Fargo-Moorhead public libraries and from the chambers of commerce. For further information call Alice Underbakke, president of the Red River Volkssport association at 236-9391 or 237-0210, or Catherine Chatelain at 293-6772.

Farm Worker Numbers Down From Year Ago

Minnesota's total farm employment during the survey week of July 10-16 totaled 186,000 workers, down 13 per cent from a year ago. Self-employed and other unpaid workers who worked 15 hours or more accounted for 72 per cent (133,000) of the Minnesota total while hired workers represented the remaining 53,000 employees, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Employment on United States farms during the survey week at 4.1 million workers is six per cent less than the corresponding week last year. Hired workers represented 45 per cent (1.8 million) of the total while farm operators and other unpaid workers accounted for the remaining 2.3 million.

Minnesota's self-employed farm operators worked an average of 52.3 hours and unpaid workers 41.9 hours during the July survey week. Hired workers averaged 27.9 hours.

For the United States, the self-employed farm operator averaged 48.8 hours, 1.3 hours more than in July of 1982. The other unpaid workers averaged 40.8 hours for the week, up 1.7 hours from July of 1982. Hired workers on the farm averaged 36.4 hours for the week compared to 33.4 in July of 1982.

Minnesota farm wages for all hired workers averaged $3.58 per hour. Field workers averaged $3.16 per hour, while livestock workers averaged $3.78. For the U.S., hired workers averaged $4.12 per hour, up 12 cents from 1982.

Business In Disaster Area May Get Loan

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer this week urged small and medium-sized businesses affected by the weather disasters of the past few years to apply for assistance through a special, federal small business administration (SBA) program of low-interest recovery loans.

"The SBA has a program called the economic injury disaster loan (EIDL) program, which is set up to provide assistance to businesses that have been hit directly or indirectly by the weather disasters in our region through 1982," Stumpf explained. According to the SBA, businesses that apply for this assistance for losses incurred during 1982 have nine months from the declaration date of the disaster to apply.

"This program is available to areas where a disaster has been declared. Red Lake and Pennington counties qualify for this aid through 1982," Stumpf said. "If an area is declared to be a disaster, then qualifying businesses are eligible for disaster loans of up to $500,000, at an interest rate of eight per cent for a 30-year period."

Stumf noted that local implement dealers especially should be interested in applying for this relief, since they are among the hardest hit businesses affected by the agricultural disaster in the area.

"Why should these businesses pay commercial rates upwards of 14 or 16 per cent when they can get more reasonable interest rates through SBA'?" he asked.

The loans available are "working capital" loans only, he explained, and can only be used by firms proving economic damage caused by the disaster. They will not be firms that are credit-worthy enough to secure available credit from another leading institution. "The program is not intended to subvert our commercial lending industry," Stumpf added.

Under the program, SBA is authorized to refinance short-term notes, accounts payable, installments and delinquency in payments if it is related to a disaster. SBA must first review the personal and financial statements of the applicants and the availability of other assets will be taken into consideration by an SBA loan officer in reviewing the loan request.

"As I understand the program," Stumf added, "the loans may not be used to pay cash dividends, and the pledging of collateral is required to the extent possible. Unfortunately, farmers are not eligible for this program and they must first seek assistance from the Farmers Home administration (FmHA)."

A SBA official said that applicants for this relief should be expected to submit balance sheets and operating statements for the period in question.

Businesses wishing to apply for this loan assistance should contact: Small Business Administration, Area No. 2 Disaster Office, 75 Spring St. S.W., Room 822, Atlanta Ga., 30303, or call 1-(404)-221-5822.

Heart Clinic For Children Set October 5

Children with heart problems can attend a cardiac clinic October 5, at United Methodist church in Thief River Falls.

General Federation of womens' clubs and the Minnesota department of health are sponsoring a clinic for any Minnesota child under age 21 with a heart murmur, congenital heart problem, or history of rheumatic fever. Clinic sponsors recommend that each new participant get a written referral from a doctor.

Pediatric cardiologists will examine each child who attends the clinic. Parents will be able to consult with a public health nurse, medical social worker, registered dietitian, and registered dental hygienist.

Parents should make appointments for the clinic at least two weeks in advance, by calling Mrs. Robert Peterson at 681-4097.

Attendance At '83 State Fair Shows Increase

The 1983 Minnesota state fair attracted 1,347,684 visitors during its 12-day run August 25 through September 5. That total represents an increase of 26,099 over last year's total attendance. Single-day attendance record was set September 2 when 116,566 visitors attended the fair. Previous record for that date was 115,368, set in 1982.

Also established this year was a new standard for average attendance at evening grandstand performances. Total of 148,641 people attended 15 grandstand stage shows, setting a record average mark of 9,910 spectators at each performance. Previous high average was 9,675, set in 1982.

Mike Heffron, general manager of the state fair, said "We are very pleased with the '83 state fair. Attendance was better than our expectations, given the hot, humid weather followed by rain. We are particularly pleased with the attendance at all of our grandstand events.

"Free attractions at the fair were also highly-successful," Heffron added. "Free stages and other special attractions were operating to capacity crowds throughout the exposition."

New York "Sex Number" Hikes Telephone Bill

A Thief River Falls area parent whose $290 telephone bill contained a number of calls to a New York City number has asked that a warning be given to other parents in the area who could be faced with a somewhat similar situation.

The New York number is apparently listed in so-called "adult" magazines and callers receive sexual messages, the parent said. A complaint to the telephone company brought the response that the company can not attempt to censor material obtained by a caller on a voluntary basis.

Young people apparently are led to believe the calls can be placed free of charge, the parent noted, and therefore the likelihood of frequent calls being made is greater. Repeated calls placed from that parent's household resulted in the high phone bill which the telephone subscriber is obligated to pay.

Parents may wish to check their telephone bills for long distance calls with an area code 212 prefix, the parent suggested. Possibility of passing the number from student to student — along with the misinformation that the calls are free — could result in an unexpected and unwanted telephone service bill.

Nine Killed In County Through Crashes In '82

Nine people died in traffic accidents in Pennington county last year, with another 138 injured, according to statistics released by the Minnesota department of public safety. Total number of crashes in the county was 249, with eight of those resulting in fatalities, 94 resulting in personal injuries, and 147 resulting in property damage.

Statistics further show that four Minnesota counties made it through 1982 without recording a single traffic accident death. Those counties were Clearwater, Lake of the Woods, Sibley and Swift. For Lake of the Woods, it was the second consecutive year without a fatality due to a motor vehicle crash.

At the other end of the scale, more populous counties had poorer records. Hennepin led the list with 71 traffic fatalities, followed by Ramsey with 41 and Scott with 38.

Kittson county had the fewest motor vehicle collisions at 59, resulting in one death and 31 injuries. Lake of the Woods county was close behind with 60 crashes, no deaths and 29 injured.

Records of other surrounding counties included: Beltrami, with 584 crashes resulting in seven fatalities and 264 injured; Clearwater, with 94 crashes resulting in no fatalities and 50 injured; Lake of the Woods, with 60 crashes resulting in 0 fatalities and 29 injured; Marshall, with 119 crashes resulting in two fatalities and 52 injured; Norman, with 90 crashes resulting in one fatality and 29 injured; Polk, with 613 crashes resulting in six fatalities and 268 injured; and Red Lake county with 63 crashes resulting in two fatalities and 33 injured.

VOLUNTEER TRAINING for workers in the Thief River Falls United Way was conducted Tuesday evening at Redeemer Lutheran church by Ron Voltan, Grand Forks, an executive with the United Way of America. It was the first time the local United Way has conducted a training session with professional assistance. In the foreground of the photo above are Dave Odette, chairman and Sharon Fugleberg, executive secretary of the local United Way. Making presentations from the standpoint of participating agencies were Darla Twomey of the Northwest Hospice program and Henrietta Ness from the occupational development center. Official campaign kick-off will be Monday with a breakfast for all volunteers at the Best Western Inn at 7 a.m. Volunteers who were unable to attend the training session last night should pick up their materials packets at the breakfast Monday. "Make It Happen" is the theme of the local United Way this year with a goal of $80,124 to be raised. Canvassing of the business area will be conducted by the 140 volunteers and no residential campaign is planned. Persons not contacted in the business drive or directly by mail as a previous donor may send their contributions to the Thief River Falls United Way at P.O. Box 276, Thief River Falls.

Hospital Asks $56,000 To Subsidize Ambulance

Pennington county commissioners were on familiar ground Tuesday afternoon, fielding another request for a huge increase in appropriations for a worthwhile cause. This time it was the ambulance service at Northwestern hospital, which is seeking a county subsidy more than four times greater than a year ago.

Robert Stevens, associate administrator at the hospital, presented the hospital board's request for a 1984 subsidy from the county of $56,000. This year the hospital is receiving $12,132 and the county board had previously approved an increase to $16,000 for 1984. If the subsidy requests isn't available, Stevens said, the hospital favors selling the ambulance service to a private operator.

A capsule financial statement was presented to the county board which showed that projected expense of the ambulance service in 1984 would be $172,266 and patient revenue would be only $89,107, leaving a net loss for the service of $88,159. If 80 per cent of the indirect expenses of the service ($18,040) were deducted as probably existing whether the service was operated or not, and if employee replacement saved $10,000, the county subsidy of $56,000 would still result in a $4,119 operating loss.

The service presently operates with six full-time trained attendants with two on duty at all times during 16 hours of the day. For the other eight hours of the day, attendants are on call. Stevens said a replacement ambulance service would probably operate with a maximum of three full-time people, all of which would likely have other duties when not on ambulance runs.

"We are not interested in operating the ambulance service at less than its present level," Stevens said. "There are three options here. The first is that we recover our costs through the $56,000 subsidy and continue to operate at the present high level. The second is that we cut back on personnel to three and attempt to operate with volunteer assistance. The third is that we sell the service to a private operator."

Stevens said the hospital board and administration recognizes the budget constraints of the county board and realizes that the funding requested may not be available. "If that is the case, we would pursue the third

REQUEST FOR SUBSIDY of $56,000 for the Northwestern Hospital ambulance service for 1984 was presented to the Pennington county board of commissioners on Tuesday. Associate administrator Robert Stevens (right) made the request at a regular meeting of the board, noting that the amount was needed to allow the hospital to continue its present level of service. Left to right in the foreground are Ken Olson, county auditor; David Olin, county attorney; and Otto Stenberg, commissioner. In the background are Roy Daniels, supervisor of the ambulance service; Edmund Keimig, chief financial officer; and Jesse Beaucage, emergency medical technician with the ambulance service.

MEDICAL CHIEF OF STAFF at Northwestern hospital, Dr. George Martin, explained the advantages of the present ambulance service to the Pennington county board of commissioners Tuesday afternoon. He noted that 85 per cent of heart attack victims die before reaching a hospital, and that well over 50 per cent of those who reach a hospital survive. Care provided in the ambulance can frequently keep the victim alive until reaching the hospital, and the ability to respond immediately to a call shortens the time span required to reach the hospital.

Mediation Noted By School Board

Thief River Falls board of education reviewed its negotiations schedule and strike plan, arranged a committee to work the police department on student chemical abuse, rescinded a previous motion on charging a towel fee and conducted a wide variety of other business at its regular meeting Monday evening in the school district service center.

Supt. Robert Block noted that the first mediation session with faculty representatives of the Thief River Falls Education association has been slated for October 6 at 9 a.m. Six negotiations sessions have been held so far and at the fifth session the TRFEA requested mediation and the board concurred.

At the most recent session last week, the board offered the previous year's contract language with minimal changes, Supt. Block said, and an increase of two per cent per year for a two-year contract, including benefits. That proposal was rejected by the TRFEA, which countered with a request for language changes, a 19 per cent increase in salary plus annual increments plus health insurance increases. Supt. Block said the request would total in excess of 25 per cent for the two-year contract and was rejected by the board.

The district strike plan was discussed so that board members not serving during the 23-day teacher strike in 1981 would be familiar with how the district would handle student safety, transportation and administrative duties in the event of a walk-out.

A negotiating session with administrators is scheduled for this Friday at 7 a.m. and a session with bus drivers is scheduled for today at 5:30 p.m. Sessions are also expected to be scheduled soon with aides and confidential employees units. A committee consisting of board members

City Bill Cut For Airport FBO

Thief River Falls city council agreed to make concessions to Outer Limits Airways, Inc., heard a proposal for building of new softball diamonds, and discussed an ordinance which would change the way sewer and water main replacements are paid for; among other business conducted at their regular meeting last night in council chambers at city auditorium.

Noting that "fixed base operators (FBOs) are" having a tough time at smaller airports across the country," Mayor Bob Carlson reported that the airport committee had agreed to reconsider its August 9 decision asking that Outer Limits Airways pay the city $1,625 in delinquent accounts by August 31, or lose its lease. Commenting that the city would not have a very attractive airport without a fixed base operator," Carlson noted that the company had invested a lot of time and money in providing the service, with economic conditions having a bad effect on their revenues.

In exchange for the FBO's agreeing to provide custodial services in the pilots' lounge and the FBO office, the airport committee agreed to make the following concessions: (1) forgiveness of the $200 monthly payment from August 1 through December 31, 1983; (2) reduction of the car rental fee from $125 to $50 per month for the last five months of 1983; (3) eliminating the $7,500 minimum payment for 1983, unless the present delinquent amount of $1,625 was still outstanding on December 31; (4) delinquent payments covering March through July of 1983 are to be paid by December 31. It was agreed that the original lease would again be reinstated as of January 1, 1984, with car rental remaining at $50 per month during 1984.

Noting that the city had had four unsuccessful FBOs over the years, council agreed to take the airport committee recommendation, but discussed the possibility of using city personnel to provide limited service, or seeking bids for fixed base operator services if concessions did not relieve the problem.

Parks and recreation department supervisor Mike Mongoven, with assistance from Dennis Bendickson, president of the slow pitch softball association, reported

New Trustees Elected At Northwestern Hospital

Members of Northwestern Hospital association in Thief River Falls elected three new members and reelected one member to the board of trustees at the annual meeting conducted Monday evening at the Best Western Inn. There were 270 members present and voting at the annual meeting.

Chris Twomey, secretary of the board, was reelected to a second three-year term. Newly elected were Angeline Steinhauer, who topped all candidates in the regular board election with 132 votes, and Dale Dillon, who received 128 votes. Twomey was reelected with 129. Dr. Arnold Berg received the most votes in the election (159) in a two-way race with Dr. Duane Davidson to be the new medical staff member of the board.

Defeated in reelection bids were board chairman Roger Reuter and treasurer Darrell Bakke. Other candidates were Rodney Brodin, nominated by the nominating committee, and Morris Howick, nominated by petition.

Other members of the board who continue to serve include Clyde Christensen, vice chairman; Dr. Jerome Bray, Evadell Tangquist, Frances Stromberg, William Hogan, Arthur Tranby, Rev. Richard Larson and Kenneth Froschheiser.

The hospital board will be faced with a number of challenges in the near future, not the least of which will be maintaining a successful financial operation. Despite an increase in patient days during the fiscal year, the hospital had an operational loss of $126,945 and a decrease in working capital of $140,649, according to the report by Edmund Keimig, chief financial officer.

"Our unfavorable performance was influenced by new or more restricted government regulations," Keimig said. "As the cost of health care increases, due to a number of factors such as increased technology, both the federal and state governments become less willing or able to reimburse health care institutions the cost of the care that people covered under the Medicare or Medicaid programs are receiving. During 1983, there was a difference of $1,098,000 between what patients covered under the Medicare program received in services and the payment that we received from Medicare."

Keimig said the foremost challenge in upcoming years will be response of the hospital to new and restrictive government regulations in such a way that the hospital obtains sufficient funds to

Wildlife Art Show Planned This Saturday

Second annual wildlife art show, sponsored by the Agassiz environmental education council, will be held Saturday at the Falls Mall.

Among artists featured in this year's show is Mary Anne Kinane, East Grand Forks, where subjects include Minnesota birds, prairies, lakes, farms and nature scenes done in pen and ink and acrylic paint.

Kinane has received numerous awards for her work at shows in New York City, Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks, Plainswoman magazine and Red River Valley winter shows.

Robert Bear, Northome, features oil paintings of cliff swallows, whitetail deer and owls. Bear is presently working as an illustrator; supervisor of graphic arts in Grand Forks, ND.

Getting down to the "essence" of watercolor painting is important to artist Terry Palm, Orr. "While I enjoy seeing some of the oils and acrylics, nothing compares to doing a wet-on-wash and watching it flow over the paper, creating unusual and nearly unpredictable effects," Terry says.

He describes his lifestyle as "paint and go." Palm travels to about 20 shows each year, exhibiting at one-man, group, invitational and juried events in Minnesota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and the Dakotas. Remaining time is spent photographing and researching the subjects of his watercolors, completing commissioned works and presenting demonstrations and workshops.

Candyce Tunheim And Brian Wells Wed Here

Candyce Elizabeth Tunheim, daughter of Mr. Purnell Tunheim, became the bride of Brian Jay Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wells, rural Goodridge, at a recent mid-afternoon wedding at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the double ring ceremony. LaVonne Masters was the organist. During the ceremony Jackie Helms sang "Up Where We Belong," "You and I," and "Wedding Song." In keeping with the bride's chosen colors, purple carnations graced the altar, purple candles accented the candelabra and lavender bows marked the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Jay Tunheim, was attired in a white lace gown styled with a scooped neckline, long full sleeves, and a hooped, tiered skirt with cathedral-length train. At the neckline, she wore her mother's pearls. Her waist-length veil edged with lace was held by a coordinating lace headpiece. She carried a cascade of leaender carnations, white roses tipped in lavender, babies' breath and greenery.

Renee Brand, St. Paul, attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Angela Steiger, Rose Grisanti and Shelly Hanson, friends of the bride. All wore lavender floor-length gowns topped by lace jackets with three-quarter length sleeves. Their fans with lavender carnations and white roses tipped in lavender, accented the lavender carnations with streamers that were pinned in their hair in back.

Flower girl was Kari Tunheim, niece of the bride. She wore a long white gown with lavender trim. The rings were carried by Kevin Jenkins, a nephew of the groom. He wore a white tuxedo with a lavender shirt.

Brent Wells, Goodridge, a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Jack Miller, Richard Holen and David Olson, friends of the groom. Gary Tunheim, brother of the bride, and Terry Wells, brother of the groom, served as ushers. All wore silver tuxedos with lavender shirts, completed by white carnation boutonnieres accented by lavender baby roses.

The mother of the bride wore a blue floor-length gown; and the groom's mother was attired in a pink floor-length gown. Their identical corsages were of white carnations and lavender rosebuds.

Honor guests were Agnes Tunheim and Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Lanska.

The bride's personal attendants were Judy Tunheim and Kathi Jenkins.

A reception for approximately 175 relatives and friends followed in the church parlors. Candi Wells was at the guest book, Regina Grisanti and Nikki Olson ladled the punch and Amy Gronvold and Kristine Jenkins arranged the gifts.

Centering the serving table was a seven-tiered chocolate and white wedding cake decorated with lavender roses, love birds and wedding bells. On the stairway that graced the side were miniature replicas of the wedding party.

The cake was cut and served by Marion Sjulestad and Bernice Stinar. Manerva Butt and Laney Olson poured the coffee. Waitresses were Tammy Wells, Michele Hutchinson and Venesa Hutchinson.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Hardees. The groom, a graduate of Goodridge high school, is engaged in farming. Following a wedding trip to Minneapolis, the couple is at home in rural Goodridge. Photo, Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Haugen, Grygla

August Events At Oakland Park Home Reviewed

Birthday celebrations, private Sunday dinners with special guests, and numerous programs provided entertainment during the month of August for the residents at Oakland Park Nursing home.

Those noting birthdays in August were honor guests at the monthly birthday party held August 30 at the home. Members of the Elizabeth circle of Zion Lutheran church hosted the party and also provided a musical program. Residents honored and the date of their birth were Kathryn Duis, Aug. 1, 1896; Daniel Danielson, Aug. 1, 1892; Louie Meyer, Aug. 2, 1896; Ernest Erickson, Aug. 8, 1907; Olga Hess, Aug. 12, 1892; Olga Hulme, Aug. 24, 1898 and Paul Anderson, Aug. 27, 1899.

On their respective birthdays, Louis Meyer observed the event with his family and friends; Olga Hess marked the occasion with her family serving cake and ice cream to the residents and staff; and Olga Hulme's family noted her birthday by serving birthday cake and ice cream cups.

During the month, four residents hosted private Sunday dinners. The dates, hosts and guests were: August 7, Waino Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Olson; August 14, Ole Ness, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Haroldson; August 21, Anna Myhrer, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peterson, August 28, Carol Urdahl, Mr. and Mrs. Al Sollom.

Other special events included a gospel musical program presented by the Kings Men; vocal and instrumental selections including Hank Williams tunes by Raymond Husker and his grandfather; a musical program by the Black River 4-H club; an afternoon program given by the Rhythm band; and accordion music provided by Harold Nabben during the Home's Happy Hour. Mary Lundquist of Middle River visited the home one afternoon, showing slides of her missionary work in Morogora, Tanzania, East Africa. She also displayed articles made by the people of that country. Members of the Martha circle of Trinity Lutheran church spent an afternoon visiting with the residents. They served assorted breads to the residents and staff for the afternoon lunch.

Of special interest was the ice cream social held at the home on August 23. As a special feature, homemade ice cream in several flavors was served. In making ice cream, electric and hand-cranked freezers were used.

Visiting clergy during August were Rev. Van Deusen of the Viking Covenant church; Rev. Berton Hushagen of Trinity, who served communion; Rev. Tim Miller of Plummer, Rev. Curtis Anderson of the Evangelical Free church, Rev. Dyrud of Newfolden, Rev. Duaine Espeseth of this city and Rev. Raynard Huglen of Newfolden.

The monthly bowling game with Valley Home team concluded with Oakland winning 402 over 398. Top scorers were Leonard Feragen, 113, and Alfred Hermanson, 88.

Other activities included movies with popcorn treats, and games with fruit as prizes.

Westlund-Schoonhoven Marriage Vows Spoken

Rebecca Lynn Westlund and Daniel Henry Schoonhoven were united in marriage July 30 at Houglumn Lutheran church in Lake Park.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Evenson, Lake Park, and Duane Westlund of Hawley. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schoonhoven, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Glenn Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Margaret Cossette was the soloist and Karl McIntire was piano accompanist.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Byrun Westlund, and given in marriage by her family. She was attired in a sheer, white gown with taffeta lining. The gown was styled with an empire bodice with illusion net front and back yokes accented with Schiffli embroidered lace and simulated pearls. Matching lace trim graced the leg-of-mutton sleeves, front of the skirt and chapel-length train. Her finger-tip veil was edged with Venice lace. She carried a bride's Bible, a gift from her aunt, topped by a modified cascade of burgundy, mauve and white roses.

Maid of honor was Tracey Kraft, a cousin of the bride. Other attendants were Roberta Olson, a sister of the bride, and Jill Beithon, sister of the groom. Their mauve colored gowns of lustrous polyester knit featured empire bodices with lace stand-up collars, point d'esprit lace front and back yokes. Deep flounces created a capelet effect. Each attendant carried a lighted white candle surrounded by burgundy, mauve and white roses and white ribbon streamers.

Junior attendant Heather Westlund, and flower girl Carly Olson, both nieces of the bride, wore long-sleeved, street-length dresses of a pink floral design featuring ruffled lace necklines and ruffled cuffs. The flower girl carried a basket filled with roses, in burgundy, mauve and white.

Tim Schoonhoven attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Dave Correll and Murray Anderson, friends of the groom. They wore silver-gray tuxedos with ascot ties and mauve boutonnieres. Similar attire was worn by the ushers: Mike Wefald, Greg Ness, Joel Peterson, Bob Kinsman and Dave Waale, all friends of the groom. The junior groomsman, Jeffery Olson and the ring bearer Joshua Olson, nephews of the bride, wore gray pinstripe suits.

Honored guest was Alice Westlund, paternal grandmother of the bride.

At the punch bowl were the groom's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Koubsky. Coffee servers were Mrs. Gloria Hershberger, aunt of the groom, and Mrs. Minda Savig, great-aunt of the bride. Mrs. Ardis Syvertson and Mrs. Arvilla West, aunts of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Waitresses were Barbie and Stacey Westlund, cousins of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to the Black Hills, the couple is at home in Billings, Mont. The bride is employed as an LPN in the emergency ward at Billings Deaconess hospital. The groom is employed as an emergency medical technician at West End Ambulance and flys with the Advanced Critical Care transport team out of Billings Deaconess hospital. New Trustees Elected At NW Hospital operate.

During the year the hospital did reduce its ratio of long-term debt to the fund balance by two per cent from 39.5 to 37.5 per cent. Funds designated by the board for further plant and equipment replacement were increased by $233,019 from $1,616,000 to $1,849,019.

Net patient, resident and clinic revenues for the year were $9,712,386 after deducting $1,546,460 for allowances and uncollectible accounts. Other operating revenue of $286,286 brought total operating revenues to $9,998,672.

Operating expenses of $10,125,617 included $2,748,347 in daily patient and resident services, $3,301,021 in other professional services, $1,661,809 in general services, $1,850,625 in adminstrative and fiscal services and $563,815 in depreciation and interest. Loss from operations of $126,945 compares with a net income of $155,377 in the previous fiscal year.

Assets of the hospital association include current assets of $2,484,341 and other assets of $7,266,078 for total unrestricted funds of $9,750,419. Property, plant and equipment has a net value after depreciation of $3,252,807.

The association had total current liabilities of $1,490,111 and long-term debt of $3,101,096.

Patient days in the acute hospital (151 licensed beds) totaled 25,773, second only to the 26,048 patient days in 1980 and up from 25,345 a year ago. Resident days in the 90-bed convalescent and nursing care unit were 32,173, the highest total ever.

Hospital admissions, however, dropped to 4,012 in 1983, the fourth consecutive year of decline. There were 4,123 admissions in 1982, 4,170 in 1981 and a high of 4,325 admissions in 1980. Births declined to 382 from 443 in 1982, 439 in 1981 and a high of 517 in 1980.

In his report to the annual meeting, president Richard Spyhalski recognized the contribution made by the auxiliary, department managers and all employees in addition to the board, medical staff and management. He also commented on reimbursement legislation and noted that some experts in health care reimbursement predict that as many as 1,000 of the 7,000 hospitals in the United States will close during the 1980's due to financial problems.

"Expanding our technological capabilities in light of diminishing resources can be difficult, however, I am pleased to announce that mobile computerized tomographic scanning (CAT) will be available in Thief River Falls during the fall of 1983," he said. "This service will dramatically increase our diagnostic capabilities and reduce the need to refer patients for diagnostic testing."

Making Tire Performance Predictable

A new testing machine may help bring us safer, more fuel-efficient tires.

New-tire performance can now be predicted without road testing, say scientists, thanks to the development of a special machine—a high-strain viscoelastometer, which is also used as a fatigue tester. The result may be better tires.

This amazing new machine simulates the same mechanical and thermal stresses to which tires are subjected at normal operating speeds. A computer interprets the results, predicting tire performance and recommending changes in materials and structural design to produce safer, more fuel-efficient tires.

The machine, developed by scientists at Allied Corporation's polymer laboratory, Morris Township, N.J., has already come up with these findings:

- At high speeds, light polymeric cords yield the best fuel-consumption rating of any material tested.
- Lighter polymeric cords are less likely to develop standing waves at high speeds than any other cords tested. (A standing wave is a deflection in the tire—a vibration in the tire's circumference—that occurs at high speed and results in sudden catastrophic failure.)
- Nylon 6 cords run substantially cooler than other nylon cords, opening up entire new applications to them, such as giant off-the-road tires.

Dr. Dusan C. Prevorsek, laboratory manager, says the test method was developed to analyze tire performance in terms of construction variables and the materials used and to study the relationship among such factors as fuel performance, heat and fatigue failure, and rolling resistance, and to identify the weakest elements of a tire.

Hospital Asks $56,000 For Ambulance Aid

option of divesting ourselves of the service," he said. "We have already discussed the sale with two interested companies and have been contacted by a third this week."

It was pointed out that the present subsidy costs an average of $1.03 per capital in Pennington county. The $16,000 previously approved by the board would be $1.36 per capita while the $56,000 subsidy would be $4.78 per capita. Polk county's ambulance service, which has ambulances in three locations, costs $4.94 per capita, it was reported.

Dr. George Martin, chief of the hospital's medical staff, brought the attention of the board to the importance of immediate response to a heart attack, stroke or accident call. Rural areas have a poorer survival rate than other areas because people live further from hospitals. Having people on hand to make the ambulance run immediately and who are trained in various life support procedures can contribute a great deal to patient survival, he said.

"There are statistics to show that 85 per cent of the people who suffer heart attacks die before they can get to a hospital," Dr. Martin said. "Well over 50 per cent of those who suffer heart attacks and are alive when they arrive at the hospital survive the attack.

"We have an excellent ambulance service in this community," Dr. Martin added. "It is important to understand how vital this service is. I hope it will be possible to maintain the status that so many people have worked so hard to achieve."

In response to questioning, Stevens noted that the ambulance service is not the only department of the hospital which operates at a loss. Most of the other departments, such as obstetrics, could not be operated by other than the hospital. The ambulance service is an area which could be operated by others, and that is why the hospital is considering selling it to avoid the recurring losses.

Richard Spyhalski, hospital president, said the hospital will provide the county commissioners with a letter of intent to withdraw from its contract arrangement with the county. The letter will constitute official notice and initiate the withdrawal procedure as provided in the contract.

"We would be most happy at any time during that waiting period to withdraw our notice of intent if the requested $56,000 subsidy is made available," Spyhalski assured the board.

Others answering questions from county commissioners were Edmund Keimig, chief financial officer and Roy Daniels, supervisor of the ambulance service.

Commissioner Donald Grabanski advised the hospital and medical staff representatives in attendance that it would likely require an outpouring of public support to retain the service before the $56,000 subsidy is seriously considered.

Commissioner Albert Koop noted that while commissioners may agree that full funding of requests might be desirable, the board is restricted in what taxes it can levy to raise the money. A case in point, he said, is the state mandate that the county's regional library participation be raised 10 per cent while state law restricts counties to a five per cent tax increase.

Board chairman Roger Hoffman said the board will hold the request until it has advanced further in its 1984 budget process.

Preparation Of Home Can Save Heating Costs

Buying insulation, caulking, weatherstripping and otherwise getting ready for the subzero ravages of winter are probably the furthest things from most folks' minds in the balmy days of late summer. But the fact is, now is a good time to start gearing up for the coming blow, before prices on weatherizing materials start to go up and while working conditions are still nice.

Here are some simple, inexpensive steps you can take to weatherize your home arranged in order of greatest savings for the lowest cost, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

As the days grow colder, control over your utility bills becomes increasingly linked to control over your thermostat. For each degree you reduce your indoor temperature, you save about three per cent on fuel. For example, turning your thermostat from 72 degrees to 68 degrees will save you about 12 per cent on your home's heating energy. Turn your thermostat down even further at night and when you're away from home. Warming your house back up does not use more fuel than you have saved. Heat only rooms which are use and make sure curtains, furniture and other objects aren't blocking radiators or registers.

Too often peopple turn up the heat instead of eliminating drafts. Air leaks are usually the greatest single cause of heat loss in a home. For very little labor and expense, they can be prevented.

Air predictably leaks in at a number of specific points: around the doors, windows, baseboards, alongside chimney walls and down pipe and wiring conduits inside the walls. These seeps can often be stopped by weatherstripping and caulking cracks and joints and by capping wall outlets. Entering your home through the garage or other doors in sheltered areas can also save a great deal of heat — and at no cost.

Your furnace will work harder and use more fuel if it is not properly maintained. To keep it running efficiently, check over the entire system and change the air filters regularly. Seal leaks in the ductwork and insulate all ducts exposed to the cold. Up to six inches of insulation is needed for hot air ducts exposed to outside temperatures — ducts located in places like garages, attics and crawl spaces.

If you plan on modifying your heating system with energy-saving devices, do so with caution. Carefully check out the reliability and safety of such equipment and verify any savings claims. Make sure the performance data of the device you're interested in matches your climate. You can find out about these things by asking your local utility or heating contractor for advice before you invest.

Adding storm windows will reduce heat loss by half compared to a single pane window. Using a third layer of glass or plastic, heavy drapes or insulated shutters will reduce heat loss by an additional one-third.

If all else fails, you may have to consider insulating your home. This is a more complicated and expensive step. Insulation can cause serious problems unless you choose the proper materials and install them correctly. If you decide to hire a contractor, be careful to deal only with a reputable one.

For technical information about weatherization and energy saving techniques, contact the Energy Division of the Minnesota Department of Energy, Planning and Development, 980 American Center Building, 150 East Kellogg Blvd., St. Paul, 55101. For general information about hiring contractors and purchasing energy saving products, contact the Consumer Services Unit of the Minnesota Attorney General's Office — in St. Paul, at 128 Metro Square Building, Seventh and Robert Streets 55101; in Duluth, at 610 Government Services Center Bldg., 320 West 2nd St., 55802.

Suggest Ways To Improve On Revenue Guess

If the state of Minnesota were to add a simple, inexpensive procedure to its current revenue forecasting procedure, the state would both improve the accuracy of its revenue forecasts and be able to measure the size of possible errors in its forecasts, according to two economists at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

In a study just published, economists Robert B. Litterman and Thomas M. Supel show that a composite forecast that averages the forecasts of Minnesota tax receipts generated by the procedure they recommend, vector autoregression (VAR), and by the state's current procedure is more accurate than forecasts produced by either procedure alone.

Even more imporantly, say Litterman and Supel, unlike Minnesota's current forecasting procedure, VAR can provide objective measures of the uncertainty in the forecasts. This means that VAR can not only predict that revenues will be a certain amount but that it can also say that the chances of a revenue shortfall of a given size will be a certain percentage.

Litterman and Supel point out that such information would be valuable for state decisionmakers because both revenue shortfalls and actions that be taken to prevent or alleviate them are costly. If the state knows the chances that a shortfall of a given size will occur, say Litterman and Supel, the decisionmakers can weigh the costs of such a shortfall against the costs of programs that would prevent or alleviate it.

Minnesota's current forecast procedure relies upon forecasts generated by models of the national economy with human managers imposing their subjective judgments about the course of the economy. Once these subjective judgments have been imposed upon the model's forecasts, the models cannot produce objective measures of possible forecast errors.

Furthermore, Litterman and Supel point out that translating these forecasts of the national economy into forecasts of Minnesota tax receipts is a complex process in which some of the variables are not known with certainty. As a result, say the Fed economists, not only are errors bound to occur in the translation process, but objective estimates of the size of these errors are impossible to obtain.

NFO President Says Reserves Called Surplus

Prediction of stable food prices for consumers in 1984, made by the U.S. department of agriculture, is "politically inspired," says DeVon Woodland, president of the National Farmers organization.

Federal officials plan to use the nation's grain reserve to maintain depressed prices on the production of farmers and ranchers and continue their plan to force more and more farmers off the land and into the job market, he charged.

"The USDA traditionally has used our grain reserves as a club over the market, "Woodland said. "When they are talking to consumers the supplies are 'reserves' but when they are considering a farm program and farm prices those 'reserves' become a 'surplus'," he said.

"We think the reserves are not available this year in the quantity the USDA would have us believe. Information we are getting from throughout the nation indicates the reserves have been constantly depleted during the past months," Woodland stated, "and it is a well-known fact government officials are having a hard time finding grain to fill their commitments to the PIK program.

"We don't understand why the government is afraid to admit the price of food will go up when they, by ignoring them, approve rising costs of medical care, gasoline, clothing and virtually all other consumer products," Woodland said. "The only answer is that maintaining low food prices fits their goal to throw the farmer off the land and force him to look for work in the already tight job market.

"Unless the American consumer learns now he has a bargain when paying farmers, through government programs, to store grain and maintain adequate reserves, he will have to swallow a bitter pill when he finds the grain controlled by corporations which set their prices without any regard for consumer needs," Woodland concluded.

Inter-County Board To Meet

Regular meeting of the board of directors of Inter-County community council will be held on September 21, at the Clearbrook senior citizen center in Clearbrook, starting at 6:30 p.m. All board members are encouraged to attend.

Aging Is Topic At Meeting Of AHSA Saturday

Agassiz Health Systems Agency will hold its annual corporate meeting and board of directors election on Saturday, September 24 at 8:45 a.m. at the Ramada Inn in Grand Forks, ND. This agency is responsible for health planning in the 22 counties bordering northwestern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota.

This year's annual meeting will center on health planning into the twenty-first century for the needs of a growing, aging population. As older people have come to represent a larger and ever-growing population group in the Agassiz area, their special needs have become a matter of great public concern. Providing an overview on this subject will be Dr. Larry Brewster, director of North Dakota aging services.

In addition to Dr. Brewster's address, three Agassiz-funded projects that illustrate new concepts in area planning for the elderly will be presented. Project Survival is an innovative program involving senior residents of a Larimore apartment complex in planning for their own health and safety. Representing another creative concept in planning is the gerontology learning center at the Beltrami nursing home which was developed to increase community awareness of geriatrics. Final presentation will focus on a public information brochure, designed by the Greater Grand Forks area providers of services to the elderly, for improving community and interagency awareness of opportunities-care available for older persons.

Board of directors elections will follow these presentations. Agassiz annual meeting is open to the public and all interested persons are invited to attend. For further information, contact Mary Ellen Preston at (701) 746-0441.

Hwy. Hearing Held Monday In St. Hilaire

At a hearing held in St. Hilaire Monday evening, with about 20 people present, Minnesota department of transportation officials presented tentative plans for reconstruction of Highway 32 between St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls, noting that it would be up to the St. Hilaire city council to determine whether they would like to incorporate street and drainage improvements so that a cooperative agreement could be worked out prior to drafting of plans and specifications for bid letting in October 1984.

Bob Helland, project supervisor for MnDOT, noted that the council would need to consider such things as possible storm sewer and curb and gutter installation for the north and south sides of the city to improve drainage. Although actual construction on the project is not likely to start before 1985, he noted that changes would need to be incorporated into the plans.

Current plans for the project call for controlled cracking of the present 20 foot concrete mat, widening it to a 24 foot bituminous mat with two foot wide bituminous shoulders. Project would start at the south limit of St. Hilaire, and run north to approximately Oakland Park Road in Thief River Falls. Unless charges are made by the city council, the overlay would merely be laid between the present curbs in St. Hilaire.

Helland noted that due to time restraints for planning and right of way agreements, the city will have to decide on what extent they want to participate in the costs of the project. If they decide not to, the state will just do the portion which it is responsible for.

Mediation Is Noted By TRF School Board

Greg Pribula, Hank Hallstrom and Archie Cameron will meet with the supervisors and managers to begin negotiations with them.

The board rescinded its earlier motion establishing a towel fee for physical education students when it was learned a state attorney general's opinion ruled against it. The administration was again directed to research the purchase of laundry equipment for the district.

Named to the committee to meet with representatives of the police department regarding student chemical abuse and smoking outside the schools were Arnt Aune and Greg Pribula from the board, administrators Frank Hamerlinck, Terry Solne, Dr. Milton Hoff, Mike Novak, Pam Carlson and Supt. Block, and school board attorney John Novacek. Goals and roles are to be considered by the combined committee.

Brief discussion was given to a program for establishing health service volunteers in the district with the hope that it would be effective in combatting any head lice problem which may develop during the school year.

The board recognized commendation of Verne Spengler from the Minnesota vocational agriculture instructors association (MVAIA) for his service as president of that association last year and noted the association's thanks for the district's support and cooperation in his efforts.

Following discussion of how substitute teachers are selected, it was decided no change needed to be made in the present procedure. Approval was given to expenditure of an additional $3,700 at Northrop elementary school to replace windows with triple-glazed rather than double-glazed windows. The comparative R factor is 1.79 for double-glazed and 3.43 for triple-glazed windows.

Authorization was given to submit an application to the state board of education for financial assistance in construction of an addition to the AVTI airframe and powerplant mechanics shop at the regional airport. The request would have to be presented to the 1984 session of the state legislature. It calls for an addition of 7,132 square feet to the present building.

Contract was approved with the Intercounty nursing service to provide health services to the district for the 1983-84 school year. Authorization was given to post for a temporary half-time accounts payable clerk in the district service center beginning November 1, a preschool management aide and a half-time AVTI sales and marketing instructor.

Approved as instructors in the school district's ExCEL program for gifted students were Jim Fremstad, computers; Randy Johnson, science; Al Krause, science; Rachel Temple, Spanish; Susan Block, German; Faye Bolin, junior great books; Anthony Ricci, vocal music; and Faye Rouland, typing.

Food service assignments approved include Mayme Boughton, baker at Lincoln (4¾ hours); Vi Muzzy Joan Myers and Rose Vaudrin, kitchen helpers at Lincoln (2¼ hours); Ruth Budahl, kitchen helper at Franklin (4 hours) Lelia Trickle, head cook at Northrop (5¼ hours); Monica Rustan, baker at Northrop (3¼ hours); Agnes Olson, head cook at Washington (5¼ hours); and Helen Bushaw, baker at Washington (3¼ hours).

Aides approved were Joy Gillespie, kindergarten at Washington; Julie Peterson, kindergarten at Northrop; Geraldine Stocks, kindergarten at Mark Twain; Marion Stark, individual handicapped student management aide at Lincoln; Jodell Dallmann, TMH at Lincoln; Holly Toren, TMH at Mark Twain; and Sally Grand, library half-time each at Washington and Mark Twain.

Lynda Jochims was approved as teacher for the emotionally disturbed at Lincoln and Marion Cork and Sue Kayser were approved as ticket sellers for the 1983-84 activities season.

Extra-curricular assignments approved included Susan Froiland, school patrol at Mark Twain; Diane McKeever, school patrol at Washington; Peter Tri, school patrol at Northrop; Floyd Erickson, grades six and seven intramural football coach; and David C. Peterson, assistant hockey coach.

Lane changes approved effective at the start of the school year were, Kenneth Johnson, Lincoln, MA30 to MA45; Sharon Stauss, Franklin, BS to BS15; Donna Nelson, Knox, BS to BS15; Suzanne Steidl, Mark Twain, BS45 to BS60; Wayne Johaneson, vocational center, BS15 to BS30; Gaylyn Magner, vocational center, BS to BS15; Diane Rothschadl, vocational center, BS to BS15; and Mary Kay Isaacson, AVTI, BS to BS15.

Resignations were accepted from Peggy Lawrence, sixth grade volleyball coach and Art Brown, bus driver.

Authorization was given to obtain quotes for installing air exchangers to help the circulation and cooling of air in the music room at Franklin. Special board meeting was scheduled for October 5 at 7:30 p.m. to prepare for mediation on October 6 and other business. The superintendent and designated board members will meet Thursday at 7 a.m. to discuss his salary and benefits for 1983-84.

City Reduces Payment For Airport FBO

that they were interested in constructing a softball complex city property in the vicinity of Stordahl's and Digi-Key. They requested that council consider donating the former dump site and drilling a well to provide water.

Softball association proposed to pay for construction of four diamonds with plans to reserve space for two more diamonds. They expressed concern over the future of diamonds presently being used near the area vocational technical institute, noting that plans for school expansion had nearly eliminated use of the ball fields two years ago. They also commented that they were unable to make permanent improvements at that location such as better fences and lights.

After considerable discussion, council recommended that the school board should be approached first, to determine what their long-range plans for the present diamonds were. Mongoven was also instructed to contact Dr. Bruce Pierce, veterinarian, regarding his interest in purchasing a portion of the site proposed for new ballfields. Site is presently leased through 1985, by Leland Nelson for agricultural production.

Adoption of a new ordinance which would change the way replacement and repairs of water and sewer mains are paid for received a lot of discussion before being tabled until October 17. Ordinance is intended to eliminate assessments for repairs and replacements, turning the responsibility for costs incurred over to the city.

Mayor Carlson questioned whether people who had previously been assessed for such work might interpret the motives of the ordinance as political, since some of the first work to be done under the ordinance would likely be along Third Street and other areas where street work is planned. Alderman Bill Penning responded that the need for a different method of paying for utilities repairs had been discussed several times a year, for a long time, but allowed that recent difficulties in arriving at fair assessments had brought the matter to a head.

Under the proposed ordinance, all repairs and replacements would be paid for by the city, with money to be accumulated in a reserve fund collected through user fees, paid by all citizens using the system. He noted that the intent was not to accumulate huge reserves in the utilities department budget, stating that if the reserves got too large, user fees would be reduced. Alderman Don Goodrich questioned whether people wouldn't rather be assessed on their taxes, since such expenses would be deductible from income taxes, where user fees are not.

Noting that there are "many frailties in the assessment system," Penning said that the ordinance would enable department heads to replace water and sewer systems based on their "best scientific judgment, and the repair history of the area concerned."

In other business the council:

—Heard a report from City Attorney Bob Wurst, who noted that the supreme court had ruled in favor of United Fire and Casualty Co., reversing a district court decision requiring the insurance company to pay the cost of legal services in defending the city in a mandamus action to force the company to pay for legal services. The company had refused to pay such costs on two separate occasions, requiring the city to sue them in order to collect. Cost of the appeal in question was $3,100. Wurst noted that the city had no recourse on the supreme court decision, but it was noted that the city no longer carried insurance with United Fire and Casualty.

—Approved public safety committee recommendations to hire present volunteer firefighter Richard Jenson as a full time firefighter to replace David Bjorkman; and hiring Brad Kosel as a new volunteer firefighter to replace Duane Noel. Both appointments were made effective October 1.

—Discussed the request from the hospital board to the county for additional subsidy for the ambulance service. Alderman Penning suggested that the public safety committee meet with the hospital to discuss possibly using volunteer drivers from fire and police departments to reduce costs.

—Heard a report from Mongoven that insect problems in the vicinity of the sewage lagoons had been studied, with the conclusion that the problem insects were non-biting, male mosquitoes. He noted that state and federal regulations forbade using larvicides on the ponds, but that they could spray for flying insects. He further noted that experts agreed that the mosquitoes were not originating in the sewage lagoons, but from ditches and wet areas in fields surrounding the area. He commented that they sprayed within the city limits and around the lagoons, but were unable to do much in the rural area unless a mosquito control district was established. This was considered unlikely since swarms of the insects can travel 15 to 17 miles per day if the wind is blowing.

—Authorized participation in a League of Minnesota Cities program which would pool legal information compiled by city attorneys at a cost of $150 per year.

—Authorized the city clerk to negotiate with a Roger Jenson on a proposal to codify city ordinances on a more frequent basis to keep the law book current.

—Approved restricting parking on First Street in front of the hospital to a loading zone status only.

—Received notice that two day-care licenses (10 children each) had been granted to the Russell Olsons at 220 North Kneale, and to the Joseph Boenos at 307 Cardinal. Some time was spent discussing reports that some day-care facilities were poorly supervised, noting that responsibility for licensing requirements lay with the county welfare department. Police Chief Ken Froschheiser noted that citizen complaints regarding excessive noise were usually handled under the public nuisance ordinance.

—Heard that the post office is planning to build an addition to their building on the west side, which will extend to the alley. Trucks will back up to the loading dock from Second Street.

—Approved permits to consume beer for Arctco employees at L.B. Hartz Park on September 15, and for the Gene Brenna family picnic at Oakland Park on September 17.

—Discussed public concern over woodpiles in the city which could harbor undesirable animals.

—Heard that the sanitation committee was still negotiating with Roseau county for use of their landfill.

—Approved blocking off LaBree Avenue between Second and Third Streets on September 24, for rural appreciation days.

—Reversed their decision awarding a bid for a fuel tank at the airport to Lee Plumbing, since the bid did not conform. The bid was awarded to Determan Tank for $6,060.

—Approved payment of additional costs of $3,000 to Black and Veatch Engineers for 10 days of additional engineering time on the water treatment plant project.

—Set a hearing date of 7 p.m. September 27 on proposed uses for revenue sharing funds.

—Adjourned to 7 p.m. Tuesday, September 20, to discuss proposed budgets with department heads.

Coast Guard Is Accepting Applications

United States coast guard academy has announced that it is now accepting and processing applications for appointment as cadet, U.S. coast guard, class of 1988. Applications are being accepted for both men and women. Appointments as coast guard cadets are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional appointments or geographical quotas.

Applications for appointment must be submitted to the Director of Admissions, U.S. coast guard academy, prior to December 15, 1983. Candidates must arrange to participate in either the college board scholastic aptitude test (SAT) or American college testing assessment (ACT) prior to or including the December 10, 1983 administration for the ACT and the December 3, 1983 administration for the SAT.

Competition for appointment as Cadet is based on the candidate's high school rank, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participation in high school extracurricular activities, community affairs and-or part-time employment. Most successful candidates rank in the top quarter of their high school class and demonstrate proficiency in both the mathematical and applied science fields.

To qualify for the competition, an applicant must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and must have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1, 1984. All applicants must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1984. Regulations stipulate that all applicants must have competed three units in English, and three in mathematics to include algebra and plane or coordinate geometry or their equivalents, and must fulfill basic physical requirements.

Coast guard cadets obtain an excellent undergraduate education at no personal expense. In addition, they receive pay and allowances fully adequate to fulfill their ordinary living expenses.

The constantly updated academy curriculum leads to a bachelor of science degree with a strong academic emphasis on engineering and science. Selected major studies, when combined with varied elective courses, establish a solid foundation for a challenging career.

Graduates of the academy are awarded a bachelor of science degree and are commissioned as ensigns in the United States coast guard. Selected officers may pursue further postgraduate education and specialized training at many leading civilian and military graduate or professional schools, in such fields as aviation, business administration, electronics, engineering, law and oceanography.

The young academy graduate can look forward to a career as a regular coast guard officer. Under the department of transportation, the coast guard establishes and coordinates search and rescue operations by ship and plane, maintains advanced electronic and other aids to navigation scattered around the globe, operates the icebreakers which clear the way for all polar expeditions, and enforces marine law and all aspects of merchant marine safety. In addition, the coast guard has responsibility for boating safety and marine environmental protection.

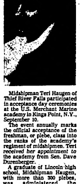
Haugen Joins U.S. Merchant Marine Class



Midshipman Teri Haugen of Thief River Falls participated in acceptance day ceremonies at the U.S. Merchant Marine academy in Kings Point, N.Y., September 10.

The event annually marks the official acceptance of the freshman, or plebe, class into the ranks of the academy's regiment of midshipmen. Teri received her appointment to the academy from Sen. Dave Durenberger.

A graduate of Lincoln high school, Midshipman Haugen, with more than 300 plebes, was administered the academy oath by Rear Admiral Thomas A. King, the superintendent. They were later sworn in as U.S. Naval Reserve midshipmen.

The plebe class reported in July to the Academy, which is operated by the Maritime Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation, for training as future merchant marine officers. Their initial two months were spent in military training and in taking introductory courses.

Storing Grain Underground Is Research Topic

by Denae Morrison
U of M News Service

Squirrels and chipmunks may simply lack the know-how to build silos and refrigerators, but some University of Minnesota scientists think their method of storing food — underground — has distinct advantages.

Florence Dunkel and Raymond Sterling say that grain stored underground is less subject to the ravages of weather and insects, and are developing ways to improve underground grain storage. Dunkel is a research associate in the department of entomology, and Sterling is a professor and director of the underground space center at the university, where he maintains an office 110 feet down.

"Underground earth-sheltered storage has been an indigenous method of food storage from ancient times to the present," said Dunkel. "Its use has been documented in every continent except Antarctica. Because it has been so common and because U.S. engineers have made large advances in technology for underground buildings, we think it's time to apply these new methods to grain storage in the U.S. and in developing countries."

The primary advantage of underground storage is that it can greatly alleviate the rotting of grain that results from unequal heat distribution within the grain mass, a common problem with above-ground storage bins. Trouble arises when warm grain is put into an above-ground bin and cold weather follows immediately. Soon, grain near the perimeter of the bin cools, causing moisture to migrate from warmer grain in the center of the bin and condense at the perimeter. The moisture encourages the growth of fungi and insects, resulting in grain loss.

Such losses can be minimized by underground storage if the grain is cooled to the temperature of the ground before storage, said Dunkel. Also, it is easier to provide an airtight seal in underground storage bins, Sterling said.

Grain that is heavily infested with insects may be better protected in a sealed underground structure, which no air can enter. The insects will, if present in sufficient numbers, quickly use up the available oxygen and die, precluding the need for costly insecticides, which might be toxic to humans who consume the grain.

Another advantage of keeping food underground is that it is easier, and therefore less expensive, to maintain an optimal temperature and humidity. This is especially important for crops such as potatoes, which require a temperature of 40 degrees Fahrenheit and darkness for ideal preservation.

The scientists and their colleague, research associate George Meixel, share grants from the Agency for International Development to create an experimental grain storage facility on the St. Paul campus of the university. They are conducting studies to see how well underground storage will work in Minnesota, and hope to make farmers, agricultural extension agents and bin manufacturers aware of this alternative method of grain storage, Dunkel said.

In the experimental facility shelled corn will be stored in two different sizes of bins constructed of different materials to determine as closely as possible the best storage conditions. The bins will hold either 100 or 3,000 bushels, and will be made of pre-stressed concrete, reinforced plastic or metal.

Bins of each type will be stored both above and below ground, so that the effects of the underground environment on the grain can be sorted out from the effects of construction material or bin size.

One problem with underground storage is the difficulty of monitoring the condition of the grain on a regular basis. Meixel is solving this problem by developing new remote sensing techniques to determine heat and moisture movement in the underground bins, along with mathematical models to describe and predict heat transfer in underground grain masses.

In addition to their research, the scientists are training people who will travel to developing countries where underground food storage is already practiced, and work to improve methods there.

One country that will benefit from their work is China, where Dunkel has traveled extensively, working with local scientists to help control insect damage to stored grain. She said that underground storage is used mostly in central China, where soil and topography are favorable.

Sterling, who has also visited China, described an underground structure the Chinese have built for bulk grain storage. "Grain is poured in through an opening in the top of the chamber and can be released from storage through a door near the bottom, which opens into a tunnel running beneath the structure. The tunnel contains a pipe that is used to remove the grain pneumatically."

He said that underground storage of grain, both in bags and in bulk, is considered an important of grain storage in China.

Other countries utilizing underground food storage on a large scale include Kenya, where it is used as a hedge against famine, and Argentina, which used it to handle grain surpluses brought about by World War II.

Sterling said more research is needed on several aspects of underground grain storage, including determining the impact of food distribution patterns and governmental policies on the potential utilization of underground storage, and finding methods of retaining airtightness in controlled atmosphere storage containers. One possible technique for controlled atmosphere storage is to flush the grain with an inert gas or carbon dioxide, and the effects of this treatment should also be investigated.

Some areas of the cliffs along the Mississippi River in the Twin Cities may be suitable for excavation and construction of an underground storage facility, they said. Such a site offers favorable geology and good access to river transportation. Although grain could be stored there, this site would probably be better for storing dry or refrigerated processed foods. Because of the large turnover of grain in U.S. storage facilities, long-term underground storage of grain would probably work best at the farm level, Sterling said.

LOW-SODIUM CHICKEN ENTREES

A growing number of health-conscious Americans, particularly those on low-sodium diets, are finding it isn't necessary to sacrifice taste for low-sodium meals.

Chicken, for example, can be the basis for many delicious low-sodium entrees, when seasoned with spices and prepared with fresh vegetables. Unsalted nuts are also ideal flavor enhancers. They are high in protein, vitamins and minerals, and impart a special taste and texture to a variety of chicken dishes.

Nutty Baked Chicken, made with Planters® Unsalted Peanuts, oregano and garlic is quick and easy to prepare for casual family dinners or summer weekend picnics.

Special dinner guests will enjoy Nutty Stuffed Chicken Breasts, made with Planters® Unsalted Mixed Nuts, carrots, onions and low-fat mozzarella cheese.

NUTTY STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS

Makes 4 servings

2 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned, and halved
5 tablespoons sweet unsalted margarine
1/2 cup coarsely shredded carrot
1/4 cup chopped onion
3/4 cup coarsely grated low-fat mozzarella cheese
2/3 cup Planters® Dry Roasted Unsalted Mixed Nuts, chopped
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons water

Place chicken breasts between sheets of wax paper. Pound very thin with a smooth-surfaced meat hammer or rolling pin. Remove wax paper.

Melt 2 tablespoons sweet unsalted margarine in skillet over medium heat; add carrot and onion; sauté until tender. Remove from heat; stir in mozzarella cheese and unsalted mixed nuts. Spoon 1/4 filling in center of each chicken breast; roll up and secure with toothpicks.

Melt remaining 3 tablespoons margarine in same skillet over medium heat; add chicken breasts and brown on all sides. Pour lemon juice and water over chicken. Cover and simmer over medium-low heat 20 minutes, or until tender. Remove toothpicks. Serve lemon sauce over chicken breasts and, if desired, garnish with parsley and carrot curls.

Hoff Honored By Columbia Sheep Ass'n.

David Hoff, assistant professor of agricultural economics at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC), was presented with an award of appreciation by the Columbia Sheep Breeders association of America at the annual show and sale held recently in Cheyenne, WY.

Hoff, who has raised Columbias for many years, is a breed inspector for this area and has served three terms as the association's director from Minnesota. He received the award for "outstanding contributions to the breed while serving nine years on the board of directors and for spearheading the drive to obtain Columbia breeding stock to get the University of Minnesota at Crookston into the Columbia industry," according to Dick Gerher, Columbia association executive secretary.

Hoff made arrangements with Columbia producers from Wyoming, Montana, Washington, California and Texas to donate ewes to UMC, according to Dr. Harvey Peterson, assistant professor and head of the animal science department.

"He met the donors at the national show and sale to pick up sheep from the various states. More donations are expected as several breeders are enthusiastically supportive of his plan," Peterson said.

Hoff joined the UMC faculty in 1967. He holds a bachelor of science degree in ag education and a master of science in ag economics from North Dakota state university. He teaches agricultural economics and finance courses for the university's agriculture division.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Q. I've been smoking for 20 years, and I'm fed up with people telling me I should quit. After 20 years the damage is already done, and it won't make any difference if I quit now. After all, we're all going to die from something eventually — I picked my poison 20 years ago.

A. There are a lot of smokers who feel as you do that after so many years of smoking the damage cannot be undone. Several medical research studies have provided that you're wrong — it's never too late.

The most recent and overwhelmingly convincing study was carried out over a period of 13 years with nearly 26,000 people in California. It found that smokers who quit improve their chances to live longer by more than half, no matter how old they are or how long they've smoked.

While it's true that everyone eventually will die, smokers can expect to live considerably longer if they quit. Smokers are three times as likely to die before they're 55 than people who don't smoke.

Q. Yesterday, while waiting in a doctor's office, I began talking with a woman whose child had cancer. In the course of the conversation she told me that there are a whole set of warning signs for childhood cancer which are very different from those which signal adult cancer. She said she didn't find this out until after her own child had been diagnosed, but in retrospect could see that the boy had, in fact, had many of the signs.

The more I think about this the more concerned I become. I'm well aware of the adult signs, but I don't know what to watch for in children. I am the father of three small children, so I have reason to think about this. Could you tell me what, exactly, to watch for?

Please print my letter in your column as I'm sure other parents would like to have this information.

A. Warning signs for childhood cancer are very different from those which signal adult cancer, because most cancers that are common in adults are rare in children. It's also important to keep in mind that cancer is not a common disease in children. The American Cancer Society estimates there will be 6,000 children diagnosed with cancer in 1982.

The most common types of cancer in children are cancers of the blood-forming tissues or leukemias, bone, brain, nervous system and kidneys.

Lumps and bumps are a frequent cause of concern for parents. Lumps in a child's neck usually are caused by an ear, nose or throat infection. These lumps will go away as the infection clears up. When lumps extend into the lower neck, and perhaps are associated with lumps in the armpit or groin, the child's doctor will need to do a thorough examination and blood tests. Sometimes a surgical biopsy is necessary to find out exactly what is causing the lumps.

An unusual enlargement, swelling or lump in the abdomen can be a sign of a tumor in children. Parents may notice the child looks "potbellied" or they may feel a firm enlargement in the child's abdomen. In such a case, the child should be examined by a doctor. Special tests and x-rays may be necessary.

Painful unexplained swelling of bones and joints is another symptom that may indicate cancer in children. X-rays usually are necessary to find the source of the swelling. A surgical biopsy also may be necessary if the cause appears to be a bone tumor.

A child who is pale, weak, feverish and has a protruding abdomen, lumps in his or her neck, armpits or groin or who bruises easily should be examined carefully by a doctor. Blood tests, chest-rays and a bone marrow test should be performed to learn whether the child has leukemia.

A stuffy nose or mouth breathing usually is caused by colds and upper respiratory infections. However persistent breathing problems should be checked by a doctor. The child may have chronic tonsil and adenoid problems. Tumors in the nose and throat, though quite rare, also can cause these symptoms. X-rays of the head will tell the doctor what is causing the symptoms.

Decreased vision, blindness or a pupil that appears to be turning white can be signs of eye tumors. A physician who specializes in eye conditions — an ophthalmologist — can tell whether these symptoms are caused by a tumor.

As is true of cancer warning signs in adults, a child's best protection is early detection. A complete medical examination including diagnostic tests and x-rays is necessary so that a possible cancer can be found early and treated effectively.

Q. What are the symptoms of brain tumors? Are they very common?

A. Brain tumor symptoms vary depending upon the part of the brain in which the tumor is located.

These are some general symptoms that can indicate a brain tumor.

+ Headache. Since there is no room for expansion inside the skull, a growing tumor will create pressure or swelling and cause severe headaches. These headaches often are worse when the person first wakes in the morning.

+ Visual disburbances. Double vision, blurring or other visual irregularities may happen when a tumor creates pressure on the optic nerve or interferes with blood flow to the eye.

+ Nervous system disturbances. Weakness or numbness in arms and legs can be a sign of a brain tumor. Sometimes reflexes (like the knee jerk) become unusually strong. Dizziness and loss of the sense of balance also can be warnings.

+ Seizures. People who have seizures or convulsions that can't be explained by an injury to the brain or an illness accompanied by high fever always should be examined for a possible brain tumor.

An occasional headache or dizzy spell should not cause concern. Symptoms related to brain tumors are persistent and get worse over time.

Cancer of the brain is fairly rare. About 12,000 malignant brain tumors will be diagnosed this year. That's only about two per cent of all new cancers diagnosed.

Q. What kind of advice would you give about suntanning? Is it really dangerous?

A. Too much sun is dangerous. It's the main cause of skin cancer and other types of permanent skin damage.

A sun tan may look healthy, but it's actually the first outward sign of sun-damaged skin. Tanning is your body's defense mechanism against the injury caused by ultraviolet burns from exposure to the sun.

Over time, this sun damage causes the skin to lose its elasticity, to become thin, dry, wrinkled and old-looking. Dark patches called liver spots or age spots are caused by sun damage.

Skin cancer — the most common form of cancer — is another direct result of too much exposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays. While most skin cancer is easily cured with surgery, it can leave permanent disfiguring scars.

Remember too that the risk of aging skin and cancer doesn't go away when your skin returns to its normal color at the end of each tanning season. Next summer's damage will be added to this summer's and last summer's.

The best advice is to protect your skin as much as possible. People with light skin and blue eyes who burn and freckle easily should be most careful. People who have had precancerous skin lesions or skin cancer should take extra precautions.

If possible, avoid the sun between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. If you're going to be out in the sun, use a sunscreen lotion containing PABA (Para-aminobenzoic acid), benzophenones or anthranilates. The lotion should have a sun protection factor from 2-15.

Sun screens containing PABA keep out of the most damaging burning rays while allowing tanning rays to penetrate. Tanning takes longer but does not cause as much permanent damage. Products containing benzophenones and anthranilates block both burning and tanning rays.

Q. Are there some kinds of moles that are more risky for cancer than others? Do they look different than ordinary moles?

A. Unusual, or dysplastic moles are more likely than ordinary moles to become cancerous. These unusual moles usually are different in color, shape, size, number and location from ordinary moles.

While ordinary moles usually are tan or brown, dysplastic moles may be a mixture of tan, brown, black and red.

The shape of ordinary moles is usually round with an even border. It may be flat or slightly elevated. Unusual moles have an irregular shape. The border may fade off so that it's difficult to tell where the mole stops and surrounding skin begins. Unusual moles always have a flat portion level with surrounding skin, usually along a border.

Most ordinary moles are less than one-fourth inch in diameter. Dysplastic moles usually are larger.

A typical adult may have from 10 to 40 ordinary moles scattered over his or her body. These generally are located on parts of the body most often exposed to the sun. They rarely appear below the waist or on the scalp or buttocks. A person with unusual moles often has more than 100. They most commonly are located on the back, but they may also occur below the waist, on the scalp, breast and buttocks.

It is important to remember that most unusual moles probably will never become cancerous. However, the risk of these moles developing into cancer is greater than for ordinary moles.

People who have unusual moles should be especially careful to limit their exposure to the sun and other forms of ultraviolet radiation like sunlamps and commercial "tanning" facilities.

Spray-On Fertilizer Yields Big Results

Treating soil with chemicals at the start of the planting season, rather than tilling it, saves time, money, and energy and produces more crops.

Good crop yield, energy savings and a sharp reduction in soil-erosion problems—these are the benefits of no-till farming, a soil-management technique in its embryonic stages today but which some scientists see as a clear and growing trend for the future.

Here's how no-till farming works. The soil is treated with herbicide at the start of the planting season to eliminate all undesirable plant life. This is done in lieu of tilling the soil, the standard—but expensive—energy-consuming method. The weed-killing phase is followed by drilling holes in the soil, seeding these areas, and covering them up. Since the soil has not been plowed, there is little worry about erosion stemming from irrigation or heavy rainfall.

Agronomists—scientists who deal with the field-crop production and soil management—at Allied Corporation have extended the state-of-the-art of no-till farming a step beyond this point, according to the company's Dr. Morris Berenbaum. They have formulated proprietary fertilizer combinations that "burn" up the weeds, yet remain to subsequently nourish the crop seedlings as they emerge. This is more cost-efficient and presents less of an ecological problem than chemical herbicides.

Later in the planting season, as the plants mature and the crop is forming, the nutrients stored throughout the plant are mobilized and move to the seed as it is developing, Dr. Berenbaum explains. "By applying fertilizer at this stage, it is possible to increase the nutrient level in the plant and thereby raise the yield. We do this using special formulations of fertilizers that can be applied directly to the leaves without damaging them and which, at the same time, facilitate delivery of the added nutrient."

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Claims that your nutritional needs can be determined through analysis of the minerals in your hair should probably be discounted, advises the Minnesota Medical association following a review by the MMA Interspecialty council. Hair mineral analysis simply has not yet been developed sufficiently to be used as the basis for recommending dietary changes, identifying behavior problems or proving exposure to environmental hazards.

Nevertheless, such claims have been made by a number of hair mineral labs in ads that have appeared recently in publications across the state. The problem with hair mineral analysis, according to the MMA, is not the mineral labs' inability to analyze the mineral content of the hair sample provided, but the ease with which a sample may be contaminated and a lack of scientific data to properly analyze the result.

A number of normal daily activites — such as hair shampooing, dyeing and the use of oral contraceptives — as well as an individual's age and sex, affect the results. Normal ranges for mineral concentrations in hair have not been clearly defined. This creates a problem in determining the meaning of the hair mineral test results.

Furthermore, because of the relative newness of hair mineral analysis, sufficient data is not yet available to accurately interpret the results. For instance, whether concentrations of minerans in the hair predict concentrations of minerals in the body has not been proven scientifically. Moreover, whether concentrations of hair minerals are related to behavioral problems and nutritional needs has not been shown.

Because the base of scientific knowledge is lacking, the consumer is open to inappropriate interpretation of the test results. The danger is that the consumer may be encouraged to purchase vitamins and mineral supplements which are not needed or undergo unnecessary treatments.

Potentially, however, hair mineral analysis could prove a useful diagnostic tool, once sufficient testing has been completed and standardization has been achieved. Easily collected and analyzed, hair provides a record of mineral concentrations over time, through analysis of minerals at various points on the hair shaft. Thus, despite current uncertainties, hair mineral analysis offers hope for improved understanding of body needs.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration's Office of Occupational Medicine conducted 22 field investigations during the 1981 fiscal year — including a study of fatalities in a resins manufacturing firm, a study of asbestos exposures, and a study of birth abnormalities in a hospital, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's annual report.

In 1825, the United Tailoresses Society of New York became the first women's labor organization in a trade. Later that year, this organization conducted the first strike by a women's labor organization, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

It tales a long time for a Representative or Senator to become an effective legislator who knows his way around and how to get results. That is why I am concerned about the large number of congressmen who are voluntarily retiring rather than continuing their congressional service. Everyone with whom I spoke acknowledges that Senator Howard Baker from Tennessee is one of the most capable Senators, respected by both Democrats and Republicans, and he just announced that he is packing up his bag and leaving at the end of the current term. He is just one of many over the last few years who have made that decision.

While in Washington I decided to find out why these good men and women are quitting. The answers are interesting.

The cost of campaigning has risen to between $200,000 and $500,000 per election for the House, and all the way up to $7 to $10 million for the Senate. This is one factor, particularly when you find wealthy people running against you with no funding limitations. It is not uncommon to find congressmen who are not wealthy going into debt during a campaign, and then, whether they won or lost, trying to pay off that debt for years.

More important than the campaign cost is the workload a conscientious congressman experiences once elected. I am told that having to vote 500 times or more in a year is not uncommon. Intelligent voting on legislation that represents anywhere from a long pamphlet to a novel or a big-city telephone directory) the budget), takes time. Because of the tendency to throw in gimmicks that are short, a lot of reading is required. Labels on laws mean nothing ("fair trade" was the label for manufacturer controlled prices that kept consumers paying too much for too long!). May congressmen find that the job involves 20 hours a day seven days a week trying to digest all of this material and make decisions, plus attending almost continous committee meetings.

Since two years pass quickly and six years isn't really that long, congressmen find it necessary to take care of their constituents and visit their home states often so that they remain someone the voters remember. These trips and speaking engagements take time.

The congressmen get 100 to 1,000 letters each week when there are no big issues. One told me that in the three weeks when some intensive lobbying was taking place to eliminate the 10 per cent withholding on dividends and interest, he received more than 150,000 letters. Some of these letters pass on ideas and complaints. All of these letters have to be answered, and that is a massive task, even with word processors and automatic typewriters, which equipment may explain those peculiar responses you sometimes get from your congressman (some clerk may have pushed the wrong response code!).

Many congressmen are frustrated over their inability to accomplish the objectives that got them to run for office in the first place. Getting legislation into the "hopper" is easy. Getting it considered is more difficult. Getting it passed requires a massive political effort.

Topping all of this, most Senators and Representatives have wives, kids and other family. Their schedules make it difficult to spend time with a wife, or be the parent or grandparent they would like to be.

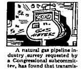
There is also no guarantee of re-election, so that a Senator or Represenative who is not wealthy must continuously try to keep his old business or professional relationships alive so that he has somewhere to go when he gets "fired." And that happens quite often, because the opponent back home doesn't have the kind of workload and work schedule that the incumbent must endure, and is free to promise and outpromise and do a little smearing, by inference, on the side.

When I asked the question, "How would you sum up, in one paragrah, why so many of the most competent congressmen are quitting?," I was told that campaign costs have got to be reduced, and the job has to become more managable so that Senators and Representatives can perform more effectively and fit in more time for their families. This prescription reveals the basic problems.

Achieving a solution to these problems is critical and needs attention right now. Otherwise, as more of our most competent and experienced congressmen leave because "they've had it," their replacements will probably be less competent and minus the experience, and that will cost us the kind of service and judgment that we really need in our legislators.

That's TStraight Talk!

IT'S A FACT!



A natural gas pipeline industry survey requested by a Congressional subcommittee, has found that transmission costs account for a small share of recent consumer gas price increases, reports the Interstate Natural Gas Association of America. Its member companies account for more than 90 percent of all natural gas moved in interstate commerce.

Many people are asking their legislators to help gas pipelines act in the consumer interest. Congress can enact legislation to set a three-year 50 percent "take-or-pay" limitation for contracts between pipelines and suppliers. Currently, many contracts require pipelines to "take-or-pay" for a much larger amount of gas, even though there may be no customers—or market—for all of it.

Congress currently is considering legislation that would make these changes.

Northmen Are Optimistic

An 18-0 season-opening loss to the Bemidji State University junior varsity notwithstanding, Northland community college football coach John Helley seemed genuinely pleased with the showing the Northmen made Sunday and he's looking forward to starting Northwest Division-counting play with a win Saturday at Itasca.

"I'm convinced we're going to beat Itasca," Helley said matter-of-factly. "We just played on even terms with a team (BSU) that was bigger and stronger than we were; a team that had been practicing four weeks longer than us. I think we're going to have a fine year."

A nonconference opener was a good way to start the season, indicated Helley, who is currently working with a 32-player squad. "I think we have a better idea what our inventory is now," he explained. "The coaches were pleased with what they saw and the kids developed some confidence in themselves."

Northland starts Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) play with four consecutive games against Northeast Division opponents Itasca, Vermilion, Hibbing and Mesabi that will count in Northland's Northwest Division standings. The Northmen close the schedule with Northwest Division rivals Brainerd, Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Post-season playoffs match the Northwest and Northeast Division winners against each other, while the Central and Southern Division winners meet. Those first round winners will square off in the MCCC state championship game.

Brainerd opened its season with a 17-12 loss to Anoka-Ramsey, while preseason Northwest Division favorite Crookston began with a 22-0 shutout of the Moorhead State University junior varsity.

Luther Huggins, a 5-9, 165-pound freshman tailback from Miami, Fla. made an impressive debut for the Trojans with 187 yards on 13 carries. He scored all three UMC touchdowns, including a 87-yard scoring sprint on the Trojans' second offensive play. He scored on a 62-yard run in the third quarter.

Sophomore quarterback Jeff Strandell of East Grand Forks also had a strong game as he rushed for 156 yards on 18 carries and was 7-for-15 passing for nearly 100 yards.

Carl Wittenburg added a 24-yard second quarter field goal for the Trojans, who host Vermilion Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Prowlers Host Greyhounds

Defending Region 8A champion Fosston will appear in the Lincoln high school gym Thursday for a 7:30 p.m. volleyball match with the Prowlers.

It'll be a tough test for coach Helen Anderson's Thief River Falls squad. The Prowlers have never been able to establish themselves as a power in the sport, while the Greyhounds have won five regional titles over the past eight years, including a current string of three straight state tournament trips. They have probably the premier volleyball program in the area, although Jill Klemmetson is the only starter back from last year's team.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, sits alone as a Class AA team in northwestern Minnesota. East Grand Forks and Crookston were reclassified as Class A schools by the Minnesota State High School League, joining District 31 in Region 8A this fall.

That leaves Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Park Rapids, Fergus Falls and Moorhead as North Sub-Region 8AA members.

Miscellaneous

+ Top of the State Conference publicist Ron Ueland of Newfolden is high on the punting ability of Tri-County senior Terry Olson who punted three times for 43, 43 and 50 yards in the Rabbits' 29-14 Friday night football victory over Marshall County Central. "He's the best punter I've seen in 18 years of high school football," pointed out Ueland. "He's big-time talent."

+ Jim Eisenreich, the ex-Minnesota Twins baseball player who led his St. Cloud Saints to the 1983 Minnesota state amateur baseball tournament title recently, "stuck out like a sore thumb in every game," Bernie Brand, manager of the Detroit Lakes Angels, told Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes newspapers. "He is far above the next best athlete I saw at the tournament and dominated in every phase of the game," stated Brand. "He toys with the pitchers when at bat, he gets to balls you wouldn't think we would be able to catch in the outfield and his throws to the infield are always on the line and always catchable by the cut-off." He was named the tournament's MVP award winner with 11 hits in 23 at-bats, including three home runs, three doubles and a triple while driving in 11 runs in wins over Owatonna 6-4, Maple Lake 6-2, Green Isle 18-9, Jordan 12-11 and Red Wing 5-1. St. Cloud's win over Jordan was an 11-inning affair that started at 10:45 p.m. and was not completed until 2:45 a.m. the next day when Eisenreich got the game-winning hit with two out in the 11th inning. He then pounded a two-run, 400-foot home run over the scoreboard in right field in the finals.

State Class B Football Power Mahnomen Visits TRF Friday

Mahnomen, a recognized state power in the Class B ranks, will make a rare appearance in Thief River Falls Friday when the Indians take on the Prowlers in a 7:30 p.m. high school football game.

Meeting for the first time since 1960 a year ago, Mahnomen squeezed out a 6-0 victory over visiting Thief River Falls on the strength of a 73-yard first quarter Ken Muckenhirn punt return for a touchdown. The Indians won despite netting just four first down and only 72 yards worth of offense against the Prowlers' defense.

Mahnomen went on to an 8-1 regular season finish and reached the Class B state playoff finals before losing to Le Center 12-6. Thief River Falls finished 0-9.

"They always play good football," confirmed Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz. "They deserve a lot of respect. Year in and year out they have a very good football team. You don't get to the finals being a poor football team. Teams in the finals of Class B are probably better than a lot of Class A teams."

Mahnomen has qualified for the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) state playoffs eight times in the 11 years the playoff have been used. The Indians have been Class B champions once (1980), runner-up twice (1979, 1982) and a semifinalist once more (1981) over the past four years.

Fact of the matter is, Mahnomen apparently became too good. Pine-To-Prairie Conference rivals capitulated after the 1982 season because the Indians were too dominant. In his 15th year as Mahnomen's head coach, Ken Baumann has directed the Indians to a 123-21-2 record. Now, like Thief River Falls in Class A, Mahnomen is playing as an independent in Class B.

With season-opening wins over Walker-Hackensack 27-6 and Waubun 46-6, Mahnomen is currently ranked No. 2 in the Associated Press Class B ratings behind No. 1-ranked Le Center.

It'll be an interesting challenge for the Prowlers, who reached a milestone themselves last Friday when a 20-0 home field win over Detroit Lakes snapped a 21-game losing streak. Caught up in the emotion of the rare victory, the Prowlers projected themselves into the Class A playoffs — a goal obtainable by finishing the regular season with a winning record, including wins over area fellow Class A independents Crookston and East Grand Forks.

"I guess there was a whole different feeling," admitted Thief River Falls coach John Schmitz as the Prowlers began preparations for Mahnomen. "Now we've got to get them back to reality."

While Detroit Lakes wasn't as strong as Grand Forks Red River, a team that beat Thief River Falls 21-12 in the season opener then demolished East Grand Forks 63-6 last week, the coaches were pleased with the Prowlers' improved play against the Lakers.

"Films indicate some improvement," noted Schmitz. "We still have a number of areas yet where we have a ways to go, but they showed on a number of occasions that the blocking was improved."

Defensively, the shutout obviously is appreciated. So are the turnovers the Prowlers have been forcing. In two games the opposition has fumbled 11 times, losing seven of them, and the Prowlers have collected five pass interceptions.

This week the Thief River Falls defense will be geared to stop Mahnomen runningback Charlie Stock, a 180-pounder who gained over 1,000 yards last year.

"Stock is a really fine back," acknowledged Schmitz, who must also be aware of fullback Don Schoenborn, a 180-pounder who was a starter as a sophomore last year.

For the Prowlers, only one line-up change is expected to be made this week, with senior offensive guard Ryan Bakke sidelined by a leg injury suffered in the first quarter of Friday's win over Detroit Lakes. Jeff Johnson, a 5-11, 158-pound junior, stepped into the void Friday and he'll be the starter this week.

Elsewhere, seniors Tim Kruse (6-3, 188) and Lynn Johnson (5-11, 185) will alternate at tight end; senior Jeff Hamerlinck (6-2, 212) and junior Shannon Kezar (6-1, 224) will be the tackles; senior Gary Cornell (6-0, 190) will be the other guard; senior Todd Ortloff (5-11, 170) will be the center; and senior Steve Wiskow (5-11, 183) will be the wide receiver.

In the offensive backfield, which had nearly 300 rushing yards against the Lakers, senior Mitch Semanko (5-10, 157) will remain at quarterback; senior Tim Bottem (5-10, 186) and junior Ryan Drees (5-5, 164) will be the runningbacks; and junior Scott Fowler (6-3, 165) and senior Scott Jorstad (5-7, 151) will vie for playing time at fullback.

Rick Spong, a 5-11, 175-pound senior who was a full-time starter in the offensive backfield a year ago, saw playing time against Detroit Lakes after missing the Red River game with a back problem. However, Drees has been impressive as his replacement, collecting the tough yardage, and he'll remain the starter alongside Bottem for now. The Prowlers now have depth at the position, enabling the coaches to rest players and have fresh backs available.

Defensively Spong might move into his old starting spot at cornerback, next to Semanko, with Jorstad at safety. Mark Bondy, a 6-0, 161-pound junior started at that corner the first two games in Spong's absence. He had two pass interceptions Friday.

Elsewhere on defense, senior Jeff Langan (5-11, 160) and Cornell will be the ends; junior Dan Upham (6-2, 196) and Hamerlinck will be the tackles; and Kruse, Ortloff, Wiskow and Fowler will be the linebackers.

TURNING IN a first place finish Tuesday during the Thief River Falls vs. Bemidji high school swimming meet was the Prowlers' Jill Lusignan here in the 100-yard breaststroke. The Thief River Falls sophomore was clocked in 1:23.16. The Prowlers won the meet easily, 109-63.

Area Volleyball . . .

Nordics Edge Eagles By 2-1

Marshall County Central edged Grygla 17-19, 18-11, 18-15 Tuesday in a nip-and-tuck high school volleyball match at Newfolden featuring two highly regarded North Border Conference rivals.

"It was really good volleyball," reported Grygla coach Kurt Vandermeer after the two-hour marathon. "Neither side made many mistakes. It was nerve-wracking; it's hard to be tense for two hours."

Grygla came into the match with a 3-0 record. Marshall County Central brought a 1-1 mark into the early season showdown.

"It was a real good match," confirmed Marshall County Central coach Julie Tunheim. "They've got a good team. We had to work for all of our points."

Leading the winners Becky Knutson, a sophomore, with 10 ace attacks, Senior Shelly Anderson and junior Barb Garthus had nine each. Setters Nancy Nelson and Stacey Gonshorowski had 11 and 10 assists, respectively. Gonshorowski enjoyed a perfect night at the service line with 12 points, including four aces.

"The kids were disappointed to lose, but it was a fun match," mentioned Vandermeer. "We're looking forward to playing them again."

Marshall County Central will be at Roseau Thursday and will host Badger Tuesday. Grygla will be idle until Thurs., Sept. 22, when the Eagles visit Lake of the Woods.

Controlled Hunt Party Size Rule To Be Enforced

Waterfowl hunters should be aware of an important change in one of the special conditions for those hunting the Elm Lake - Agassiz controlled hunting zone (CHZ).

Old regulations stated that no more than one hunting party may occupy a single hunting station. Effective beginning this fall the regulation will be no more than 3 persons may occupy a single hunting station.

This Department of Natural Resources regulation was initiated in 1982. However, it was not enforced that year. The regulation will be enforced in 1983.

Agassiz refuge manager Joe Kotok, says this Minnesota Department of Natural Resources regulation change was made to create safer hunting conditions, reduce waterfowl crippling losses and to help standardize CHZ regulations statewide.

Kotok said the other regulations remain the same, including the requirement to use steel shot. The controlled hunting zone is located on the southeast corner of Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge.

If you have any further questions, call the refuge headquarters, 218-449-4115 weekdays from 7:30 - 4 p.m. Maps and regulations are available at the headquarters.

FIRST PLACE finisher in the diving portion of Tuesday's Thief River Falls vs. Bemidji swimming meet in the Franklin middle school pool was the Prowlers' Teri Klopp, a junior pictured during a reverse dive from the pike position. The Prowlers won eight of the 11 events to beat the Lumberjills 109-63.

Alvarado Rally Tops LHS Volleyball Team

Alvarado rallied from a 9-1 first game deficit and went on to beat visiting Thief River Falls 18-12, 18-10 Tuesday in high school volleyball action.

"We took over right from the start," reported Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "We set up things both offensively and defensively. But then the little mistakes cost us. It was like night and day."

Thief River Falls fell to 1-2 with the loss. The Prowlers opened the 1983 season with a 2-1 victory over Class AA opponent Detroit Lakes, but have dropped back-to-back 2-0 matches to area Class A foes Warren and Alvarado. Another tough Class A assignment awaits them Thursday when defending Region 8A champion Fosston visits the Lincoln gym. C squad matches start at 5 p.m., junior varsity at 6:15 and varsity at 7:30.

Junior Kristi Finney was the top point producer for the Prowlers last night with 14 service points. "She did a fantastic job serving," pointed out Anderson.

Thief River Falls junior varsity ran its record to 3-0 with an 18-16, 18-7 win over Alvarado. Thief River Falls C squad fell to 0-2 when Alvarado triumphed 15-5, 11-15, 15-8.

Prowlers Top Lumberjills 109-63 In Home Opener

Winning eight of 11 events, the Lincoln high school swimming team opened its 1983 home meet schedule in impressive fashion Tuesday with a 109-63 dual meet victory over Bemidji at the Franklin middle school pool.

Eleven different Prowlers met post-season Section 3 meet qualifying standards in the meet and a pool school record was set in the 100-yard backstroke where sophomore Michelle Puetz swam a 1:05.86 to surpass Sarah Green's 1:06.58 that was in the books.

Puetz also won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:31.88. Other Thief River Falls individual wins were recorded by senior co-captain Denice Anderson, 6:40.96 in the 500-yard freestyle, junior Teri Klopp, 181.35 points in the diving competition; sophomore Jill Lusignan, 1:23.16 in the 100-yard breaststroke; and sophomore Janelle Smidt, 29.19 in the 50-yard freestyle.

Thief River Falls also swept both relay races. Puetz, junior Shelley McGann, Lusignan and junior Connie Geatz swam a 2:07.00 in the 200-yard medley relay; with eighth grader Pete Kuyath, sophomore Tammy Gunderson, freshman Brenda Russell and Smidt swimming a 4:21.17 in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Gaining early season spots in the Nov. 11-12 sectional meet at Bemidji State University were Kuyath, 200 freestyle; Puetz and Geatz, 200 I.M.; Klopp and sophomore Rochelle Sandstrom, diving; McGann, 100 butterfly; Geatz, 100 freestyle; Anderson, 500 freestyle; Peutz, senior Kathy Reuter and sophomore Kaylyn Espe, 100 backstroke; Lusignan and freshman Gayle Borchert, 100 breaststroke.

Thief River Falls hopes to carry its spirit-building success into a Saturday dual meet vs. Fargo North, a 1 p.m. start at the Franklin pool.

At Itasca Saturday . . .

Northmen Begin Conference Play

An 18-0 loser to the Bemidji State University junior varsity Sunday night at Bemidji to start the 1983 season, the Northland community college football team opens its Minnesota Community Conference (MCCC) schedule Saturday with another night road game when the Northmen face Itasca at 7:30 p.m. in Grand Rapids.

"We were pleased with our overall performance," said Northland coach John Helley after the opener, "but we found an awful lot of mistakes we have to work on."

Nothland had two touchdowns called back because of penalties. The Northmen were inside the Bemidji 1-yard line right away, but had a touchdown erased on two consecutive illegal procedure calls in the offensive line. A fourth quarter touchdown was nullified due to a penalty called for "aiding the runner."

"We had the opportunity to score," reported Helley. "We moved the ball very well."

Northland statistics showed the Northmen with a 256-240 edge in total offensive yards and a 15-11 edge in first downs.

Top offensive performance, said Helley, came from freshman runningback Kevin Roehl of Nevis, who rushed for 97 yards. "He's an excellent back," pointed out Helley. "He's strong; he's fast and he's shifty. He's a hard runner."

Turning in outstanding two-way games offensively and defensively, according to Helley, were Steve Robinson and Bob Rockwood. Robinson, a freshman from Westland, Mich. played offensive guard and inside linebacker. Rockwood, a sophomore from Fargo, N.D., played quarterback and outside linebacker.

Also cited for strong performances: sophomore linebacker Eric Bondy (TRF), freshman defensive tackle Nathan Bukowski (Middle River), freshman offensive lineman John Dahl (Clearbrook), sophomore runningback Mark Hagl (Red Lake Falls) freshman offensive lineman Wade Hruby (TRF), sophomore runningback Kent Kainz (TRF), freshman runningback-linebacker Mike Puberinger (Red Lake Falls), freshman center Jay Weiher (Verndale) and freshman defensive lineman-linebacker Todd Stokke (Newfolden).

Rockwood and freshman Steve Blanc (Columbia Heights) shared the quarterbacking duties. Blanc started and played the first half.

Northland's line-up is expected to remain pretty much unchanged this week.

Offensively, sophomore Todd Graalum (Fargo, N.D.) will be at wide receiver; freshman Avery Dahl (Roseau) at tight end; Bukowski and freshman Bill Kron (Newfolden) at tackles; Hruby and sophomore John Helley, Jr. (Plummer) at guards; and Weiher at center. Blanc and Rockwood may share the quarterback role again, with Hagl and Roehl at the runningbacks while either Kainz or sophomore Jim Dillon (TRF) line-up at slotback.

Moorhead Is 15-12 Winner Over LHS Team

Lincoln high school junior varsity football team opened its 1983 season Monday with a 15-12 loss at Moorhead.

Thief River Falls came back from an 8-0 halftime deficit to gain a 12-8 lead. But set up on a 40-yard pass play that carried the ball to the visitor's 6-yard line, Moorhead scored the go-ahead touchdown with about three minutes remaining.

Scoring Thief River Falls touchdowns were Kraig Kainz on a 1-yard quarterback sneak and tailback Tim Peterson on a 5-yard run near the end of the third quarter. Peterson, however, broke his collarbone on the play and will be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

Thief River Falls sophomore squad, 0-1 for the year, will be at East Grand Forks Monday for a 7 p.m. game. Thief River Falls junior varsity will wait until Mon., Sept. 26, to host Crookston in a 7 p.m. game.

Lincoln freshmen, 0-1, host Crookston Thursday at 4:15 p.m.

Franklin Wins Eighth Grade Football Game

Franklin middle school eighth grade football team opened its 1983 season Tuesday with a 14-8 win over visiting East Grand Forks.

Scoring touchdowns for the winners were Mike Bendickson, on a 4-yard run, and John Thompson, on a 25-yard pass from Chris Bjorgaard, who added the two-point conversion.

Franklin, coached by Ron Novak and Myron Peterson, will visit Crookston Tuesday.

Thief River Falls Trapshooter . . .

Karl Bjorkman Participates In U.S. Olympic Training Program

Karl Bjorkman, a 19-year-old trapshooter from Thief River Falls, was one of 46 top junior shooters from across the country who recently attended a 10-day training session at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs.

"The shooters here are the cream of the crop of the junior Olympic shooters in the United States," said Ernie Vande Zande, director of the Olympic Training Center shooting programs. "They represent the upper 15 per cent of all the young shooters in the country."

Under the direction of international caliber coaching, the shooters underwent intensive programs to improve their metal, physical and match preparation techniques. In addition, Vande Zande said, the shooters had six hours a day of practical "hands-on" experience and attended evening lectures featuring numerous Olympic medalists and world champions.

Bjorkman is just one of the 45,000 athletes who have taken advantage of the facilities and coaching at the training center since it opened in 1978. Miller High Life is currently in the middle of a three-year, $3 million commitment to underwriting all expenses at the Olympic Training Center, which is under the direction of Bob Mathias, two-time Olympic gold medalist in the decathlon.

Bjorman is a member of the University of North Dakota rifle team in Grand Forks which won the 1983 national collegiate team championships and the 1983 Cornhusker nationwide team trapshoot. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bjorkman of Thief River Falls.

Tennis Triangular Won By Prowlers

Thief River Falls won both the varsity and junior varsity portions of the Crookston triangular high school tennis meet Tuesday.

In the varsity competition, Thief River Falls emerged with 9 points, while Crookston had 6 and Moorhead was held scoreless.

For the junior varsity, Thief River Falls again wound up with 9 points, while Crookston and Moorhead finished with 3 each.

It was the second triangular outing of the year for the Prowlers, who were involved in a three-way first place tie with Bemidji and Brainerd earlier this fall at Bemidji. The Prowlers are also 4-0 in dual meet competition and have been involved in two multiple-team invitationals.

Minnesota Native Is Elected To National Wildlife Federation Group

Burnett C. Dahl of Red Wing was elected a Director-At-Large of the National Wildlife Federation at the NWF mid-year board meeting in Nashville, Tennessee.

Dahl, retired vice-president of marketing of the Red Wing Shoe Company, had previously served on the NWF board from 1976 to 1982 as a regional director for Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin. He was elected to fill a vacancy created by a resignation.

He has been president and chairman of the board of Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Foundation since 1975, and a member and executive committee member of the Red Wing Wildlife Protective League since 1955. He also has served as president of Turn In Poachers (TIP) since 1981.

An active conservationist, Dahl was honored with the Dr. Robert Green Award for conservation in Minnesota in 1982, and served as president of the Minnesota Conservation Federation, an affiliate of the National Wildlife Federation, from 1971 to 1975.

In other business at the Nashville meeting, the NWF Board of Directors approved a record $41 million budget for the 1984 fiscal year, which begins September 1. Over 90 per cent of that revenue is raised from associate and Ranger Rick memberships, nature education materials, subscriptions to Your Big Backyard and direct-mail solicitations.

Sophomore Janie Verbout bunched four ace spikes to break open the deadlocked match in the third game for the winners who remained unbeaten at 3-0. Middle River fell to 1-2.

3 P.M. Nine-Man Football Game At Grygla . . .

Grygla-Goodridge Plays Erskine-Mentor Friday

First home game of the 1983 season for the first-year Grygla - Goodridge cooperative high school football program will be played Friday at Grygla when the Blue Devils host Erskine-Mentor in a key 3 p.m. North Tri-County Conference showdown.

Erskine - Mentor, Grygla-Goodridge and Plummer were rated as preseason favorites in the nine-team North Tri-County Conference race this fall, and as fate would have it, the schedule-maker lined those three up against each other in the three-week span to start the year.

Those confrontations started last week when Plummer edged Grygla-Goodridge 14-8 in the game's final minute. It continues Friday with the Cougars vs. Blue Devils and resumes again next week (Sept. 23) when Erskine-Mentor visits Plummer.

In addition to the football game, homecoming celebrations will be held at Grygla Friday. The Blue Devils will have another homecoming game Oct. 7 when they play Middle River at Goodridge.

In other North Tri-County Conference match-ups Friday, Middle River will be at Oklee, Clearbrook at McIntosh-Winger and Fisher at Gonvick-Trail. Plummer has an open date this week.

A pair of unbeaten Top of the State Conference teams meet Friday when early-season surprise Tri-County visits preseason favorite Stephen. At the same time, Greenbush will be at Hallock in a match-up of winless teams and Argyle visits Marshall County Central in a meeting of last year's co-champions; however, the Eagles are off to a 2-0 start while the Nordics are 0-2.

Before cutting down a dying tree on your property, think about this. There are over 80 species of birds that only nest in dead or dying trees, such as red-bellied woodpeckers, screech owls and chickadees, says National Wildlife magazine. In return for supplying them a home, they'll eat many of these pesty insects around your neighborhood, including mosquitoes.

ATTENTION IN the area Nine-Man high school football circles was focused on the Plummer vs. Grygla-Goodridge North Tri-County Conference game Friday at Plummer. In an early season match-up of preseason conference favorites the host Cardinals edged the Blue Devils 14-8 in the final minute of play. In these photographs taken for The Times by Alice Holstad, Plummer quarterback Tim Gagner (top photo) was forced out of bounds by a Grygla-Goodridge defender after picking up a first down late in the first half. The Cardinals were driving, but ran out of time deep in the Blue Devils' territory. Meanwhile, Plummer halfback Mike Konickson (bottom photo) broke off a long run around the Grygla-Goodridge defense as Blue Devils Scott Groven (33) and Dale Verbout (75) gave chase.

RESPONSE TO informational meetings on the Northland Community Hospice program was "fantastic," according to local director Darla Twomey, who noted that meetings held at the Best Western Inn on Tuesday drew "far more interest than we expected" with 55 concerned people attending an afternoon meeting and an additional 40 attending in the evening. Hospice utilizes volunteers to help provide emotional, physical, and spiritual support for dying patients and their families. Speaking to potential volunteers were: (left to right) Rev. H. Kenneth Losch, Hallock, who spoke on "Death and Dying"; Cindy Vennes, Crookston, who recently received support through the hospice program in the death of her husband; Samira Beckwith, hospice director at United Hospital in Grand Forks; Judy Dragseth, lay volunteer at Crookston community hospital; and Frank Kaiser, Crookston, whose wife was a hospice patient.

Career Day Set Wednesday For Lincoln H.S. Jrs.

Lincoln high school juniors have an opportunity Wednesday, September 21, to gain information about a variety of careers available to them, as career information day is again being sponsored by Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, area vocational technical institute and Northland community college.

Thirty-seven speakers representing business, professions, and trades will present information about education needed, work conditions, advancement possibilities, salaries, and other aspects of their jobs.

Committee consisting of chamber representatives Jane Mackenroth, Jim Fisher, and Roger Shaffer; AVTI representatives Vern Treat and Rollie Boldt; Lincoln counselor Whitey Olson; and Northland representatives, Madalyn Novellino and Sverre Solheim met to evaluate past career days and make plans for the coming event.

Purpose of career day is to give young people another dimension in their search for a career compatible with their abilities, interests, and personality. Having the opportunity to meet and talk to people in a broad spectrum of careers and, in many cases, being able to continue dialogue with speakers in careers of interest to them are the two main objectives of the committee in planning this program for the students.

Stumpf Pushes For Continued Bus Service

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, a member of the Minnesota Senate transportation committee, has voiced his support for a ruling by the Minnesota public utilities commission (PUC) to continue Greyhound bus service to cities along highway 75, including Warren, Argyle, Stephen, Donaldson, Kennedy and Hallock.

"I strongly support the recent ruling by the PUC for Greyhound to continue operating bus service on this and two other routes in the state," Stumpf said. "I also believe that if a planned appeal of this decision by Greyhound to the federal I.C.C. (Interstate Commerce Commission) is upheld, then it will undermind the present authority of the PUC and seriously question its continued role in state transportation matters."

In April, the PUC issued a ruling allowing Greyhound to discontinue four bus routes in the state, but denying the bandonment of four other routes, including the route between East Grand Forks and the Canadian border at Noyes.

"In arguing to continue bus service from East Grand Forks to the Canadian border, for example, the PUC noted that the nearest alternative bus service is in North Dakota, and that a significant number of senior citizens and Minnesota merchants use this route, which demonstrates a real public interest and need," Stumpf said.

In terms of cost, the PUC stated that some of the cost projections made by Greyhound in its petition were "unreliable".

The PUC also noted that a 25 per cent rate increase approved for the company in May, 1983 "should directly assist Greyhound in maintaining service on these routes; moreover, the lack of adjustment for the savings in the abandoned routes should also aid in maintaining the financial viability of these routes."

Stumpf concluded that "in each case, a strong argument can be made for continuing bus service to all of these communities, since they serve the local public interest and are important to the continued livelihood of each one. I have opposed, and will continue to oppose, the abandonment of these important routes by Greyhound, even with the approval of the federal I.C.C."

WMB Considers More Area For Waste Disposal

Four new public land areas in northeastern Minnesota — including two areas in Lake county and two in northwestern St. Louis county — have been added to the Minnesota waste management board's list of "preliminary study areas" for a crystalline bedrock hazardous waste disposal facility.

The board action — taken at its September 8 meeting at the State Capitol in St. Paul — brings to 13 the number of potential siting areas for a crystalline bedrock repository for hazardous wastes. On September 22 the board is expected to narrow the list to approximately five "study areas," which will then be the subject of on-site drillings and analyses.

The crystalline bedrock repository is one of three major types of technologies the waste management board is considering for the secure disposal of those hazardous wastes which cannot be further processed, reduced or recycled. The facility would consist of a series of storage chambers mined within granite or similar "crystalline" rock.

In addition to the four preliminary study areas, the board had earlier identified nine other potential crystalline bedrock siting areas, including one area each in Stearns, Sherburne, Morrison, Benton and Yellow Medicine county; two areas in Redwood county and another area identified earlier in St. Louis county, near Virginia.

The two preliminary study areas added in St. Louis county include a five-square mile area approximately three miles south of Kabetogama lake, west of highway 53. The second St. Louis county area, six square miles in size, is approximately three miles south of the first preliminary area, and is also west of highway 53.

The two areas in Lake county include a two square mile area two miles east of Birch lake, bisected by Highway 1, and a five-square mile area just south of the Bear Island state forest and approximately five miles east of Babbitt.

All of the new preliminary study areas are comprised entirely of public lands, including state or federal forest lands. The areas were identified as a result of the board's August 15 decision to search the entire state for preliminary study areas on public lands.

Previously, preliminary study areas for a crystalline bedrock hazardous waste disposal facility had been identified within approximately 150 miles of the Twin Cities, the center of hazardous waste generation in Minnesota. The board decided in August, however, to relax the distance limitation for potential siting areas only for new public land sites.

In addition to the public lands criterion, the areas were identified based on criteria which searched for areas with the specific types of bedrock geological conditions that avoided major groundwater resources, and with a large percentage of bedrock "outcrops," where the bedrock is exposed at the land surface.

Based on additional information to be provided through field observations of the new areas by the Minnesota geological survey — and from observations already completed in the other preliminary study areas — the board on September 22 will select five study areas from among the 13 preliminary study ares. Following further on-site investigations, the board and the Minnesota pollution control agency will conduct public hearings in potential crystalline bedrock siting areas in early 1984.

The board is expected to select two candidates sites for a crystalline bedrock disposal facility by the spring of 1984. Those sites will then be added to four candidate sites already under consideration: sites in Aitkin and Marshall counties, which have been certified for "above-ground storage" facilities for hazardous wastes, and sites in Carver and Scott counties, certified for either above-ground storage or a secure hazardous waste landfill.

The final hazardous waste disposal site selection is expected by early 1986.

Raising Taxes Likely Move For Congress

As Congress considers the budget, it can't help but notice the government is spending money that isn't there. Almost every observer finds the budget deficit, expected to reach $200 billion this year, unacceptably high. Deficits of this size mean government borrowing crowds out private borrowers, pushing up interest rates and thwarting economic recovery.

Since President Reagan took office, the primary method of lowering the deficit has been to cut spending. But it is now apparent that pruning entitlements, cancelling new weapons and cutting discretionary spending are not enough to control the deficit. Like it or not, policymakers are forced to consider the other way to reduce deficits — raising taxes, according to the Roosevelt center for American policy studies in Washington, DC.

It used to be conventional wisdom that Congress would do just about anything rather than raise taxes. That theory was challenged last year with passage of Sen. Robert Dole's $99 billion tax-increase bill, which increased some excise taxes, ended some abuses and improved compliance with tax laws. The bill shows that, if Congress and the American public see a need to raise taxes, it can happen despite the objections of groups who will bear the burden of a tax increase.

The growing feeling that the deficit will abort economic recovery may once again create such a public climate. Raising taxes will be considered. It's a realistic possibility that Americans will see some sort of a tax increase passed this year.

Therefore, it's a good idea to examine what form a tax increase should take. The simplest option — supported by many Democrats — would be to cancel the third year of President Reagan's three-year tax cut for people with incomes above a certain level, a move that would raise about $37 billion over the next five years, Roosevelt center researchers report.

Another possible way to structure a tax increase would be along the lines of the 1982 bill, by removing various deductions or exemptions and increasing income that would be taxed. This broadens the tax base, as opposed to raising the tax rate. Many special provisions were already eliminated by the 1982 bill, but some candidates still exist. Possibilities include taxing fringe benefits and reducing tax breaks for independent oil producers and banks. Both tax measures could be designed to raise the same amount of revenue. But they have very different impacts on the tax system in other areas.

Repealing the tax cut is a rate-raising measure, while removing exemptions broadens the tax base. Since the largest inequities in the tax system are between income that is taxed and income that isn't taxed — not between income taxed at different rates — the way to increase fairness is to increase the amount of income that is taxed. Repealing the tax cut and, therefore, raising rates has the reverse effect; it makes the system less fair, the researchers said.

High tax rates also interfere with economic efficiency by diminishing incentives for work, savings and investment. Base-broadening measures, by contrast, offer an opportunity to cut provisions that many people consider to be outmoded or inefficient.

Politically, Congress might have an easier time repealing the third year of the tax cut than dealing with the many well-organized groups that have special interests in specific tax provisions. This is especially true because, if a special-interest measure could be cut easily, chances are the 1982 bill already cut it. The tax measures that remain will be much harder to deal with.

If public pressure to reduce the deficit results in a revenue increase this year, there will also be the opportunity to make the tax system more streamlined and fair. Broadening the tax base and closing loopholes is a way to derive some benefit from a tax hike no one wants.

Toilet Bowls To Be Raced During Goose Festival

A unique toilet bowl race will be held at the ninth annual Goose Festival in Middle River Sat., Oct. 1.

Middle River Community Club will sponsor the 3 p.m. race in which participants use a regular toilet bowl, or make their own "one-holer." The toilet bowl will be mounted on wheels and will be propelled by plungers.

Two-person teams will compete in the race, with teammates changing off at a designated race point.

Two divisions will be offered: under 40 and over 40. Two first place prizes will be awarded, and a special prize will be given for the most unusual toilet bowl.

"Miss America"

To a mother and a father—the future of the nation and the world is all wrapped up in their child.

As PARENTS we believe in this little one God gave us. We commit our love and resources and common sense to the fulfillment of her exciting destiny.

If she never makes it to a beauty pageant —that's not what we're concerned about!

If she grows up to be a person loved and loving—close to God and those He loves—we'll settle for that!

That's why there's moral training and religious education in her stars. We're MR. & MRS. AMERICA. And we worship God, thankful that our daughter can have not one fabulous year of fame but a lifetime fulfilling her destiny.

Edwin Grytdal Died Sept. 2 at Spokane

Word was received last week of the death of Edwin Grytdal of Spokane, Wash. He suffered a heart attack about 4 o'clock Friday morning, Sept. 2 and managed to call the ambulance himself. He died about three hours later at the hospital. His body was cremated and his ashes buried by his parent's graves. Memorial services were conducted at the Presbyterian church Saturday, Sept. 10. Edwin was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Grytdal, who lived at several places in our area about 40 years ago, moving from the farm now owned by the Garrett Reierson family to Spokane. The Grytdal children attended the County Line rural school and were former members of the Steiner 4-H club. Edwin served in World War II and was wounded, leaving him handicapped the rest of his life. He never married. Sincere sympathy is extended to his sister, Alva, and brother, Albin, and to his cousins in the Thief River Falls area.

Mrs. Karlene Coykendall, Jeremiah and Andrew, who are house guests at the home of her folks, the Lloyd Larsons', visited her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kleinwachter at Strandquist Sunday afternoon.

David Yonke accompanied the Confirmation classes and senior leaguers of the Trinity Lutheran church to Shalom Camp on Maple Lake Friday afternoon. They all returned home Sunday afternoon.

Hagglund Park in Holt Dedicated

Lloyd Larson attended the dedication of the public park in Holt Sunday afternoon. The dedication was co-sponsored by the city council of Holt and the Keenagers senior citizen group. The park was named after Bennie Hagglund, who died of cancer several years ago and who had donated four lots to the Keenagers for park use. Lunch was served following the program.

Sunday afternoon visitors and supper guests at the Leonard Yonke home were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lindblom of Kratka.

Lloyd Larson and Orville Harstad enjoyed the Western Minnesota Steam Threshers reunion at Rollag from Friday evening to Monday.

Mrs. Ethel Moe entertained for a noon dinner at her home Thursday, Sept. 8. Her guests were Mildred Nelson, Hannah Kisch, Florence Nabben, Myrtle Rude and Bernice Vatsaas.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke visited her mother, Mrs. Naomi Althoff, at her apartment in the Riverside Terrace Tuesday afternoon. Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Yonke spent in Grand Forks and were supper guests at the home of Marvin and Carol Yonke in East Grand Forks.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe attended the Northland Steam Threshing Bee Sunday afternoon at the Melroy Wiskow farm north and east of Strathcona. Others there were Bert and Joyce Kron of Rosewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem were Sunday afternoon luncheon guests at the John and Elizabeth Thompson home of rural Newfolden.

Melvin Saugen attended funeral services for his cousin, Ingvald Saugen, Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden.

Saturday afternoon coffee guests at the Harold and Alpha Halvorson home were Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Copp from Florida and Mrs. Edith Copp Kettler from California.

Russians and Airliners

Following editorial is from the Detroit Lakes Tribune:

After following the events and explanations of the Soviet destruction of a Korean airliner, we find it difficult to see it as anything other than another senseless incident in a senseless world situation.

Never has the heartlessness of the Soviets seems so plain. Never has our right to feel completely innocent seemed so beyond question. Never have our leaders felt so free to let go with the verbal cannons. Savagry, massacre, atrocity, a crime against humanity — these are words that President Reagan has used to describe the Soviet action.

It was a savage action; yet despite the fury of our righteousness, it is not so clear where the blame wholly belongs. Wasn't there an American RC-135 reconnaissance plane operating in the general area? Doesn't that make it at least possible that the Soviets did not think that they were shooting down a civilian airliner? If they had in fact destroyed an American spy plane over Soviet territory, who would we blame?

So, are we apologizing for the Soviets? No, we don't doubt their capacity for brutality. It's on display every day, but in ways that usually don't make such good reading and viewing. We have read following the incident that Soviet Military flights into American airspace are routine. American military flights into Soviet airspace are also routine. The Soviets at least make no bones about their intention to destroy any intruder.

The situation amounts to undeclared war. Sophisticated American spy planes fly over Russia too high to be intercepted. The Russians follow them on radar and wait for the malfunction or mistake that will bring an American into their gunsights.

Into this razor-edged situation wanders a Korean commercial jet. A pilot whose attitudes and training make it an act of heroism to shoot down a foreigner over Mother Russia fires a missile, and 269 people die. Tragic? Pathetic? Sickening: Yes. Surprising? No.

When innocents get slaughtered on a battlefield, it is no surprise. That's clear enough, but when it comes to spreading around the blame for creating the battlefield, it's not so clear who gets what portion.

Well, out here in the hinterlands, there is at least one thing that is clear: The American farmer didn't have anything to do with it. If there is something to feel relieved about it is that the President didn't decide to punish farmers with a grain embargo or interference in the recently concluded Soviet-American grain contract. The idea was suggested in Washington, and it would have simply been another case of innocents wandering or being pushed into the crossfire.

World's Worst Puns

Courtesy of Bob Johnson, publisher of the Wadena Pioneer Journal, is this collection of what must be considered as some of the world's worst puns:

+ What was the motto adopted by the old steel barons around the turn of the century? Ingot We Trust.

+ What happened to the glassblower who accidentally inhaled? He got a pane in his stomach.

+ If athletes get athlete's foot, what do astronauts get? Mistletoe.

+ What happened to the streetwalker who inadvertently accosted a plainclothes detective? Her proposition ended with a sentence.

+ Why do radio announcers always have small hands? So they can say, "Wee paws for station identification."

+ Shortly after two cans of paint got married, the bride whispered in her new husband's ear. What did she say? "Darling, I think I'm pigment."

+ Why is a new cocktail called the "Wuthering Heights?" It's for people who just want one moor.

+ Why did the man call his longhaired dog "Melancholy?" Because it was a collie who wouldn't eat anything but canteloupe.

+ What happens when you cross a Springer Spaniel with a Chicken? You get pooched eggs.

+ What's the theme song of the International Birdwatchers association? "I Love Parrots in the Springtime."

+ Why wouldn't the guru let his dentist use an anesthetic while having a tooth pulled? Because he wanted to transcend dental medication.

Lid Is Still Not On

Following comments were written by Robert F. Dee, chairman of the board of SmithKline Corporation:

The truth is that while the rate of growth of federal spending has slowed, the total amount of government spending is still going up.

As for taxes, in 10 years the federal tax bill for the typical U.S. family has risen faster than a family's before-tax income. With inflation, the typical American family has less disposable annual income now than 10 years ago.

The irony is that Americans elected a new Administration in 1980 dedicated to the proposition that less government is better government. But despite the efforts of the Administration to curtail big government, the lid still isn't on federal spending.

According to government data, between 1980 and 1983 total federal outlays in constant 1972 dollars (adjusted for inflation) rose from $317 billion to $357 billion, up 13 per cent. In the same period, nondefense spending grew from $244 billion to $268 billion, up 10 per cent. Defense spending went from $73 billion to $89 billion, up 22 per cent. Payments for individuals, which includes Social Security and other transfer payment programs, rose from $152 billion to $180 billion, an increase of 18 per cent.

The verdict is in: The U.S. government budget is still rising at a rate exceeding inflation.

Yet America is confronted with a staggering federal deficit, the largest in history. And this deficit can only be reduced if Congress is willing to make cuts in spending.

Some members of Congress claim that the deficit can be offset by increasing taxes. But recent history doesn't support that contention. In fact, higher taxes, strangely enough, seem to lead to increased government spending and larger deficits.

For example, in 1975-79, when tax receipts were 19 per cent of GNP, government spent nearly 22 per cent of GNP — with a deficit of over two per cent of GNP. In 1980-82, when tax revenues went up to 20 per cent of GNP, the situation was worse. Government spent close to 24 per cent of GNP and the deficit bounded to over three per cent of GNP.

All that tax increases seem to do is reduce the pressure on legislators to spend less.

Increased taxation obviously isn't the answer. There is only one real choice. Citizens must put much, much more pressure on their legislators to cut federal spending.

The Ulmer Hilton

Humor is not dead, as evidenced by this item from the Land O'Lakes Mirror:

Urban sprawl is creeping in on the peaceful prairie town of Ulmer, Ia., population 13. The community now has a stoplight. And three parking meters.

Local antique dealer Bob Gaffney, who is responsible for all this, characterizes Ulmer as "one of those towns that if you happened to drive into, you would swear nothing was moving for miles around. Then you come on a stoplight. It's so ridiculous we have people stopping and having their pictures taken with it."

Gaffney explains he picked up the stoplight and parking meters at auctions, and "thought it would be kind of fun to put them up."

While there is plenty of room to park free all over Ulmer, Gaffney says "we have a lot of nuts who pull up to my meters and put money in — just to see if the dumb things work. They do.

"And since we've done this, we've started calling the big grain elevator the Ulmer Hilton. I mean if you've got a town big enough to have a stoplight and parking meters, then you should have a high-rise hotel, shouldn't you?" Gaffney points out.

He says if people begin asking about the Ulmer Hilton, we tell them there aren't any rooms available right now.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Father: "You sure do ask a lot of questions, son. I wonder what would have happened if I had asked all those questions when I was young."

Son: "You might have the answers to some of mine now."

LEGAL BRIEFS

The Supreme Court's Workload

By Howard A. Specter
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

Chief Justice Burger has expressed concern for many years that the workload of the Supreme Court is too heavy. Recently other members of the Court have echoed his concerns.

The crux of the problem is said to be that the Justices do not have sufficient time for studied, deliberative decision making. The Chief Justice recently pointed out that in 1953 the Court had only 1,463 docketed cases and issued only 65 signed Court opinions; in contrast to 5,311 docketed cases and 141 signed Court opinions during the term that ended last July. In other words, the Court has to handle 3½ times as many cases as it did 30 years ago.

But, this increase in Supreme Court cases is a sign of a healthy nation of laws in which the citizenry has, pursues, and defends cherished rights. It is not something to complain about. Even so, if the Court does need relief, it should be forthcoming.

Howard A. Specter

But any relief should be provided without any adverse impact on litigants, without undermining the Court's traditional role and without creating unnecessary restrictions. Unfortunately, some of the proposed suggestions are inconsistent with these goals.

One suggestion involves creating a new court to decide which cases the Supreme Court should hear. Such a court would give the Supreme Court more time to deliberate and decide substantive issues.

However, the power to screen is the power to decide. Cases which are screened out in effect are decided without any decision by the Supreme Court. The Court now has discretion to decide which cases it will hear in certain areas. So long as the Supreme Court is to have discretionary jurisdiction, it, and only it, should determine which cases to hear.

The Chief Justice has suggested the creation of a temporary intermediate court of appeals. But the addition of another court to hear a second appeal prior to possible final appellate review by the Supreme Court is certain to delay the appeal process further.

Whatever steps are taken to alleviate the Court's burden, they should be taken only after careful consideration with regard to providing relief without sacrificing rights.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — I am in college under the Veterans Administration rehabilitation program. Who pays for the tuition and books?

A — The VA pays the college directly for cost of tuition, fees and books for disabled veterans pursuing a vocational rehabilitation program authorized through vocational rehabilitation and counseling staff at VA regional offices.

Q — Can I use my Veterans Administration entitlement for a home loan and go to school under the GI Bill at the same time?

A — Yes. There is no restriction on receiving both of the benefits concurrently. However, the VA education benefits are not considered as qualifying income for a long term VA home loan.

Q — I served in the Air Force from 1969 to 1971 and in the Army from 1977 to 1981. I did not participate in the contributory education plan now in effect. Am I eligible for any Veterans Administration education payments?

A — You are entitled to 45 months of GI Bill educational benefits based on your first period of service. Even though it has been more than 10 years since your first release from active duty, your army service extends your ending date to December 31, 1989. Any amount already used would be deducted.

Q — I receive compensation from the Veterans Administration for a 10 per cent service-connected disability. I am also eligible for non-service-connected disability pension benefits. Will I receive two checks?

A — No. A veteran cannot receive both compensation and pension benefits based on his own service. The VA will pay you the greater benefit unless you elect in writing to receive the lesser benefit.

The decade of the 70s was not kind to the American economy. Inflation, recessions, a decline in the standard of living. It is not surprising that economists began to take a long and hard look at the Japanese economy whose productivity was growing almost three times as rapidly as our own.

What were they doing right? What were we doing wrong? American liberals rejected the idea that the American economy was being taxed and regulated to death. They believe they have found the answer in Japan's "industrial policy" — a policy, in theory, where government experts direct the economy through allocating resources into high-growth industries. This explanation for Japan's growth has become popular in many circles, and today, there are more than 30 bills before Congress which would establish an "industrial policy" for the United States.

A recent study by the Heritage Foundation, however, has raised serious questions about Japan's so-called industrial policies. First, the study questions whether this idealized view of Japan's industrial policy — that of independent, non-politicized experts sitting around a table making sound judgments about the future — is an accurate portrayal of what is happening in Japan. Second, the study asks whether this industrial policy, or series of policies, is truly the cause of Japan's post-war growth.

The Heritage study exposes the idea that Japan is successfully targeting growth industries as a myth.

Agriculture is a case in point. The Japanese taxpayers have been subsidizing farming to the tune of $10 billion in 1979 alone, and Japanese consumers have been paying higher food costs due to stringent tariffs and quotas that keep out lower cost American food products. Why? Because Japanese farming is an efficient, growing industry? No. Japanese farmers are one-third as efficient as American farmers. The subsidies continue to flow because farmers are a strong political lobby in the Japanese Parliament.

The Japanese National Railway (JNR), the largest employer in Japan and a government-owned company, is also at the receiving end of massive subsidies. The JNR consistently runs a deficit, suffers from labor disputes and contrasts poorly with privately owned railway systems which run at a profit. Why then the subsidies for the less efficient JNR? Well, the 400,000 employees of the JNR vote in the next election.

The coal, shipbuilding and aluminum industries all highlight the dominance of political clout over economic efficiency.

Despite the image American liberals have tried to create, industrial policy in Japan is powered by political rather than economic motives. It would be so in the United States or any other nation.

If industrial policy has simply led to a political misallocation of capital, what then is the key to Japan's continued growth?

I would argue that Japan's policy of low marginal tax rates is the cause of its prosperity and should serve as our model for economic growth at home. Industrial policies are not a unique attribute of the Japanese economy. Low tax rates are.

Japan has the lowest ratio of taxes to the national income of any industrialized nation. In 1981, national and local taxes consumed only 29 per cent of the Japanese economy. This contrasts with 24 per cent in the United States, 46 per cent in France and 45 per cent in West Germany.

In addition, Japan exempts virtually all capital gains income from stock market transactions and the first $12,000 of interest income in certain savings institutions. Low taxes on capital formation create the resources needed to finance industrial growth and new jobs for all industries — not just those with political clout. Japan's low tax rates on individuals and business "target" the entire Japanese economy for growth. And it is working.

By all means let us learn from the success of the vibrant Japanese economy. But let us learn the correct lessons.

We Americans shake our heads and chuckle to ourselves whenever we hear that the French or British governments have nationalized another industry. Imagine having a steel mill or automobile factory run by bureaucrats! Who would fly on an airline run with the efficiency of the department of motor vehicles? Or give their business to a bank or travel agency run like Amtrak?

The whole idea seems silly. Government simply isn't up to the task of running a business, treating customers with respect, or creating wealth. And, of course, these government-run businesses regularly lose money, put out shoddy products and look to the taxpayers to make up their losses.

The Soviet Union has been trying to make socialism work for more than 60 years and they still can't understand why their government-run farms are no match for the independent American farmer: They print nice slogans, draw up elaborate plans inside of the bowels of the Kremlin, tell their people to produce, threaten them with the Gulag and still no wheat. The Polish government is having similar troubles with its government-owned businesses. Even the latest advances in socialist labor relations — water cannons and truncheons —, have been unable to make nationalized industries run at a profit.

Here in America we try to avoid this sort of nonsense. Oh, we do have some government-owned businesses. Amtrak — Uncle's Sam's own railroad — for one. But it stands as a reminder of the folly of government ownership and as boondoggles go, it remains relatively harmless.

But perhaps we should be a little slower to laugh at our European friends and their nationalized industries. For while our federal government does not own any oil companies, automobile factories or neighborhood grocery stores, it certainly exerts increasing control over American business, large and small.

It tells businessmen who they can and cannot hire; what wages they can pay; what products they can produce. Indeed, Washington stands like a silent partner looking over the shoulders of American businessmen. And it demands its share of the profits — the lion's share.

General Motors, for example, earned $1.07 in 1981 for every share of stock in the company. However, GM paid out more than $2.3 billion to federal, state and local governments, or $7.97 per share of stock. Not a bad deal for the government. Washington gets to tell GM what kind of cars to make, how to make them and then walks away (along with state and local governments) with seven times what GM's stockholders earned.

Of course, if you invest in a company that loses money over the course of a year, the government still collects. International Harvestor lost $12.90 per share in 1981 and still paid out $214 million in taxes. Ford lost than $8 per share that year and shelled out more than $1.1 billion in taxes.

More than 32 million Americans own stock in American corporations — money they earned and invested in the hopes of buying a home, educating their children or planning for retirement. Yet, the government always makes sure that its share gets paid first and then — if there is any left over — those who put their money at risk just might see some return.

No, here in America, unlike Europe, the government doesn't own major businesses. It just acts like it does.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH?

Healthy young adults should have medical examinations once every five years; youngsters every year or two; and people in their prime (40 to 65 years old) at one to three year intervals, recommends the Minnesota Medical association.

At the foundation of the MMA recommendations is the belief that periodic medical evaluation of healthy individuals is important for the early detection of disease, particularly such treatable conditions as dimness of vision, diabetes mellitus, cervical cancer, hypertension and glaucoma. With regular surveillance, a physician can also recognize the development of risk factors for disease and intervene with counseling and treatment.

The frequency of these examinations and the procedures to be performed will vary with the patient's age, socioeconomic status, heredity and other individual factors, says the MMA. For specific populations, the MMA makes the following recommendations:

Pregnant Women — The MMA advocates the recommendations of the American college of obstetricians and gynecologists that care of the pregnant woman should include visits to a physician every four weeks for the first 28 weeks of the pregnancy, visits every two to three weeks for the next eight weeks, and then weekly visits until delivery.

Children and Adolescents — The MMA advocates the recommendations of the American academy of pediatrics that the newborn infant be seen two to four weeks after birth, four to five more times within the first year of life, and thereafter every one to two years through age 21.

Adults — The MMA agrees with the institute of medicine that young adults should have medical examinations at intervals of five years until they are 40 years old. After 40 years, the council recommends periodic evaluation at intervals of one to three years, depending on the individual's occupation, present health status, medical history and other personal characterisitcs. Thus, for persons about 45 years old, the interval might be closer to three years, while for those older than 65 years, the intervals might be closer to one year.

Certain groups of healthy persons, because of genetic, occupational or socioeconomic factors, will require more intensive diagnostic testing and surveillance than other persons, the MMA says. Such persons might be, for example, workers with prolonged exposure to toxic chemicals or to ionizing radiation, an infant whose mother may have had an acute viral infection early in pregnancy, or a middle-aged man with borderline high blood pressure.
